"The highlight of Mayor LaRaia's first year in office was the controversary between LaRaia and then Council President Arthur Tobin over the fiscal 1977 - July 1, 1976 - June 30, 1977 -- tax rate. The rate was finally established at $194.80, an increase of $34.90 over the 1976 rate. Tobin contended that the rate was too high and could have been held to a $10 increase. An analysis of the financial picture of the city in 1976 indicates there was no way that the tax rate could have been held to $10.

"In fact, the increase of $34.90 was low. Figures for fiscal 1977 show a revenue deficit of some $2.4 million. Had this amount not been included in estimated receipts and had the current overlay (the amount set aside for tax abatements) been more realistic, the tax rate increase would have been in the $45-50 range.

"The second LaRaia budget for fiscal 1978 (current year ending June 30) produced a minor tax rate increase of $2.40, making the rate $197.20. The City Council's action in cutting some $3 million from the budget, coupled with an estimated $2.5 million short-fall in the receipts column and the unanticipated $1.5 million expense for snow removal could bring the deficit to some $7 million for fiscal '78.

"The Tobin administration, upon taking office in January, has found itself faced with the above mentioned deficit.

"Unlike the LaRaia Administration, which faced the same problem in 1976 and funded that deficit by adding to the 1977 tax rate, Mayor Tobin is attempting to solve the problem by what he terms a "bold new approach" to stabilize the fiscal affairs of the city. Tobin proposes to fund the deficit over a five year period by a bond issue.

"Borrowing to pay current expenses, instead of being a "bold new approach," is a "tired old approach" used by cities in financial trouble. New York City is a prime example of a city that has tried and continues to depend on the so-called "bold new approach."

"Just recently, Moody's Financial Rating Service dropped Quincy's credit rating from Aa to A1. This action was taken because the city has run free cash deficits for the last three years and temporary borrowings have increased substantially. The decline in the city's credit rating will increase the city's borrowing costs up to one-fourth of 1 percent. The cost of the five year bond issue will be close to $1.1 million.

"When I left the City Council in January, 1968, the City of Quincy was in sound financial condition due to the prudent fiscal policies of the Della Chiesa and McIntyre administrations. A new concept of managing the city's fiscal affairs was developed during the Hannon administration.

"The 'Election-year Tax Rate' concept provided for little or no increases in taxes during the city-election year with the belief or hope that somehow the city finances would straighten themselves out during the following year.

"Starting in 1976, free cash surpluses which totaled over one million dollars during the Della Chiesa years, turned into free cash deficits. Estimated receipts figures ballooned in election years to keep the tax rate down and led to increased short term borrowing which led to a downturn in the city's credit rating.

"Thus, the taxpayers of the City of Quincy will be paying for the cost of election rates for years to come."

Mayor Tobin said he generally agreed with McCauley's suggestions, except that he was in favor of all the helpful federal programs the city could get.

"Item one," he said, "I agree. We have a realistic and fully funded budget now.

"Item two, I have no quarrel with the Council working with the Mayor's during negotiations. My only hesitation would be that there could be a violation of the collective bargaining laws.

"Item three, if in the judgement of this administration a federally funded program comes along that would be in the best interests of the handicapped, the senior citizens, the disadvantaged of Quincy I would certainly explore it.

"Item four, I concur with the councillor. The School Committee has its own areas of responsibility to the city. It should not be blamed. This administration is not doing that."

Brownell Calls For QSD Debris Cleanup

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] has asked the MDC for an immediate cleanup of two lots on Quincy Shore Drive where the agency plans to build a new comfort station.

"It's an unbelievable disgrace," said Brownell in a letter to MDC Commissioner John Snedeker. "The bottles, beer cans and other junk that has been allowed to pile up on the lots is a blight to our city."

He also requested that the MDC make an extra effort this summer to keep both the neighborhood and Wollaston Beach free of debris.

"Last year's effort," he said, "did not live up to our community's expectations."

BE SMART FROM THE START

A homeowner has a big investment. When the time comes to sell that home, it's mighty, mighty important that you sell right...to make sure the investment has been a good one.

If pocketing a broker's commission tempts you, ask yourself if you can afford to let an amateur manage a transaction that involves thousands of dollars: Your dollars! When you want a job done well, you call a specialist. This is standard practice for successful businessmen...why buck success?

Some people try to sell their own property, fail and then list it with a Realtor. In the meantime, they've let the best prospects slip through their fingers.

Believe me. List your home with a Realtor from the start and you'll realize as much if not more profit and fewer problems from the sale than if you try to do it on your own. Statistics have proven this over and over again.

Thinking of selling your home? It makes sense to list it with PRESIDENT REAL ESTATE, 356 Hancock St., Phone: 328-8345.

2nd Undefeated Season

Rugby Club Wins Norwich U. Tourney

The Quincy Rugby Club capped the second undefeated season in its history by winning the annual Norwich University tournament last Saturday at Northfield, Vt.

Sixteen teams from Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire and Canada took part in the tournament in which Quincy won four games by a combined 69-0 score.

Quincy defeated Norwich University, 15-0, in the championship game after topping its other three opponents, 16-0, 24-0 and 14-0.

Well-balanced scoring from backs John Kennedy, Bob McCormack and Lou Trubiano combined with an outstanding defense by forwards Tom Quinn, Chris Riley, Fred Murray and Pete Barbadoro were the big factors in Quincy's performance.

Capt. Kennedy called it "the most gratifying day in the club's history. We've had good seasons before but never won a tournament. We play an independent schedule and have rarely received the recognition I feel we deserve from the older, established clubs in New England.

"This tournament should change all that and help us get powerhouses like Boston and Providence on our schedule."

Team president Colin Riley added, "What makes this season and the championship even more amazing is the fact we are probably the only pure town team in the Eastern Rugby Union. All of our players come from Quincy and we don't have a college in the city from which to draw like most other teams."

Others contributing to the tournament wins were Nate Hale, Bobby Boozer, Dick Wilson, Bob Meehan, Pete Raymer, Alfie McHugh, Mike McElaney, Colin Riley, Paul Wilson and Steve MacKay.

Others playing key roles in the undefeated season [7-0-1] were Rick Bertoni, Richie Carroll, Dave Cidale, Phil Doherty, Dick Hale, Danny Joyce, Ratt Kennedy, Michael Leith, Jamie Leith, Brian Morrissey, Steve Poore, Dave Reid and Eddie York.

The club will hold its annual awards barbecue for members and friends Saturday, May 21. Anyone interested in attending is asked to call 323-3133 for details.

Raiderettes Seek 3rd At Brookline

Although the North Quincy girls' softball team has only a 2-5 record, the Raiderettes have won two of their last three games (18-5 over Brockton and 15-10 over Weymouth North) and Coach Cheryl Manoli expects much improvement over the second half of the season.

North plays at Brookline today (Thursday) will host Weymouth South Monday and host Brockton next Wednesday. All games are at 3:15.

"The main feature this year is the team's depth, although we are pretty inexperienced," Ms. Manoli said. "We have three good pitchers in senior Jeanette Nolan, junior Carol Flynn and sophomore Maureen Worley."

Lisa Henderson is an outstanding catcher and is junior co-captain.

Senior Sue Cooper plays first base backed up by sophomore Pat Negus. Sophomores Lisa Costello and Karen Lydon split the second base duties and two veterans, junior Jane McGuiggan and senior co-captain Danna Shaw are at shortstop and third base respectively.

In the outfield are juniors Ann Geribo, Phyllis Germain and Maureen Santry and sophomores Patti Bellotti and Kathy MacDonald.

"We have a young team which needs to get experience playing together," the North coach said. "We have shown a good deal of improvement in our wins over Brockton and Weymouth North and I feel this improvement will continue."

In the latest game, the win over Weymouth North, Nolan was the winning pitcher and Henderson and Cooper provided the hitting. Cooper had four hits including a two-run homer and had four RBIs, while Henderson had three hits and three RBIs.

In the previous win over Brockton Henderson, Bellotti and McGuiggan paced the attack, Henderson going two for three with a double and two RBIs, Bellotti going four for six with a double and two RBI and McGuiggan had two hits and drove in two runs. Worley was the winning pitcher.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

"UNINTENDED' WATER DEATH

No one "expects" to drown, yet, unbelievably, more than half of the 7,000 persons who lose their lives annually from drowning never intended to get into the water. Fishing, for instance, looks safer than water skiing. However, fishing accounts for nearly 50 percent of all fatal boating accidents; water skiing less than 5 percent.

The Red Cross estimates that 40-50 percent of those engaged in boating cannot swim well enough to save themselves and would drown if they had to swim over 50 feet.

The moral of the story is always be prepared for an accidental dunking. If you're a boater and cannot swim, take the time to learn - and always carry life preservers in your boat. Drowning, my friends, is never a scheduled event.

● Girls Track

North, Quincy Bow

Forced to face one of the Suburban League powerhouses with several good scorers missing, the North Quincy track team was walloped by Weymouth South, 92-48, Monday at Veterans Memorial Stadium for its second straight defeat following five wins in a row.

Lou Tozzi's Raiders were scheduled to meet Newton yesterday (Wednesday) and will wind up their league season Friday, May 19, against Quincy at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"We would have had enough trouble with Weymouth South even at full strength," Tozzi said. "With some of our best scorers absent, we couldn't even make it close. They had much too much depth for us."

North's Fran McLaughlin won the javelin with the league's best toss of the season, 187-5½, and Mike Larsen won the shot put with his best effort, 50-4¾.

Mike Gallagher won the discus, Russ Chisholm took the 100 and John Barrett and John Saville were easy winners in the mile and two-mile respectively.

Last week North also bowed to unbeaten Brockton, 87-58, having five winners, John McGuiggan in the half mile, Mike Barrett in the two-mile, Jim Conboy in the low hurdles, Gallagher in the shot put and Jim Hanrahan in the javelin.

The mile relay team of McGuiggan, Dan McIntyre, Tom Fennessey and Jim Alban also won.

Quincy made one of its best showings but lost to Weymouth North, 75-69.

The Presidents will be at Weymouth South Tuesday and finish up with North Quincy on the 19th.

Pete Griffin won the 100 for Quincy, Vin Lorenzano won the 220, Joe Irvine took the half mile, Dennis Campbell won the pole vault, Higgins won the 440, Tod Caflisch won the javelin and the relay team of Griffin, Steve Cacciatori, Flannery and Lorenzano also won.

The Quincy girls lost to Weymouth North, 84-34, with Paula Church the First Ladies' shining light with wins in the 100 and 440. Paula Constas and Ann Reardon were other Quincy winners.

The First Ladies will be at Weymouth South Tuesday and will meet North Quincy next Thursday at 3:15 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Track Club Caps Season With 5 Trophies In Finale

The Quincy Track Club capped a successful winter season by winning five trophies and setting a record in the relay at the final Franklin AAU meet.

Kevin Wood set the record with a high jump of 5-5¼ and also took seconds in the 50 and 440.

Kara Crehan won the girls' high jump at 4-2, Penny Sawyer won the girls' dash and the relay team of Karen Lindenfelzer, Kara Crehan, Debbie Hastings and Penny Sawyer teamed up for a meet and club record of 1:28.7, smashing the former record held by the QTC. The old record, set in 1976, was 1:33.1.

Bodil Wahlstedt set a meet record of 41-7 in the shot put and Mary Crehan completed the scoring with a big win in the two-mile.

Mary Crehan and Donna Reardon placed fourth and fifth in the recent NEAAU junior 15 kilometer road racing championships. Miss Crehan's time was 63:20.

Several girls also ran in Foxboro for a series of road races and all took prizes.

Sheila Barrett and Eileen Crehan placed one-two in the 12 and under two-mile, Mary Crehan took second in the women's seven-mile run, and Donna Reardon took second in the 15-mile race.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

The jewelry industry is concerned about the quality of craftsmanship and the way jewelry businesses are run. In order to provide a higher degree of craftsmanship and better business techniques, the manufacturing jewelers and silversmiths of America have set up the Jewelry Institute, a non-profit educational center for jewelry and silver products manufacturers. One problem in the industry has been that the market has been growing but the number of skilled or semi-skilled workers hasn't been sufficient. Hopefully, the Jewelry Institute will train workers so as to preclude the lowering of the quality of manufactured jewelry. You'll find friendly service and quality pieces of jewelry when you come to us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, 536 Adams St., 696-1490. If you would like something different to give Mother this Mother's Day stop by and look over our selection of Estate jewelry. There is always a member of my family here to help you with all your needs. Hours: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Mon. thru Sat. Have a Happy Mother's Day.

spend the time necessary to successfully scrutinize these spending programs or keep down the cost of government. The spending spree begins at the state level and that's where it must be controlled."

Harold, 29, who lives at 31 Riverside Ave., Adams Shore, was first elected to the City Council in an at-large seat in 1975 and he was re-elected last year with 21,246 votes, the largest total ever amassed by a council candidate.

He has long been active in Democratic affairs as founder and first president of the Young Democrats of Massachusetts, a member of the Democratic City Committee and a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in New York in 1976.

A graduate of Sacred Heart High School, Weymouth, he has a degree in government from UMass-Amherst and a law degree from Suffolk Law School in Boston. He maintains a law office on Washington St. in Braintree.

Harold also studied government, public administration and urban planning at the Johns Hopkins European Center in Bologna, Italy, and at Worcester College, Oxford University, in England.

He is a member of the Braintree Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Quincy Historical Society and serves as scholarship chairman for the Quincy Citizens' association. He is also a member of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus.

This year, he was named as one of the outstanding young men of America by the Jaycees of America and his name was placed in Who's Who in American Government.

Last year he was successful in the State Supreme Court in fighting the State Tax Commissioner's stand against giving real estate tax abatements to disabled veterans.

Career Awareness Program At Quincy School

The Quincy elementary school, North Quincy, has developed a program called "Career Awareness," for children in grades kindergarten through sixth grade.

The program has three main objectives.

First, to help children to become more aware of the vast number of jobs people perform in order to make possible the standard of living.

Second, to encourage appreciation of the contribution each person's career makes to society.

Third, to foster understanding of the roles that schools, hobbies and other interests play in helping people prepare for a career.

The school has invited a series of speakers this week to discuss their careers and to give the children an opportunity to ask questions.

REV. BEDROS BAHARIAN: 'My hope is that we can get the East-West Highway and the Upland Rd. Extension completed by June 1, 1981.'

Quincy Rejuvenation Goals:

- Planned Apartment Growth
- Downtown Revitalization
- Burgin Parkway Extension
- Major Mercantile Store
- New Office Buildings

By TOM HENSHAW

The day of the single family home has run its course in Quincy, says the Rev. Bedros Baharian, who is chairman of the Planning Board and newly named director of City Wide Development.

The future lies in "well-planned apartment development" that could slowly raise the city into the 100,000 population class in the next 15 years.

The Rev. Mr. Baharian, who is pastor emeritus of Quincy Point Congregational Church, also made these points in an interview with The Sun on Quincy's future:

- The LaRaia plan for development of downtown Quincy is not dead; "we are using the parts of it that make sense at the moment to develop wherever we can get a developer really interested."
- The Burgin Parkway [Upland Rd.] Extension and an East-West Highway joining Granite St. with McGrath Highway by passing under Hancock St. is expected to be finished by June 1, 1981.
- The city is dickering now with a major mercantile store to locate on Hancock St. across from Sears Roebuck and with developers who are interested in constructing office buildings here.

See related stories Pages 2 and 20

The text of the interview follows:

SUN - What do you see as the future of Quincy? Single family housing? Apartment buildings? Office buildings? Can it grow? Should it grow?

BAHARIAN - I don't foresee any single family home growth to amount to anything. We have so little open land left in this city and it's worth so much per square foot that single family development is impossible. This is true of any community within eight or 10 miles of downtown Boston. I think the city's population [91,000] could grow slowly if well-planned apartment development continues. I think we could hit 100,000 in maybe 15 years. I think the city's possibility of growing commercially depends on how aggressive the city government, the merchants and the people are in wanting growth. I think we can turn the downtown area around and bring in [1] office

Council Votes To Advertise

$6.7 Million Deficit Bond Issue Takes First Step

Mayor Tobin's proposed $6.7 million bond issue to cover past deficits and stabilize the tax rate may be headed for tough sledding in the City Council.

The Council hauled the issue out of the Finance Committee Monday night and voted to have it advertised but none of the councillors could muster much enthusiasm for it.

Finance Committee Chairman John J. Lydon Jr. explained that a vote to advertise did not commit a councillor to voting for the bond issue.

"It is a step to notify the public that bonding is being considered," he said. "We owe that to the public. If anyone desires to take action, we are giving legal notice that it is before the Council.

"As an individual councillor, I too have problems in certain areas of this bond."

It was the consensus of the Council that a vote on the bond issue will come at the next Council meeting, June 5 -- the "moment of truth", as Councillor Francis X. McCauley called it.

"I would highly recommend that the vote come on June 5," said City Treasurer Robert Foy, "so we can implement the financial plan."

Councillor Paul D. Harold said he couldn't understand why everyone was in such a hurry to advertise or vote on the bond issue.

"In the past," he said, "we haven't known the financial picture of the city until the day the tax rate was set. We won't know it June 5. We won't know until the end of the fiscal year, June 30. We may not have to borrow $6.7 million.

'A Disgrace To City'

Ruth Gordon Amphitheater 'Horrendous' Says Tobin

Mayor Tobin toured the unfinished, $544,000 Ruth Gordon Amphitheater in Merrymount Park Saturday and called conditions there "absolutely horrendous."

"It's worse than shown in the pictures in The Quincy Sun," he said. "Every citizen in the city should take a look at what happens when federal funds are misspent.

"We feel that something ought to be done in this area because it ought not to be left in its existing condition. It's a disgrace to the city.

"But the city solicitor and the public works commissioner feel that if there is something wrong down there we ought not to be involving ourselves until we can go in with a clean slate.

"We want to make sure everything is in order before we attempt to straighten things out."

Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti said nothing can be done until he gets responses from CETA Director Paul Ricca and City Auditor Charles L. Shea.

"There's nothing I can do until I find out how much money is left," said Ricciuti. "Somebody says there's $4,000 left. Somebody else says there's $12,000."

What CETA Director Ricca will tell Ricciuti is that there is absolutely nothing left out of the $544,000. It was all paid out, 90 per cent in wages and 10 per cent in administrative costs and materials.

Ricca denied that there was an improper use of the money on the part of CETA and Ricciuti agreed with him.

"We put up the money for

Sheets Urges City To Take Badgers Quarry

City Councillor James A. Sheets has asked the Mayor and the City Council to move swiftly on an order to take Badgers Quarry in West Quincy by eminent domain.

Sheets said he has been working for more than two years to have the area taken so that the quarry, a focus of vandalism by swimmers, can be drained and filled.

"Every year problems increase and multiply and it is becoming almost impossible for the residents to live safely in their own homes," he said.

"Despite the attempts of the Quincy Police Department to deal with the problems, house breaks and damage to homes have greatly increased."

Sheets said he'd like to have the problem settled before warm weather sets in.

Council Asks For Traffic Studies

The City Council Monday night passed along four requests to the Quincy Traffic Commission asking for traffic studies leading to:

- No Parking signs on Heritage Way and Saville St., Quincy Center, to oust the all-day parkers from the area.
- No Parking signs on one side of Walnut St., Atlantic.
- Making Webster St., Atlantic, one way from East Squantum St. to Quincy Shore Drive for the months of June, July and August in the best interests of the safety of the people who live in the area.
- No Parking signs on one side of Myrtle St., Atlantic.

Hannon Tells Business Council

'Selling Downtown' 2-Year Thrust For Planning Dept.

"The thrust of the Planning Department for the next two years," said Planning Director Walter J. Hannon, "is to be on the road selling the downtown business area."

He outlined for the Quincy Business Council last Wednesday some of the firm plans and hopes that Mayor Tobin's administration has for the future of downtown Quincy.

The plans include:

- The long-awaited East-West Connector, which will join the Granite St. shopping areas with McGrath Highway by way of an underpass beneath Hancock St.
- A network of roads, including the East-West Connector and the Burgin Parkway Extension, that will bring traffic from Routes 128 and 3 in Braintree to Quincy Center in a minute and a half by 1981.

The East-West Connector is a major feature of a half billion dollar plan by the former LaRaia administration for downtown revitalization which, Hannon indicated, is far too complex for implementation.

"We are trying to bring it into perspective with something that can be done in two years," he said.

Under future hopes, Hannon listed:

- Office buildings, totaling 400,000 square feet of space, for the Della Chiesa and Hancock Parking Areas, which, he said, are not now being put to the best use. The lost parking spaces would be replaced by "a structured parking garage."
- A major development in the Ross Parking Area along the MBTA depression for which "there is nothing in the cards right now."
- Planners are "zeroing in for a major development" in the area currently occupied by the Bargain Center and the old courthouse, an area which he called "very, very bad."

Hannon said that a major insurance company is going to construct a $12 million building with 30 employees in Quincy.

"We hoped to get it for the downtown area," he said, "but it did not come off. At least, it will be built in the city."

Gerry Marquis of the Planning Department brought the Business Council up to date on what is being done to revitalize the Norfolk Downs business section.

A federal block grant, he said will enable the "streetscaping" of Billings Rd to begin in July with plans to finish in three or four months.

Next, he said, will be development of plans to make Hancock St. north of Billings Rd. "a more attractive entrance to our city."

After that will come parking and traffic improvements, storefront revitalization, a retail and merchandising program to help businessmen improve their skills, a program of residential rehabilitation.

"I have never been as optimistic about Quincy as I am today," said Andrew Walsh, director of the Business Council. "We are working together as never before. I hope we will stick together."

Jerry McNeil, project consultant for Carabetta Industries, made another pitch to the Council in favor of the Marina Landing apartment development in Squantum.

At the time, the complex was stalled in the Planning Board which was considering changing a portion of the site from Industrial A zoning to Planned Unit Development (PUD) to make way for the project. The change was under protest by Squantum residents.

McNeil said Carabetta "has to do a little bit of rethinking" on the project in the wake of a public hearing two weeks ago in which the proposal to build the 3,000-unit development was roundly denounced.

$235,043 In Plumbing

A total of 107 applications for plumbing permits were filed with the Quincy Inspector of Plumbing and Gas Fitting during the month of April with the cost of the work involved estimated at $235,043.

The department collected $1,100 in permit fees and conducted 162 inspections during the month.

In the same period, 82 applications were filed for gas fitting permits and the estimated cost of the work is $43,080. Permit fees of $320 were collected and 84 inspections were made, according to James A. Erwin, Jr., inspector of plumbing and gas fitting.

Recreation Room To Be Named For Him

Children's Hospital Has Special Honor For Tom Maher

By PETER BARNICLE

Quincy's Tommy Maher knows full well that research foundations are essential in battling disease - but he also knows youngsters who spend long days in the hospital need more than the highly sophisticated treatment they receive.

Over the past 10 years Tom has collected more than $150,000 for Boston's Children's Hospital and it all goes to help ease the tedium of convalescence and often to bring a little happiness to those who are not going to get well.

On Monday, Children's Hospital will honor Tom Maher, 101 Farrington St., Quincy, by naming a recreation room in his name at the internationally known facility. Doctors, administrators, employees, volunteers, patients and their families will join in tribute to the hospital's "extraordinary benefactor."

The Quincy City Council has passed a resolution naming Monday, May 22 as "Thomas Maher Day". The city's tribute says that "with pride and gratitude ... in humble tribute to this unique and noble gentleman for his extraordinary service and devotion to a cause and express our great pride in him as a citizen of Quincy."

Tom Maher is not a professional fund-raiser. He is a bartender at the 99 Restaurant, near North Station, in Boston, and that is the base of his operation.

"One day I learned the kids would love to have a piano," he recalled. "I mentioned it to a customer and he asked if he could use the telephone. He asked me the size and type that was required, a couple of days later the piano was delivered to the hospital."

Recently a top executive of one of the nation's largest toy manufacturers called Tom and said he had $50,000 worth of toys to be distributed. They will go to Children's Hospital and to several other hospitals and schools throughout New England.

Although Maher is known for his work with Children's he also spends time helping out in other areas where youngsters are confined to beds or chairs.

His wife, Linda, is enthusiastic about his ability to keep going on all the projects to help out kids.

"He's hysterical," she said, adding quickly, "You know what I mean? He's so jovial and always laughing - but he is very serious and sensitive to the needs of these youngsters."

Tom Maher knows what it is to be young and fighting a deadly disease. He spent most of his first 13 years in and out of hospitals with rheumatic fever and Bright's disease, a kidney ailment thought to be fatal in those days.

At 46 he is the big, ruddy Irish bartender who can quip with his lunchtime customers and then suddenly turn serious as the problems of one of his youngsters comes to mind. It has paid off over the years. Toys, books, special gifts that a little patient shyly hints would be appreciated appear all of a sudden.

He has a number of Bruins players among his "crew". They come to the hospital with him and often when a youngster is ambulatory will arrange for seats at the Boston Garden for a Bruins home game - with dinner at The 99.

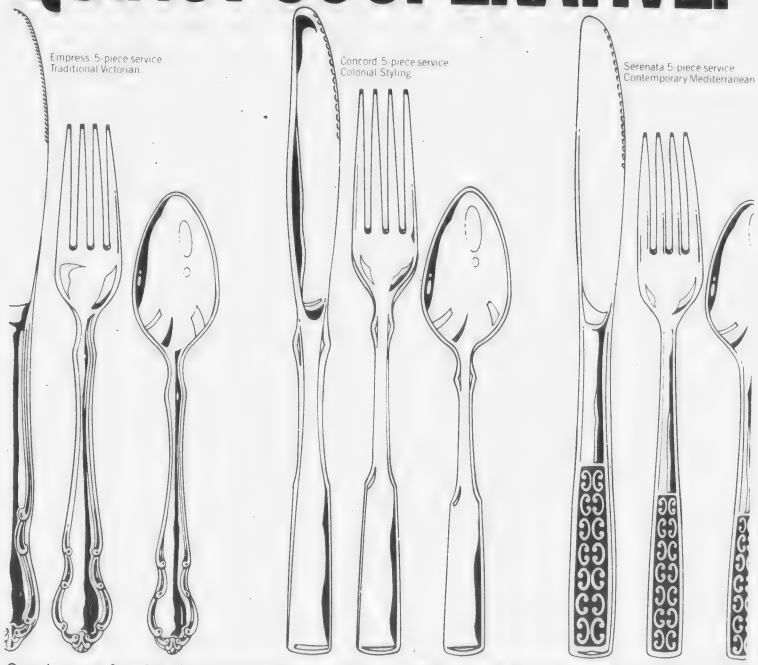
A year ago Maher got a call from a high school teacher telling him about a 17-year-old honor student whose leg had been amputated because of cancer. The student, a patient at Children's Hospital, needed a second artificial leg for walking - but more importantly, he wanted to swim.

Maher went into action with his friend and restaurant owner Tony Brandano to organize a dinner benefit. They contacted organizations, friends and passed the hat.

Three weeks later Maher had $1,840 - double what was needed for the artificial limb.

Those who see Tommy Maher in action behind the bar with his quick wit are often amazed at his sudden change when the talk turns to children.

"I don't joke about the hospital," he says, "because there is nothing funny about cancer or heart defects. Besides, I have such respect - almost reverence - for that place. If you've ever seen the nurses there with those kids ... well, it's beautiful. I'm just proud that I live near such an exceptional hospital."



TOMMY'S HERE! -- Tommy Maher, Quincy bartender, gets a big smile from Christopher Whites of Lucedale, Miss., a patient at Children's Hospital, during a visit to one of the recreation rooms. In background Scott Sherman of Mansfield waits a visit from the man who makes it possible. Maher has raised more than $150,000 for young patients over the past 10 years.

Today's Women

Dr. Anderson Discusses 'Women And Therapy'

By JUDITH McCARTHY

Dr. Luleen Anderson, coordinator of Psychological Services for the Quincy Public Schools, spoke to women of the Volunteer Information Agency (VIA) at a recent coffee sponsored by the group at the Wollaston Golf Club.

Dr. Anderson reviewed the progress and accomplishments of women, from the historical origins of women's first awareness of their potential for influence, to the present-day strides women have made in their efforts to become an integral part of the human process.

She also spoke on the subject of women in therapy: How women get to therapy in the first place; how their options for treatment should be exercised; and, how their intelligence must come into focus in seeking the kind of professional advice which will be suited to their personal needs.

Women are sometimes intimidated by the doctor-patient relationship, and they should know how to shop for a therapist," she said.

Dr. Anderson told how to find and interview the people who can help with problems and guide them to psychological growth. Women should not feel that because one relationship with a therapist is established, it must continue for better or worse, she said. Women have a choice. If the first therapist chosen is not helpful, another therapist or therapists can be interviewed, until a mutually beneficial relationship is established and progress can begin.

Women are growing into a more complete realization of themselves.

VIA, sponsor of the coffee hour, is an agency which helps children with special needs. In addition to helping parents on a daily telephone service, VIA has published literature for special needs families, which has been distributed across the country.

VIA also funds special needs projects such as the S.W.A.S.C. swim program and after school teen clubs for special needs teens in Hingham and Scituate. Located at 6 Baxter St., Quincy, VIA is an affiliate of the South Shore Mental Health Association. Interested parents may call VIA for information at 773-9525.

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

Aside from wine, probably little else from the natural world is mentioned as much in the Bible or literature as flowers. Various flowers have come to represent moods or sentiments, often meaning different things at different times. Roses usually mean passion, but could be a mourning flower when white. Lillies are a celebration of spring and hope, but a reminder of Christ's death. Poppies now remind many of crosses in Flander's Field. Orchids mean proms and young love. Daffodils mean sun and warmth and life. More than anything else, flowers represent the range and beauty of human emotions.

Our floral designers at NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 can create the most appropriate floral arrangement for almost any occasion...birth, anniversary, birthday or wedding as well as for the most appreciated occasion of all...for no special reason. If you are planning a late spring or summer wedding be sure and take advantage of our bridal consulting service. We are happy to give the prospective bride guidance in selecting the flowers that will best suit her personal taste and budget. Hours: Mon. - Sat., 8-6, evenings by appointment.

PLAN FIRE ESCAPE WHERE IT COUNTS

Fire drills are required in schools but neglected in the American home where the chances of fire are 200 times greater, where more than 10,000 persons die each year from fire - more than half of them children and old people. So, do your family a favor and plan a fire escape procedure.

Here's how: Appoint a "fire chief". When the father is home, he's the chief; otherwise the mother, a teen-age son, or daughter; even the baby sitter.

The chief stresses that all doors should be closed at night. It takes fire 10 - 15 minutes to burn through a wooden door. Next, your family visits each bedroom and figures out TWO escape routes. The usual route is the shortest way outside. The second route is an emergency exit through a different door or window. Plan how each member can reach the ground using the emergency route. Next decide on a meeting place outside the home. Then practice!

Council Budget Cuts Reach $98,000

The City Council's Finance Committee has cut about $98,000 out of Mayor Tobin's $94.8 million budget for 1978-79.

And it has also taken out $1,255,716 and marked it down as "placed on hold."

"It means," said Chairman John J. Lydon Jr., "that as of now those items do not have a favorable recommendation from the committee."

It also means the committee could change its mind.

Most of the $1.2 million is earmarked in the budget for new city jobs and for capital outlay.

"It is the recommendation of the committee," said Lydon, "that there be a search for CETA workers to fill the jobs rather than fund them as permanent positions.

"It is the feeling of the councillors that CETA [the Comprehensive Employment and Training Administration] is going to be around for a long time.

"Why increase our tax rate when the federal government can pick up these salaries?"

Restoration of the capital outlay items, said Lydon, will depend on the amount of state funds that will come into the city on the so-called "cherry sheet."

"The Mayor cut about $5 million out of the budget, most of it in capital outlay, so the Council does not have a comprehensive capital outlay program before it," he said.

"There are two ways we can go.

"Either we fund these items out of ample funding from the cherry sheet or the mayor comes in with a comprehensive capital outlay program funded under an additional bond later in the year."

Lydon said his State House sources indicate that the state budget, on which the cherry sheet is based, will be out of the Senate by June 15 and through a Senate-House conference committee by June 30.

By law, the City Council is required to have the city budget back in the hands of the Mayor by June 15.

"Within the next couple of weeks," said Lydon, "I hope to get a handle on what the state is going to do.

"Rising property taxes probably is the hottest issue throughout the whole country. Homeowners' fury is unrelenting. The legislature this year has to establish some form of property tax relief."

Lydon said that over the past two weeks his committee has held hearings on department budgets that total approximately 25 per cent of the gross budget.

Due last night [Wednesday] at 5:30 p.m. was the Fire Department and Friday, also at 5:30 p.m., the Police Department, both major budget categories.

Hearings on the Planning Department budget will be tonight at 5:30 p.m.

Foster Parents Sought In Quincy

Families For Foster Children, a unit of the Massachusetts Office For Children, has started a recruitment effort to enlist potential foster parents in Quincy.

Agency spokespersons report that there is a critical shortage of foster homes for teens and for special needs children. The teenagers may be parentless, their families may be in a temporary crisis, or they may be ready to leave an institution but can't return home. Some have had trouble with the authorities. A special effort is made to keep brothers and sisters together. The special needs children have varying degrees of physical or mental handicaps. Homes as well are needed for unwed mothers and their babies.

City Sets Goals For Rejuvenation

buildings, which means there are people who have lunch hours free to shop, and [2] hopefully some more large stores to attract more shoppers.

SUN - Do you think controls on growth in the city are too strict? Not strict enough?

BAHARIAN - I think we have a fairly good zoning ordinance in the city right now. I may be prejudiced because I was chairman of the committee that wrote it about eight years ago. It would be nice to have a little more control, particularly in the business sense. On the other hand, you can get involved in whether the controls become actual police power. By and large, I'm satisfied with the kind of controls we have.

SUN - Would you like to see some added? Would you like to see some eliminated?

BAHARIAN - The strongest control against growth is the neighborhood resistance groups who put pressure on the elected officials who are hesitant to study the real facts but have a tendency to react emotionally based on what voters are telling them even though the voters may be a small minority.

SUN - That sounds like a knock on Planned Unit Development.

BAHARIAN - I'm enthused about Planned Unit Development as a concept. Ideally it should be in the hands of the Planning Board alone. Right now the City Council is the final determining agent and it is extremely difficult for a ward councillor to vote for a project if there is any kind of organized opposition in the ward, even 20 or 25 people.

SUN - But if the Planning Board were to have the final say wouldn't that take a lot of the power away from the people?

BAHARIAN - Yes, I'm sure it would. I should be careful what I say but I'm not sure people always know what is good for the community. That may be a foolish statement that may hang me someday but you have to remember that the people who are professionals in planning put in hundreds of hours studying and analyzing a proposal and judging it from a factual rather than an emotional point of view.

SUN - There is a height limitation in Quincy, right?

BAHARIAN - Yes, we have a height limitation at the present time of 10 stories. I wasn't in favor of it when it was placed on the ballot but I think the city can live with it.

SUN - Would you like to see unrestricted height?

BAHARIAN - Personally, I'd like to see unrestricted height but I don't think I'd want to see buildings over 12 stories, not 25 or 40 stories. Land value isn't that high in Quincy.

BAHARIAN - Approximately 1,500 acres.

SUN - Could you spot that?

BAHARIAN - Not much of it is prime land. The big areas are west of the Expressway, close to 400 acres, most of it quarries. A lot of that land is unbuildable. You can't build over a quarry hole. You can't build within 50 feet of a quarry hole really because you're not sure what past dynamiting has done to the surrounding area. The next biggest tract is 300-plus acres in Squantum where the old air base and shipyard used to be. Probably the third largest area is on both sides of Quarry St. The rest of the land is scattered throughout the city.

SUN - Would you include Broad Meadows as land for development?

BAHARIAN - Yes, I suppose that's a fourth tract of land I didn't mention. The junior college is supposed to be built there but I don't expect to see it built in my lifetime. Our present laws on the use of flood plain land are so strict that it inhibits anything going on in that area.

SUN - Would you like to see

Working Experience For High School Seniors

Project LINC: Learning A Career By Doing It

By LINDA TRUBIANO

Ann Kenney is a senior at Quincy High School who also works at the Cerebral Palsy Center on Adams St., Quincy.

Since she wants to enter the field of physical therapy, she is gaining invaluable experience towards her career goal. Ann is able to do this because she is part of an internship program offered to seniors at her school and North Quincy High School.

The program is entitled Project LINC which means Learning in the Community, and offers high school seniors an opportunity to gain first-hand knowledge of their particular area of interest and a chance to test their abilities. Seniors in good standing are allowed to take part in a full-time, off-campus working position at any of 75-108 learning sites in the South Shore area during their spring semester.

Besides receiving training in a career choice, students are, instead of the ordinary classroom situation, exposed to their community and the working world of responsibility and competition. They become aware of the relationship between classroom subject matter and the outside world. The program is a gradual introduction to the real aspects of life seniors will soon encounter after graduation.

After being accepted into LINC, students are assigned to their learning environment, or site, dealing with their interest areas. This year seniors are at sites ranging from food preparation to veterinary medicine. At the sites, they work under a supervisor who assigns tasks and introduces the students to the various working conditions they will encounter should they enter that field.

Seniors do not receive a salary for their hours because they work during school time, but they do receive points towards graduation and are awarded a grade at the end of the school year.

The students involved agree that they are getting experience they could never achieve in a classroom.

Ann Kenney, for example, says "I'm learning more by actually doing than I could ever learn in school."

ON DEADLINE -- Linda Trubiano, North Quincy High School senior is a journalism intern at The Quincy Sun. Under Project LINC. She plans to enter Northeastern University in the fall.

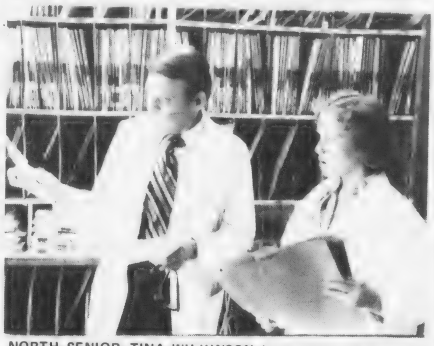
Ann, who works with handicapped 4-6 year-olds, explained that school offered general courses that dealt with children but none that dealt directly with the field of physical therapy. She sums up her opinion in one phrase, "I love it!"

Jeanne White, a senior at North Quincy High School, works as a classroom aide at St. Coletta's Day School for mentally handicapped children. She takes part in preparing and teaching subject material to her students. Jeanne, who will attend Bridgewater State College next year as a special education major, says that LINC has helped her to decide that, "this is what I really want to do."

One of her students feels that Jeanne is well-qualified for this field. As he put it, "she helps me learn and she is my friend."

Another North senior, Annmarie Peters hopes to enter a career in school psychology. She works at Myles Standish School in Squantum with emotional children and at Wollaston School with psychologist Ted Curley.

"I'm learning something new every day," notes Annmarie. "I really like it. I never had psychology in school, but I am learning more than I could in a classroom."



Julie Palmer of North is interning in the field of veterinary medicine at Gutteridge Hospital in Canton. Another North senior, Deborah Grenier, is learning about dental assistance at an office in South Boston. Michael Sullivan of Quincy High is assigned at Bay State Industrial Equipment Co., studying industrial management. Classmate Paul Goracy wants to be a forest ranger and is learning how with the Environmental Dept. of the State of Massachusetts.

Other cites include Norfolk County Superior Court in Dedham, Quincy District Court, Quincy Police Station, Vicki's Bake Shop, Quincy Public Schools, Quincy City Hospital, Blue Cross/Blue Shield in Boston, Multi Media Bank, American Postal Workers Union, Sheraton Tara Hotel, Logan Airport Massport Authority, State Street South, South Shore Rehabilitation Center and The Quincy Sun.

The LINC program is under the direction of Michael Hurley. Quincy High students are under the supervision of teacher-coordinator William Sullivan and at North, teacher-coordinator Paul Stanton. Stanton, who has been involved in the program since its start about five years ago, says:

"I've seen success in that most students have reinforced their attitudes towards their career choices while others discovered that it wasn't what they really wanted to do after all. The emphasis is, however, on the interaction between school and community."

My own opinion, as a student intern at The Quincy Sun, under Project LINC, is that this is a very worthwhile program. The atmosphere of a real newspaper could never be simulated in any journalism class, and I have picked up terms, rules, and advice that can't be found in a textbook.

I have been able to work and talk with people in the field and experience first-hand the collecting and writing of news. The most important thing, I feel, is that the program gives seniors a taste of the world they will enter after graduation and a chance to learn something about themselves.

Back In The Olde Days

A lot of people used to burn wood and coal. A familiar sight, in those days was the Chimney Sweep. Once a year the Sweep would come around and do a job that was, for most folks, much too dirty, but, for everyone very necessary. You see Back In The Olde Days, everyone knew just how dangerous a chimney fire could be. Last year in this country alone, 40,000 chimney fires caused $23 million in property damage.

Early Quincy Point Schoolhouses

[From a 1928 newspaper report by Arthur Newcomb, City Councillor and School Committee man]

Before 1800, the first school house was built on East Howard St., by members of the community. This one room building measured 18 x 24 feet. In 1834 it was moved across the street and used as a tenement.

In 1808 a second small frame building was put up on the "Washington School" lot now occupied by Pagnano Towers. This structure was moved to the corner of South St. in 1829 where it was used to house a store, post office and "bookmaker's shop." A larger building was erected in its place.

In 1834 the East Howard St. lot was enlarged and a 25 x 35 foot building was constructed by the school district.

The second Washington St. schoolhouse was moved to a location opposite South St. in 1856. This building was used for a public hall and various stores for a number of years. A

Something Special About Quincy Point

There's something about Quincy Point that grabs you and really never lets you go.

It's an invisible but sturdy bond that makes anyone fortunate enough to have grown up in the Point a Pointer forever -- regardless of where life may take them.

A twin celebration this Sunday should rekindle many fond memories for those who went to school in Quincy Point during the past 60 years.

The Daniel Webster School is marking its 60th anniversary and Point Junior its 50th at a 2 to 4 p.m. reunion-like open house at the complex.

I don't know too much about the Webster School, having spent my elementary education years at the Pollard School. But Point Junior is my alma mater [class of '39] and I remember it well, and with affection.

Point Junior, to me symbolizes what Quincy Point is all about: People -- people from many, many ethnic backgrounds going to school together and living side by side as friends and good neighbors. No riots. No name calling. No insults.

They came from various sections of Quincy Point -- the "melting pot" of Quincy: Italians, Jews, Lebanese, Moslems, Scots, Irish, Syrian, English, Chinese, Swedish, Greeks, etc., etc.

We had them, A to Z: the Alexanders, Anderson, Ashs, Bonanis, Bricks, Bridses, Browns, Burkes, Calabros, Carmods, Castlemans, Cutlers, Daleys, Deveaus, Digiacomos, DiGravios, DiTullios, Draichios, Elstobs, Engs, Faiellas, Fantucchios, Farquhars, Feldmans, Ferrises, Fleischers, Galbraiths, Georges, Gillises, Hajjars, Haddads, Hannas, Hassans, Hawcos, Hills, Igos, Irishs, Johnsons, Kanavoses, Kourys, Lanes, Lambs, Levines, Louirios, MacAndrewes, MacDonalds, Marellas, Marianos, McCalls, MacLuskeys, Monacos, Mullaneys, Nankins, Nicosias, Nourses, Noonans, Oliverios, Omars, Ostrowskis, Panepintos, Paoluccis, Papiles, Pecces, Pages, Pompeos, Petersons, Ranieris, Rileys, Riccis, Ramseys, Rizzos, Runiuses, Russells, Saldis, Sandonatos, Scrimshaws, Shaheens, Silvers, Smiths, Steeles, Stones, Sweeneys, Syrioses, Tantillos, Telegenetskys, Tobeys, Tochinskys, Trubianos, Vincents, Walshs, Wildings, Wilsons, Zaversons, And, in between, a lot more.

We didn't judge the other kid by his religion or nationality. But how he could hit a baseball, throw a football or whether he was a nice guy or she a good girl.

We have heard a lot recently about brotherhood and the ecumenical movement. As kids in Quincy Point we were living it before we knew what the words meant.

Dr. Sid Cutler, the dentist, was in the class of January, 1931 at Point Junior and recalls the memorial services at sundown at nearby Beth Israel Synagogue.

"I remember playing ball in the school yard when it was time to go to the services. You need 10 people at the services. I remember a couple of times when we needed one more to make 10. Red [Charles] Prout played ball with us and we would ask him to come to the service with us. I can still see him sitting there with a yamulka on his head."

That religious tolerance and brotherhood, incidentally, is still much evident today. Quincy Point is the only place in New England -- perhaps the nation if not the world -- where you can see within a half-mile radius: a Catholic Church [St. Joseph's], a Protestant church [Quincy Point Congregational], a synagogue [Beth Israel] and an Islamic mosque.

Who could ever forget Henry T. Prario who was principal of both the Point and Webster schools? He was a tough disciplinarian. You didn't horse around. You came to school to learn. You learned.

Anyone who went to Point during his principalship from 1928 to 1956 will always remember his famed motto: "Always give it the extra ounce." He meant, of course, an extra ounce of effort. A lot of people came out of Quincy Point to go through life doing just that.

Who could forget the teachers? They took a personal interest in you. If you seemed to have a natural talent, they tried to steer you in that direction. If you had a problem, they were there after school to talk with you and counsel you. Or work with you to bring up your grades.

I fondly remember teachers like John Walsh who later became principal of North Quincy High School, Margaret Haley, Marjorie Moles, Relenza Manchester, Dave Meany and Amy Birge. And, of course, Bill Bowyer, an outstanding football and basketball coach and gym teacher. And boy, how he could sting you with a wet towel, you-know-where, when you were fooling around and shouldn't.

I fondly remember Miss Manchester riding around the classroom as we learned "The Highway Man". I can still recite most of it today, thanks to her. And, "The Merchant of Venice", with its "quality of Mercy...". And how she acquainted us with adventurer Richard Hallaburton who climbed the Matterhorn and when he reached the top, looked down and uttered those famous words: "Now I can spit a mile."

Those school years were fun years.

None of us had much in the line of luxuries growing up in Quincy Point. Rich people didn't live there. Nobody handed us anything. Nobody had anything to hand.

In our neighborhood we made it through the summer playing baseball with one bat and one ball. When the bat broke, we taped it. When the cover came off the ball, we taped that.

I remember playing football in the fall with a sugar bag stuffed with leaves. No helmets, no other equipment.

We learned to work at an early age carrying newspapers, setting up pins in bowling alleys, caddying, or picked up a little change collecting and selling hunks of junk or cashing in tonic bottles. No litter in those days.

Maybe this is why we who grew up in Quincy Point, fondly remember it. Maybe this is what makes us Pointers forever. And proud to be one.

I wouldn't trade those years growing up in Quincy Point and going to Point Junior for anything in the world.

A lot of us will be going home Sunday.

The Point-Webster Complex: A Chr

By CHARLES V. HICKEY

Assistant Principal

From about 1915 to 1930, the expansion of public schools in Quincy was continuous.

In all areas of the city new buildings were erected, sometimes three or four simultaneously. After 1910, it became clear that there was a need for additional classrooms in Ward 2, especially in the northern part of the district.

A new school was authorized and construction was started in 1915 after some disagreement about location. The naming of the school also was a subject of controversy. After considerable debate, the name "Daniel Webster" was chosen from five recommended.

The choice is said to have been a compromise. One group proposed the name, "Thomas B. Pollard" in honor of the man who had been principal of the Washington School since 1887. Another group recommended "Bigelow" after an old neighborhood family. Perhaps because Mr. Pollard was still living and serving as a principal, his name was not chosen. However, he was named principal of the new school in addition to his duties at the Washington School.

The Daniel Webster School opened Sept. 12, 1917, a week after other schools in the city. The delay was due to the late delivery of furnishings caused by a railroad backup in West Concord. The land and construction costs were $137,900.

Of the original 16 teachers, Miss Alice Ash of Quincy and Miss Margaret Shyne of Woodbury, Connecticut, are still living. Miss Ash tells us that a starting salary at that time was $500 for a 10-month year. Some 574 pupils enrolled opening day and some had to be accommodated on folding chairs.

In June of 1918 the first eighth grade class was graduated. Thirty pupils participated in that commencement which was the completion of education for many as evidenced by the elaborate diplomas awarded. One of the graduates was Miss Bess Aronson who served in the Quincy Public Schools as an elementary teacher for many years. One interesting note is that there were no Italian names among the 30.

During the years of eight grade grammar schools, graduations were held in January and June with graduating classes at the Webster ranging from six to 38.

Competition among schools in sports was intense and Daniel Webster boasted several championship soccer teams. They won the city title for three consecutive years and retired the trophy.

In 1924, Mr. Pollard was listed as being absent due to illness and Henry T. Prario of the Adams and Cranch Schools was acting principal. Mr. Pollard died in 1925. After his death, the so-called "Government School" on Southern Artery was named in his honor.

A native of the Quincy Point community, Roger F. Holmes was named Master.

As expansion in the city continued, school population grew rapidly. The school committee began to seek new forms of organization to alleviate crowding. A movement was growing across the land to establish "junior" high schools, and after several years of study, this was the course settled on to solve Quincy's problems. When the new high school opened on Coddington St., the Hancock St. building became Central Junior High and some Webster pupils began the daily hike to that school.

For a 20-month period ending in the fall of 1928, three additional junior high schools were built: North, South, and Quincy Point.

Quincy Point was unique in that it was designed as an addition to the Daniel Webster School. Construction started in 1926 and the school opened its doors Sept. 5, 1928, with a price tag of $364,851. Mr. Prario was named Master of both schools.

The year 1927 was the final year for eight grades at the Daniel Webster. Enrollment was at the highest point ever, 703. One teacher in those years, Miss Nora Mullarkey of West Quincy recalls a class of 52 in primary grades.

The opening enrollment of Point Junior High was 639 which gradually rose to a peak of 752 in 1932. Combined with 555 Daniel Webster students, this represented the all time high population of 1,307! After this, the numbers fell and rose according to depression drops and post-war booms. The combined staffs ranged from as few as 31 to as many as 41.

In 1956, Theodore R. Silva was appointed principal to replace Mr. Prario who retired after more than 30 years as an administrator in the Quincy schools. Shortly after this, Broad Meadows Junior High School opened, relieving Point of the students from the Germantown section. The realignment of junior high schools now made Quincy Point smallest by far of the junior highs.

Point-Webster is unique in the city in several ways. The closely knit community served by this complex still maintains much "old world" character, and pride in and support of the school is one hallmark of that community spirit.

In 1972, Mr. Silva retired and Joseph M. Long was named principal of the Point-Webster complex.

In the past few years, considerable sums have been expended in remodeling and refurbishing the school plant. The auditorium has been converted into a media center. The building has been painted, tiled and otherwise brightened inside, and all student lockers have been replaced. There is new furniture throughout. Budget plans for the current year include the resurfacing of the paved playground areas. This past week a group from the community appeared before the School Committee with a petition for a "tot" playground on the property.

As the schools of the Point-Webster complex continue into their second 50 years with a population in the vicinity of 400 elementary and 400 junior high pupils, it seems assured that this institution will continue to provide quality education to the community for many years to come.

POINT IS KNOWN for its outstanding basketball teams. This is one of them, 1931. From the left, front, the first player is unidentified. But in order, next to him are Ollie Pinzari, John Smith, Joe Collins, Frank Kelly, -----Giglio, Russell Sullivan, Jim McCollum. new, two-story frame structure was erected on the school lot at a cost of $8,000. In 1874, this building was enlarged by putting an addition underneath! In order to fill the expanded school, the East Howard St. school was closed.

Near 1900 the upper stories seemed to be slipping off the addition and demands were made for a new schoolhouse. A 12-room building with an assembly hall was recommended at a cost of $70,000. Due to a mistake by the Council, an order for $55,000 was passed and the hall and two classrooms had to be deleted.

The tremendous growth of Quincy in the years leading up to World War I made many new school buildings necessary and Quincy Point felt this impact as much, if not more than other parts of the community. Two schools, the Daniel Webster and the "Government School" were necessary to meet the needs of increasing population in the area.

Raymondi Calls Meeting On Point Hamburg Franchise

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi has called a meeting of area residents for 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 24, at Fore River Clubhouse to discuss a permit to build a Wendy's Hamburg franchise in Quincy Point.

The application for the permit to erect a 40 by 80-foot block and brick building at 474-502 Washington St., and 1-5 Baxter Ave., was withdrawn earlier this month when the applicant's attorney was unable to attend a Board of Appeals hearing.

The applicant indicated he would be back before the board shortly.

Raymondi said his meeting will give residents an opportunity to speak with the principals in the franchise and look over the plans for the building.

He said it was his opinion that a fast food chain operation is not an appropriate use for the site.

Drinking Age

The Massachusetts House finished its version of the State Budget last Thursday. The biggest debate centered around the question of local aid to cities and towns. The Legislature is committed to local aid to help ease your property tax burden.

The three ways to funnel aid to cities and towns were:

1. Take over the full County Court costs in one year.

2. Return monies directly to cities and towns through the Lottery or Chapter 70 formula and;

3. The Collin's Amendment which called for a revision and fair distribution of school aid through a new formula. The Senate will now work on their version of the Budget.

The House will now start working on a number of important legislative matters. This week the House will consider two very important issues.

The Common Cause Ethics petition was defeated in the Senate. The Senate in turn substituted their own Ethics proposal Senate Bill No. 1540. The main provision of this act is its financial disclosure for elected officials.

The other important issue is a bill that's currently before the legislature to raise the drinking age. I would appreciate hearing from constituents on this matter. There are a number of possible alternatives.

The drinking age could be raised to 19, 20, or 21. It is possible that the drnking age for bars and lounges will remain at 18 and liquor store sales would go to 21 years of age.

I can be reached by calling 328-0900 or in the State House at 727-7035. I hold office hours at my district office, 71 Billings Road on Tuesdays and Wednesday evenings 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

$5 Million Culvert Called Major Rehabilitation Step

"The first big step in the rehabilitation of the city is here upon us," said the Rev. Bedros Baharian.

The particular step was the signing, last Friday, by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis of a $5 million bond issue that will permit the MDC to build a massive mile and a half long culvert under the proposed Burgin Parkway Extension.

The significance of that is that now the extension can be built even though the Army Corps of Engineers' Town Brook flood control project in South Quincy is still several years away.

If the culvert were not built now, then the extension would have to be torn up and the culvert constructed when the Army Corps of Engineers is ready to move on flood control.

"The culvert and road will be in the design stage within the next 60 days," promised the Rev. Mr. Baharian, who is the citywide development director, among other things.

It was the second time within a year that Gov. Dukakis was in Quincy to sign a money bill and he took notice of the fact amid a festive atmosphere in the City Hall Council Chamber.

"I hope you'll have me back, Arthur," he told the Mayor, "again and again for ground-breakings and ribbon cuttings."

"Anytime you want to keep coming back with $5 million I'll have you back seven days a week," cracked Tobin.

"If we put any more money into this city it's going to sink," said the Governor, not to be topped by a mere state senator.

Dukakis said his presence in Quincy "is simply another reaffirmation of the first concentrated effort in the history of this country by any state government to focus on the very special problems of our older cities and towns."

"That this city and others like it across the state are beginning to show exciting signs of rebirth and revitalization is a testimony to what we have already done," he said.

"But it also speaks volumes for what we must continue to do both by way of direct assistance to property taxpayers and by specific projects like this one which will enhance plans for revitalization.

"We're not just scattering dollars all over the place in a kind of mindless way anymore.

"We're trying to make sure that when the MDC floats a bond issue or when the MBTA builds a transit extension we're doing so in a way that is going to enhance the development policies of the communities.

"That's the way we're going to build a healthy Quincy."

Dukakis, tastefully attired in a brown suit with a tan shirt and wide maroon tie, came to Quincy by way of the MBTA.

"I'm grateful to Joe Toomey and others at the MBTA who cleaned up the Quincy Station this morning so that this governor was able to walk through that station with a sense of pride in his favorite transit system," he said.

He was greeted on McIntyre Mall, beside City Hall, by the North Quincy High School band

$235,770 Contract Signed For MDC Wollaston Beach Facility

Sen. Arthur H. Tobin (D-Quincy) announces that a $235,770.85 contract has been awarded to the C.M.C.A. Contracting Co. of Dedham to build an MDC facility on the old Kimberly site on Wollaston Beach.

Tobin cited MDC Commissioner John Snedeker and Michael W. Morrissey, James A. Sheets and Thomas Brownell (all D-Quincy) for their involvement in making the site a reality.

The facility will include a bathhouse, four lifeguard stations, rest rooms, including handicap facilities, as well as an office for the beach manager and lifeguard changing stations.

MDC officials have told the Quincy delegation that temporary facilities have been installed at the site to provide interim services for the coming season.

Completion date for the project is scheduled for the summer of 1979.

Volunteers To Clean Up Wollaston Beach Saturday

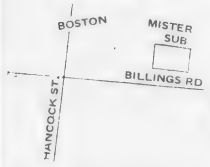
Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy) announces there will be a volunteer clean-up of Wollaston Beach, Saturday.

"I have received numerous complaints from area residents about the condition of the beach, especially the glass," Morrissey said. "The MDC has been working on the beach for the summer ahead."

Morrissey wrote to MDC Commissioner John Snedeker to ask that the MDC supply trucks, equipment, trash containers and rakes.

"The only way that the beach will ever get picked up and rid of all the glass, is for a large number of volunteers to pitch in to pick up the beach," Morrissey said.

Morrissey asked that those wishing to volunteer for the clean-up to meet across from the Wollaston Boulevard bowling alley at 10 a.m. Saturday. Volunteers of all ages are needed.



"This is the residents of Quincy's chance to make Wollaston Beach a better place," Morrissey said.

Post-War Babies Are Booming New Single-Family Homes

By Philip J. Lawrence, President

Colonial Federal Savings

and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham

8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

The baby boom that followed World War II has not only skewed the demographic charts but has had significant effects upon our nation's social and economic profile.

This group has bulged the population with young families seeking their own homes. Combined with the ready availability of funds for mortgage financing, liberalized mortgage-lending policies that take cognizance of a second income as part of the family financial pool, and the widespread advice that housing is a good hedge against inflation, this market has caused a sharp rise in total unit sales of single-family homes.

While existing home sales rose by 22% in 1976, new single homes increased by a healthy 17%, accounting for a 20-year record in the annual rate of single-family housing starts. This latter booming market has increased current starts almost 50% above 1974 levels.

Whereas the customary distribution of new home purchases has been about 50-50 between first-timers and repeaters, the current picture shows that about two-thirds are now repurchasers using their home equities to upgrade their housing.

Whether cause or effect, the result is that new homes are getting larger, with more extras. Two-thirds of the new homes built in 1976 offered two or more bathrooms. In 1970 and 1971, only about half of newly constructed homes had two or more baths, and they lacked about 200 square feet of the average space in 1976 new homes.

Another phenomenon of the housing market has been a growing respect for the existing home with its "old-fashioned" characteristics. The concept of neighborhood clearance of bygone years has been replaced by one of rehabilitation with gratifying results. It would be extravagantly expensive [if such artisans could still be found] to put into new homes the hand-carved woodwork, sculptured plaster, stained glass, and other amenities encountered in older homes. Young couples especially have taken with zest to the task of restoring these well-built dwellings, with results that have prompted newspapers and magazines to publicize their accomplishments.

In this responsibility for financing the nation's housing, savings and loans and mutual savings banks continue to lead the way. Over the past two years, these institutions have accounted for 60% of all one-family home mortgage originations. Commercial banks at 20% and mortgage companies at 16% are far in arrears.

Deficit Bond Issue Takes First Step

"I can't justify a vote tonight. When we have something as serious as this we have to have a presentation of the facts."

"I will vote for advertising," said Councillor James A. Sheets, "but this in no way indicates that I will vote for the bond issue.

"We can clear up our immediate financial woes in terms of this kind of deficit financing but what happens as we continue to face higher costs of government, 87 per cent of which is out of our control?

"What happens next year when everyone who sits around this table has to seek re-election and the cost of government dictates an $8 or $10 tax rate increase?

"There will be a great temptation to fall back into the same habits of manipulating the sources of revenue and walking away with a tax rate that is acceptable to the people."

"Deficit financing is a fact of life," countered Lydon. "Once the city has taken a direction to begin straightening up its house, I'll start a January review process to see that the department heads live within their budgets."

"I assumed," said McCauley, "that we would put off borrowing until the last possible moment so that we could see the whole financial picture. It appears that things will not be much brighter.

"I will support the motion to advertise. The vote tonight will not commit us to borrowing but the moment of truth will come on June 5."

Harold still couldn't see what the rush was but the Council voted to advertise anyway. It was a voice vote with the only audible dissent from Harold.

Mayor Tobin said he had difficulty understanding the Council's reluctance on the bond issue.

"What's the alternative?" he told The Sun. "If there is no bond issue and they are not cutting a fully funded budget then you're going to give the people a $40 tax rate increase.

"If there's any self-serving political statements to be made I've been around too long and I can accept that but someone had better come up with an alternative solution.

"That's the bottom line: Give me an alternative solution."

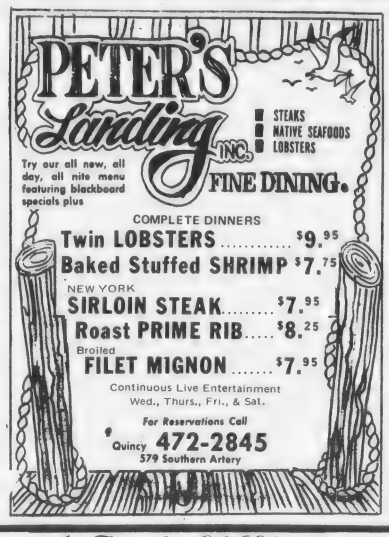
wages," said Ricca. "We put up the money for materials. We can't supervise the project. We can't determine if the money was used in a proficient manner.

"All we can do is watch to make sure everything is documented properly. People worked on the project. The materials were delivered. Somebody signed for it. The bills were paid.

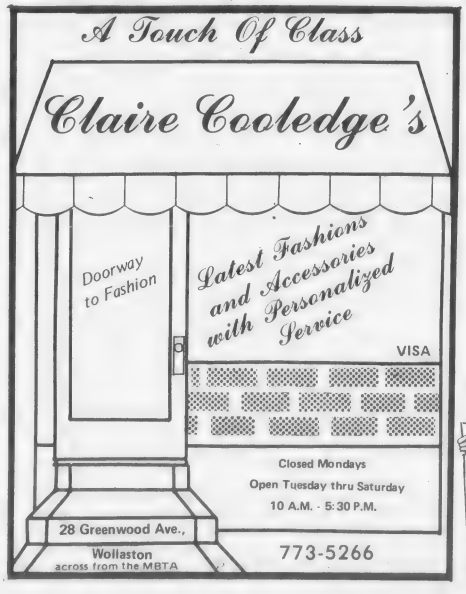
"We're not in the construction business. We're in the employment business."

Ricca took exception to a quote attributed to him by The Patriot Ledger, in a follow-up story, which said:

"It's not so much whether the project is completed as whether workers are working and filling out their payslips."



"What I did say," he said, "is that the first consideration is to put people to work. The secondary consideration is the benefit that is derived for the neighborhood. Filling out payslips isn't the only thing. That made it sound ridiculous.



"We're not insensitive. We like to see the money well spent. But the primary purpose of CETA is employment. It's not to provide the cities and towns with cultural projects or extra workers. These are secondary benefits."

Ricca said CETA chose to fund the amphitheater project "because it was labor oriented. It was easy to start up. It didn't call for sophisticated help. It provided employment for unskilled people."

He said Quincy's chances of getting further CETA funding to finish the project "are excellent – if the funding is there. Right now it is not there."

"If there is unspent money around in other Ceta areas," he said, "I'm sure the city would be allowed to submit another proposal. I'm sure it would receive favorable attention because it would be labor-oriented. It would put people to work."

In attendance at the signing was the local legislative delegation: Reps. James A. Sheets, Robert A. Cerasoli, Thomas F. Brownell, and Michael W. Morrissey (all D-Quincy) and Elizabeth N. Metayer (D-Braintree).

Also on hand were City Councillors Daniel G. Raymondi, Paul D. Harold, John J. Lydon Jr., Francis X. McCauley, Joanne Condon and Sheets.

The Quincy and North Quincy baseball teams have been knocked out of tournament contention, but the Presidents did even their series with the Raiders last week.

Quincy topped North Quincy, 5-3, before a large crowd in the first night game at Veterans Memorial Stadium, but it took a great catch by Mark Giordani, with the bases loaded, to save the bacon for the Presidents.

Although Quincy's Tom LaBlue (4-0) struggled through the first six innings, he took a 5-0 lead into the bottom of the seventh. Harry Donaghue and Mike McCormick, both two for four, singled and John Wilkinson, also two for four, tripled in both runners. Here Coach Bud Mosher brought Ray Coscia in to pitch.

Coscia walked the first batter but he struck out Kurt O'Sullivan for the second out. An error on what would have been the final out filled the bases and Bob Biagini, who earlier this year had tripled off the fence in left, hit one which appeared on its way to the fence again but Giordani raced toward the 350-foot mark and, with his shoulder turned, grabbed the ball just in front of the fence to end the game.

Jim Maze had two hits for Quincy. Billy Deitsch had a triple and John Houten, Mike Bondarick, Dean Prescott, LaBlue, Dan Walsh and Brian Jolley had the other hits.

Donaghue, McCormick and Wilkinson had two hits apiece and Dave King one for North.

Brockton knocked Quincy out of the tournament with a 7-3 win later in the week. Earlier the Presidents had bowed to Brookline, 8-3.

North breezed to a 9-4 win over Cambridge Rindge and Latin, in which McCormick had three hits, Wilkinson and King two apiece and Donaghue, Bob McCabe, Biagini and pitcher Gary Earle one each. Earle gave up seven hits and struck out 10.

However, the Raiders' tournament chances went out the window with successive losses to Quincy and Newton North (8-2).

Playing out the string, North Quincy hosts Weymouth North and Quincy plays at Weymouth South today (Thursday) and the season ends Monday with Cambridge at Quincy and North at Waltham.

Messina Expected Back At Wing For St. Anselm's

Paul Messina, former Archbishop Williams High School four-sport athlete from North Quincy, has completed his second year of play on the St. Anselm's College hockey team.

Messina's experience is at wing, but injuries to key defensive players necessitated his conversion to defense. A versatile athlete, Messina had little trouble making the transition. He was especially effective at initiating an offensive charge from the defensive zone.

Messina had six goals and 10 assists for the year. The Hawks were the seventh seed in the ECAC playoffs, posting an 11-11-1 regular seas n record. They lost to eventual NCAA champion Merrimack in the first round of the tournament.

It is expected that Coach Alan Davis will move Messina back up front next year. "It will be nice to know that Paul will be able to go back on defense if the occasion arises," commented the third year coach.

Messina also starts on the Hawk baseball team. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Messina of 10 Appleton St.

Rosanne O'Hare On Villanova Softball Team

Rosanne O'Hare of Quincy has recently completed her first season as a member of the Villanova varsity softball team.

A 5-7 freshman from Quincy, O'Hare participated in two of Villanova's 10 games this season.

A cheerleader for Notre Dame Academy in Hingham, she tried out for the Villanova softball squad this spring and made the varsity. She appeared as pinch-hitter in the Salisbury State game, and played shortstop for three innings in the final game of the season against Swarthmore.

Though she failed to pick up a hit in either game, she did score twice against Swarthmore after reaching base on an error and walking. Villanova defeated Swarthmore, 23-8, to end the season with an even 5-5 record.

A physics major, she is one of six children of Mr. and Mrs. James O'Hare.

Conti Hurls No-Hitter For Colonial's 5th Win

Joe Conti Jr. pitched a no-hitter, struck out 13 and walked four as Colonial Federal improved its undefeated record to 5-0 in the Quincy Junior Baseball League with a 5-1 win over Kiwanis.

A fine defensive play by Steve Turner in the third inning saved Conti's no-hitter. Jim McNamara also pitched well for Kiwanis, giving up only four hits.

Keohane's blanked Foley Chrysler-Plymouth, 5-0, for its first win as Chuck Jaehnig pitched a no-hitter. Jaehnig struck out seven and walked three.

Jimmy Grassi had two hits and threw out three runners attempting to steal. Jaehnig also had two hits as did Denis Cronin. Danny Santry, Tim Morrison, Kevin Scibilio, Tommy Barron and Mike Canavan each had a hit.

Quincy, North Meet Friday

The Quincy and North Quincy track teams will wind up their Suburban League seasons Friday with their annual meet at 3:15 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The rivals will compete in the all-league meet at Newton Tuesday and will take part in the meet trials on May 27, with hopes of qualifying for the all-state meet June 3 and the New England meet June 10.

Lou Tozzi's North team, following five straight wins, found itself undermanned against the three top teams, Brockton, Weymouth South and unbeaten league champion Newton North and bowed to each.

In the latest meet Newton defeated North, 81-64, as it had far too much depth for North, just as Brockton and Weymouth South had.

Colin McEachern won the 440 for the Raiders. John Saville took the mile, Mike Barrett won the two-mile, Dan McIntyre took the low hurdles, Mike Gallagher won the discus and Jim Hanrahan won the javelin.

North's mile relay team of McIntyre, Jim Alban, John McGuiggan and McEachern also won.

Vin Lorenzano paced Quincy's small squad to its first win, 82-63, over Brookline, by winning the 220 and long jump and running with the winning 440-yard relay team.

Peter Griffin won the triple jump, took second in the 100 and ran on the winning relay team. Roy Higgins ran his best 440 ever to win that event and took second in the shot put.

Dennis Campbell equaled his best jump in the pole vault and won at 10 feet. Steve Cacciatore took second in the 220 and third in the javelin and ran on the winning relay team. Joe Irvine won the half mile, Vin Harte won the shot put, Kevin Zambruno took the javelin and Nichols won the discus.

Adult Tennis Lessons Underway

The Quincy Park-Recreation Board is conducting adult tennis lessons.

The lessons, consisting of fundamental instructions for the beginner, will run for six weeks with 1½ hour sessions.

Classes begin Monday at the following times and locations:

Monday, Faxon Park, 6 to 7 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday, Faxon, 12:30 p.m.; Saturday, Pond Street Courts, 10:30 a.m. and noon.

A registration fee of $6 will be payable upon registering which will cover all six weeks of lessons. The Recreation Dept. will supply tennis balls and will have some racquets available. Any Quincy resident interested in registering for the lessons can do so at the Recreation office in the JFK Health Center, 1120 Hancock St.

Raiderettes Seek 5th Win Friday

The improving North Quincy girls' softball team added a pair of wins last week to raise its record to 4-6.

The Raiderettes will play at Waltham Friday, will host Weymouth North Monday and will finish up next Thursday against Quincy.

North defeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 15-9, as Donna Shaw hit a bases loaded triple following singles by Jane McGuiggan and Patty Bellotti and a walk to Pat Negus. Negus also had a two-run triple and Lisa Henderson had a triple. Jeanette Nolan was the winning pitcher.

The Raiderettes also topped Brookline, 14-11, with Nolan again the winning pitcher. Maureen Santry had a two-run triple and Negus, Shaw and Karen Lydon had doubles.

City Sets Rejuvenation Goals For Tomorrow

them relaxed a bit?

BAHARIAN - Laws and regulations are like pendulums. People feel we need more restraints and they put them in and then the pendulum swings all the way to the other side. I'd like to see it somewhere in the middle. For example, in order to build any kind of a major building today you need an environmental impact study. All it basically does is add thousands of dollars to the cost of the building and delays construction six months or a year. Yes, I'd like to see them relaxed.

SUN - You sound as if you don't think the environment is a legitimate concern.

BAHARIAN - All I know is that, for the many millions of years people have lived on this earth, we managed not only to survive but thrive in the environment. But all of a sudden we're getting gung-ho on something that is still very hard to understand. I think the answer to environmental impact is not so much to try to restrict development but rather to put more time into cleaning up pollution. If we can somehow clear up the pollutants that are in oil or switch from oil to an energy form that doesn't create any pollution, then we're starting to make some headway.

SUN - The title you have in the city used to be "downtown" development director. Now it's "citywide." What does that imply?

BAHARIAN - The job I have .. which I should remind you is at a buck a year ...

SUN - No overtime?

BAHARIAN - No overtime. I worked during the snow removal and they thought of paying me out at a dollar a year they couldn't figure out what it would come to for 40 or 50 hours. Anyway, the job I have is a relatively new one. It was first created only six or seven years ago. Basically my responsibility is, one, to be a salesman and try to sell future developers the advisability of building in the city, and, two, to act as advisor to the Mayor whenever projects are proposed. The Mayor feels that he would like to have me have this responsibility citywide rather than just downtown. We hope to see things done all over the city.

SUN - Is there anything in the works now involving the centers in Wollaston and Norfolk Downs?

BAHARIAN - Yes. We are going to do a minor face-lifting on Billings Rd in Norfolk Downs. The architects have been working on it and this summer the work will be done. It will include better lighting, trees, benches, a park-like atmosphere on both sides of Billings Rd. This is federally funded. If we can come up with more federal funding we hope to do Hancock St. on both sides of Billings Rd. and something cosmetic on the Wollaston area maybe two or three years from now.

SUN - The LaRaia administration had so elaborate plans for redevelopment of the downtown area. Where does that plan stand with the Tobin administration?

BAHARIAN - The important impact of the LaRaia plan was that it was a plan to do something downtown. That administration recognized that something needed to be done. This administration also recognizes that something needs to be done. The plan has not been scrapped. We are using parts of it that make sense at the moment as potential development comes along. The plan is not to be implemented the way it was shown simply because no plan is as valid even a year after it comes out as it was the time it was made. But I don't think we should knock it. It was an idea to show that something ought to be done. We're following that idea and we're going to develop wherever we can get a developer really interested. The East-West Highway, for example, is a darned good idea and this administration is following it completely.

SUN - Some comments when the plan came out were that the early phases were fine but it sort of trailed off into "pie in the sky."

BAHARIAN - Any plan that is going to cost $300 or $400 million has to have a lot of "pie in the sky" in it. I think the important thing is to get the Upland Rd. Extension and the East-West Highway started. Then we have something to talk to developers about and the other pieces start falling into place. Until the engineering work is done on the East-West Highway we don't know exactly where it's going to go and therefore we don't know exactly how much space we have on any given corner.

SUN - Where does it stand now?

BAHARIAN - The environmental impact study has been done on the Upland Rd. Extension and it's gone to the Army Corps of Engineers. It's about ready to be released for public hearings.

SUN - And the East-West Highway?

BAHARIAN - It will go across the Gilchrist Building, which will be demolished, and probably underneath the Kincaide's Building, which also will be demolished. My hope is that it will go under Hancock St. and not intersect with it and come out at McGrath Highway in the area of the American Legion post. There is a difference in grade of 17 feet between McGrath Highway and Hancock St. which would make it very easy to go underneath.

SUN - Where does that stand?

BAHARIAN - The city hasn't yet let the engineering contract. Hopefully we'll be able to do it by July 1. The reason we haven't done it already is that, first, the environmental impact study hasn't been approved and, second, we've been working with the State Department of Public Works on the financing. We have it about committed. My hope is that we can get the East-West Highway and the Upland Rd. Extension completed in about 3½ years. I'm looking for a June 1, 1981, target for opening.

SUN - What other parts of the LaRaia plan are being considered? I'm thinking particularly of a new store in place of the Gilchrist Building in the parking lot.

BAHARIAN - Walter Hannon and I have been working with about six developers to see if we can bring some new life into that area. We have some developers very seriously interested but before anyone is going to be willing to make an agreement to do anything we've got to get the contracts signed for the Upland Rd. Extension because with access to the core city from the south nobody's interested.

SUN - The Upland Rd. Extension -- I suppose we should call it the Burgin Parkway Extension now -- where does it stand?

BAHARIAN - It's been in the talking stages for almost 12 years. We hope to get it built in the next two years. The State Department of Public Works has practically guaranteed to pay for construction. The Army Corps of Engineers studied the flooding problem in Southwest Quincy two years ago. It would be alleviated by laying a new conduit from Southwest Quincy roughly to where Upland Rd. Extension and the new East-West Highway are going to cross. From that point they would drill 100 feet down under the city to Town River. As they approached Town River they would drill up again and we'd have what they call a "siphon" that would take the water out of the area whenever there was a flood. We're ready to start going ahead with design and with what little landtaking there is. I'm hoping to get the whole thing done by June of 1981.

SUN - There is a problem arising over a proposed entrance to the South Quincy MBTA station from Independence Ave. What is your view of that?

BAHARIAN - My personal view is that the entrance ought to be there. I think the very residents who are protesting it are the ones who are going to regret it if it isn't there. I can't see it creating a traffic jam. I think we should build the entrance. If it is a problem then it can be closed. But if you don't build it you're never going to be able to build it afterwards. I'm not reflecting the administration's point of view but I personally happen to be strongly for that entrance being built.

SUN - Are there any plans for a parking garage in the Hancock Parking Area?

BAHARIAN - There are no present plans for a parking garage in either the Hancock or the Ross Parking Areas but if we can get the development that we are anticipating there will be plans.

SUN - What developments are you anticipating?

BAHARIAN - We're dickering now with a store which hopefully will go 75,000 square feet of floor space. It would go in diagonally across Hancock Street from Sears Roebuck. We have another store that's interested in 40,000 square feet of mercantile space. We're talking to developers who are interested in building office buildings here.

SUN - I've heard long-range possibilities of Quincy becoming the county seat with the county offices in downtown Quincy. Is that a possibility?

BAHARIAN - There has been some informal discussion about the Superior Courthouse locating in the city. Dedham doesn't want it. But I don't think that means the county seat would move here. You don't have to have a county seat to have a courthouse. Several counties have two Superior Courthouses but one community is the county seat.

Cumberland Seeks Food Store-Gas Station License

Cumberland Farms' proposal to open two combined food stores and gasoline stations in Quincy was met with some hesitation when presented to the Licensing Board on Tuesday.

Atty. Neil Kerstein, representing VSH Realty, Inc., the construction branch of the convenience food chain, assured the board that the two operations would be handled by different personnel. It was pointed out that one man would handle the gasoline and another would be in charge of food sales.

City Councillors Stephen McGrath and Leo Kelly appeared to protest the petition. One of the stores would be located at 470 Sea St., Adams Shore, and the other at 604-614 Hancock St.

The petition specifically asked permission for storage of 800 gallons of oil and anti-freeze above ground and 24,000 gallons of gasoline underground at each site.

Members of the board expressed some doubt about the sale of gasoline and food in the same outlet.

The hearing was continued for one week to permit time for people in the neighborhood to express opinions to the board.

Lydon Suggests Radios For Snow Fighting Equipment

City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. has asked the Mayor to see what he can do about installing radios in city-owned and hired snow removal equipment for better coordination during storms.

Lydon, who is chairman of the Council's Finance Committee, said that city equipment was not properly utilized during the storms of last winter because it lacked such equipment.

Lydon also requested that a line item "trees --- capital outlay" be specified in the Forestry Department budget if state figures of reimbursement are favorable.

He said several councillors have told him that they have had requests for tree plantings pending for more than a year.

WHERE'S THE 'SCRIVENER'?

Much of the tradition and ceremony has disappeared from the business of transferring real estate. You might enjoy learning how it used to be done in the old days.

The law has always regarded the transfer of real estate as one of the most solemn acts and thus a great deal of formality attended the transfer. In the early days of land tenure, transfer was accomplished by "livery of seizen" which literally, means transfer of possession.

The buyer and seller would go upon the land in question and there, in the presence of witnesses, the seller would take a clod of turf and a twig from a tree and hand it over to the buyer as a symbol or token of the transfer.

The transfer was then made a matter of record by having the "scrivener" [the person in the community who could write] do his thing and write out the transfer on a parchment and affix his seal.

If Everything Jells

Lydon Sees Possible $1-2 Tax Rate Hike

By TOM HENSHAW

City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., whose Finance Committee has been sweating over Mayor Tobin's $94.8 million budget for two weeks, says he sees the possibility of a $1 to $2 tax rate increase.

Lydon told The Quincy Sun Tuesday:

"If the whole financial plan works; if the bonding and the budget and the forecasts of receipts and things of that sort work out; I would see a $1 or $2 increase, no more than that."

The 1977-78 tax rate was $197.20 per thousand, having fluctuated wildly over the past decade depending upon who happened to be running for re-election that year.

Lydon said it is the aim of Mayor Tobin and the Finance Committee to stabilize the Quincy tax rate over at least the next five years.

"That doesn't mean a zero tax rate increase," he said. "We're going to have some increase simply because the cost of living is going up all the time.

"But I would say you are looking at just a few dollars tax raise and it's not a political year so I think that would reflect favorably on the City Council's action this year."

Pressed for a dollar figure, Lydon estimated a $1 to $2 hike.

Lydon said that, with only the Council on Aging and the Hospital budgets left for hearing, the Finance Committee has placed $1,588,252 on hold and trimmed $107,424 from the total.

Lydon defined "placed on hold" as items which the Committee has set aside for further consideration, chiefly capital outlay and new position requests.

The $21,778,549 hospital budget will be taken up Saturday, May 27, at 8:30 a.m. while the Council on Aging budget hearing has been put off indefinitely at the request of Councillors Leo J. Kelly and Joanne Condon.

Lydon explained that Kelly and Mrs. Condon, chairman and vice chairman of the Senior Citizens Activities Committee,

Drinking Crackdown Continues

Wollaston Beach 'World's Longest Bar'

MDC police arrested 71 persons on drinking charges on Wollaston Beach over the weekend and promised to continue their campaign against illegal tippling right through the summer.

Meanwhile, Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy], in a call for action against the drinkers, referred to Wollaston Beach as "the world's longest bar."

MDC officer Frank Muolo said 43 persons were arrested Friday night and 28 on Saturday on Wollaston Beach for violation of Rule 5, which forbids possession or consumption of booze on the beach.

Conviction is punishable by a fine of $50 plus court costs.

"We've been making arrests more and more in the past couple of years because drinking on the beach has really mushroomed with the lower drinking age," said Muolo.

"We started a little earlier this

Needs Help From Others

St. John's Pastor Aiding Vietnamese Family

By PETER BARNICLE

"Only a person who has lived in a communist controlled country can appreciate the generosity and freedom to be found in the United States," Nghia Lam commented recently as he sat in the rectory of St. John's Church, Quincy, with his wife and family.

Rev. William R. McCarthy, pastor of St. John's, has taken a special interest in the Vietnamese family which arrived in Quincy early in April after a harrowing odyssey from their homeland.

Lam, his pregnant wife, Anh Tran, their son, Hao, three, Mrs. Lam's sister, Phan Tran, 24, and her brothers, Quang, 13, and Minh, 12, reached Quincy with only the clothes on their back. Since then Fr. McCarthy, assisted by the St. Vincent de Paul Society, has been able to find them an apartment on Granite St., furnish it, and provide them with new clothes and other necessities for setting up a household.

It has been an expensive enterprise and Fr. McCarthy is appealing to people of goodwill to help him in defraying the costs. He has asked those interested to send donations in his name to St. John's Rectory, 21 Gay St., Quincy, MA 02169.

The Lams knew they were headed for Quincy when they left Saigon last October. Mrs. Lam recalled that she had a cousin living here and was able to contact him.

Phu Tran of Revere Rd, Quincy, said he didn't even know of the existence of his cousin when he received the first cable asking for information. He did know that he had been fortunate enough to get out from under the communist-dominated government in June, 1975, and started the procedure to

Declines To Endorse Metayer Bill

Chamber Seeks Speed-Up On MBTA Access Road Construction

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has declined to endorse a bill that would forbid the opening of the Quincy Adams and South Braintree MBTA stations until certain access roads are completed.

But Chamber directors voted to work with state and local agencies to hasten access road construction and get the MBTA and the state to assume responsibilities for traffic control until they are ready.

The Braintree Business Council had asked the Chamber to give its endorsement to the bill, which was filed by Rep. Elizabeth N. Metayer [D-Braintree]. It has been reported favorably by the Transportation committee.

The access roads involved are the Burgin Parkway [formerly Upland Rd] extension in Quincy and Ivory St., a new road adjacent to the South Braintree station.

"The directors felt that the bill was too broad," said Martha Reardon of the Chamber.

"They felt that the access roads for Route 3 and 128 are going to take too long to build and the focus ought to be on working to get Ivory St. and the Upland Rd Extension built as soon as possible."

A survey by the Central Transportation Planning Staff, a quasi-official cooperative in Boston, has indicated the following timetable for completion of the stations and roads:

August, 1979 - South Braintree station.

December, 1979 - Quincy Adams station.

April, 1980 - Ivory St. extended to Plain St., Braintree.

August, 1980 - Ramps from Route 128 to and from Quincy Adams station.

August, 1981 - Ramps from Route 3 to and from Quincy Adams station.

The Chamber, while refusing to support the Metayer bill, expressed "concern over the lack of coordination in the present plans" for completing the stations and the access roads, adding:

"The Chamber will work with city, town and state agencies to collapse the time frame required for the implementation of the permit reviews, hearings and other proceedings that are holding up construction so that Ivory St. and the Upland Rd Extension can open simultaneously with the opening of the stations.

"The Chamber will work with the MBTA and the Executive Office of Transportation and Construction [EOTC] to get traffic control assistance for the communities and a system of shuttles to and from the stations to relieve the traffic and provide for public safety in case there is a delay."

"We're going to try to do something that I don't think has ever been done before," said Miss Reardon.

"Since the MBTA and the EOTC have said that the roads will be open, we are going to try to make them responsible for any added costs of traffic control and shuttle buses which I think would be very useful."

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

Hydroponics is not a rare disease - it's an easy, fun way to grow plants in water in two steps. First, put plant in container. Two, add water. It's as simple as that and often is the answer for the person who is active, travels a lot, or is simply too busy to care for houseplants. Pick your spot and decide on an attractive container. Glass is beautiful and easy to keep clean whether clear or opaque. Some pretty stones at the bottom will anchor your plant or use a pinholder if your dish is shallow. Tepid water added when needed, a weak dose of fertilizer and a casual, moist dusting of the leaves will give you happy, healthy houseplants, "hydroponically" speaking.

NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 can help you select a perfect gift of fresh flowers or long lasting happy houseplants that will be appropriate for most any occasion. We constantly scour the market to make sure our flowers and plants are only the finest from the best sources available. If they are not up to our high standards, we just won't carry them. Delivery to your satisfaction is always assured. We are multi-lingual so we can assist you in French, Italian or Spanish. Hours: Mon. - Sat. 8-6, evenings by appointment.

Cumberland Opposed On Gas Stations-Food Shops

By PETER BARNICLE

Vigorous opposition was voiced at the City Licensing Board Tuesday during a continued hearing into the petition of Cumberland Farms for a license to operate two combined gasoline stations-food shops.

One of the units would be located at 470 Sea St., Adams Shore, and the other at 604-614 Hancock St. Both were previously operated as service stations and were purchased a year ago by Cumberland Farms.

City Councillors Leo J. Kelly and Stephen J. McGrath, appeared as spokesmen for residents of the areas who object to the project.

McGrath said having gasoline and food being sold on the premises could constitute a health hazard. He also noted that the combined operation would become "just another hangout for kids."

Richard Longton, representing Cumberland Farms, assured the board that the attendant selling gasoline would have no contact with the food operation. Two employees would work each shift he said -- one assigned to food and the other to pumping gasoline.

He said the company was planning to close down another Hancock St. unit.

Longton's attorney, Neil Kerstein, said "this is not a unique operation. There are 350 of them in 10 states."

Residents also objected to the present condition of the station which the company purchased for $65,000. Abuttors on Willet St., adjoining the property, said no effort has been made to clean up rubbish, broken glass and other debris.

Councillor Kelly had similar objections to the proposed Sea St. unit.

It was pointed out by City Clerk John Gillis, board chairman, that the former owners of that station had sold food on the premises.

While the hearing was still in progress, Kelly and McGrath drew up an ordinance which they propose to submit to the City Council on Monday.

The ordinance would prohibit any facility engaged in pumping gasoline, "the sale or petroleum products," or the repair of cars from engaging in the sale of dairy or other food products. It does make an exception for soft drinks from vending machines.

Kelly objected when the board voted to continue the hearing until June 6 after Building Inspector Allan MacDonald said the plans submitted were inadequate and would have to be amended and re-submitted.

Kelly said the residents of the areas had taken the time to attend the hearing and the action was not fair to them.

Sheets Asks Task Force Study Willard St. Traffic Problems

State DPW Commissioner John J. Carroll, has been asked by Rep. James A. Sheets, (D-Quincy) to establish a task force to study the traffic problems on Willard St. in West Quincy.

Sheets said the volume of cars on the street has increased tremendously over the last few years, and urged that steps be taken to rectify any traffic hazards.

"It is my hope that along with the State Department of Public Works, that experts from the MDC and the City will be appointed to the task force as well as several of the area residents who have to live with the situation every day of their lives," Sheets said.

In a letter to Carroll, Sheets detailed the problems and asked him to move as quickly as possible on the matter. Carroll is meeting with his Chief Engineer to start working on Sheets' request.

$12 Million W. Quincy Project

Tobin Rolls Out Red Carpet For Prospective Developers

Mayor Tobin rolled out the red carpet yesterday [Wednesday] for prospective developers to interest them in setting up shop in Quincy.

The get-together, dubbed the Quincy Development Conference, was scheduled for 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club complete with panel discussions, a slide presentation and exhibits.

"We sent invitations to all the real estate people and developers around Greater Boston to come and talk to us about Quincy and what we have to offer," said Tobin.

He said he met Tuesday morning with Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development coordinator, and Planning Director Walter J. Hannon and "they're very enthused and very pleased with the response."

The Mayor said a representative of the national fire protection company that plans to build a $12 million headquarters in West Quincy planned to be on hand "to say a few words on how happy they are with the spirit of cooperation they got from the city."

"We feel that the more knowledge and appreciation developers have of what is available in Quincy and the positive atmosphere they have to work in, the more chance we have to sit down and negotiate certain proposals," he said.

The presentations were to be given by Frank Remick of Remick's of Quincy, Hannon, Baharian, John Leahy of the MBTA; Robert Mahoney of State Street South; and Carmine D'Olimpio of the Building and Construction Trades Council of Quincy.

Also on hand to welcome the guest developers was City Councillor Leo J. Kelly, chairman of the Council's Development Committee.

Today's Women

From Talent Bank

2 Women Appointed To Boards By Tobin

Two members of the Talent Bank assembled by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women have been appointed to city boards by Mayor Tobin.

Elaine Luchini of Essex St., Squantum, has been named to the board of directors for the Quincy Detoxification Center and Priscilla Murphy of Overlook Rd., Merrymount has been appointed to the Conservation Commission.

"These are the first two appointments from the Talent Bank and we are delighted that this resource is successfully being used," said Toby Felton, a member of the Talent Bank Task Force.

Miss Felton noted that the Commission began work on the Talent Bank approximately one year ago, when research revealed that only one-quarter of the members of city boards and commissions were women.

"With the support of a generous grant from the Quincy Savings Bank, the Commission began an extensive outreach program to interest women in applying for appointments to city boards and commissions," she said.

Miss Luchini is a registered nurse anesthetist who is currently working as director of nursing services with a nursing home in Dorchester. Miss Murphy has a master's degree in special education and participates in activities of the Appalachian Mountain Club and the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

Interested women can obtain Talent Bank forms from the Women's Center of Quincy Junior College or by calling 479-8445.

SURPRISE . . . SURPRISE . . . .

Last fall we thought it would be nice to produce a small desk calendar for our customers. We wanted something with a local touch so we had Photographer Jack Tolson of Quincy take pictures of a dozen South Shore landmarks. Using these pictures as a guide, Artist Ruth Weston of Taylor Weston Publishing in Hanover drew sketches of the landmarks so that we could use one for each month. Then, the Walker Clay Company of Brockton printed the calendars; thus, all in all, it was a strictly local effort. We were quite proud of the calendars, printed in blue with a gray background. Surprise Number One was that within two weeks, we didn't have one out of the 5,000 calendars left...our customers loved them!

Surprise Number Two came when our Marketing Manager, Pat Jones, attended the National meeting of the Savings Institutions Marketing Society of America and found that our calendar had won a certificate of excellence in nation wide competition.

Maybe that's what we get for trying to do a little better than the ordinary in all of our banking activity. After all, Josiah Quincy, Jr., who developed cooperative banking, and the man for whom this bank is named, was always one step ahead with bright ideas in banking. And if he had seen our calendar, we know that.....

JOSIAH WOULD HAVE LIKED THAT!

Immersion Week

Lincoln Hancock Lab Center Sixth Graders Spend Week At State House

By JOHN KELLY

Forty sixth grade students and their teachers, recently spent a week at the State House as part of the Lincoln-Hancock Community School Elementary Lab Center.

Immersion Week is a program held annually in which students spend an entire week away from their home schools, immersed in the study of an important topic.

This year's topic was state government. The students visited the House and Senate galleries and learned about the law making process. Rep. Robert Cerasoli (D-Quincy) took the group on a tour of the facilities. Cerasoli imparted to the students his personal awe and respect for the handsome building and the process of government which takes place inside.

On two independent study days the students were permitted to visit the parts of the building which interested them the most and also had an opportunity to interview the people working inside the State House, from guards to senators.

The sixth graders were able to sit in on the controversial MBTA extension and MBM hearings. The process of state government, such as how a bill is introduced, the right of free petition, the power of the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate were encountered and discussed.

On the first day of Immersion students had the chance to compile their notes and begin to compose their projects. They were also able to view the architecture of the State House and compare it with that of the modern Boston City Hall.

THE STATE HOUSE was the site of this year's Immersion Week for sixth grade students from Quincy, who participate in the Lincoln-Hancock Community School Elementary Lab Center. Shown here on the steps of the State House with their teachers. Sees Inflation Major Issue

McCarthy Officially In Congressional Race

Pat McCarthy is running for Congress again -- but this time the enemy is inflation and not the incumbent, Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton], who is retiring from the field.

McCarthy, the Randolph attorney, who lost to Burke in a bitter Democratic primary battle in 1976 and never really stopped running, made it official yesterday [Wednesday] at 2 p.m. in Boston's Parker House.

"As I see it," he said in an announcement speech prepared for delivery, "the challenge of the 1980's is to keep the basic necessities priced within reach of the average family.

"The challenge of the 1980's is to keep alive, if you will, the American dream of being able to better ourselves and of being able to provide a better life for our children."

He cited as victims of inflation senior citizens living on retirement pensions, middle aged families trying to send children through college and young couples just starting out.

"Put yourselves in the shoes of a young couple from Quincy that really wanted to establish roots in a community but could not scrape together enough downpayment money for a first home," he said.

"Increasingly, childless young couples are being forced to choose between starting a family or buying that first home. What about their dreams of both?"

McCarthy, who was once and administrative aide to Cong. Joseph Moakley [D-Boston], said he has detected "a growing movement within the Congress finally to stand up for, protect and advocate the interests of the average family."

"I want," he said, "to help assure that people who have worked all their lives can get the health care they need without having to surrender their homes and, perhaps, everything else they ever worked for simply to pay for that care, to help enable middle income parents to send their children to college, to help young would-be homebuyers to get that downpayment together."

Since losing to Burke by a 39,869 to 29,719 count in the 1976 primary, McCarthy has worked as general counsel to the State Consumer Affairs Office and as management consultant and general counsel to a number of South Shore business firms.

A native of California, he came east to attend Boston College, where he was class president in each of this three years at the Heights. He was graduated from Harvard College and Harvard Law School.

He served as a lieutenant in the Army in Vietnam, where he was awarded two bronze stars and an Army commendation medal and won a Purple Heart.

He helped Moakley upset Louise Day Hicks in the 1972 congressional campaign and served as Moakley's chief of staff, dividing his time between Washington and the congressman's Boston office.

He and his wife, Diane, have two daughters, Kelly Ann and Jeanne Erin.

Patrick McDonough Expected To Run

Expect veteran Boston City Councillor Patrick F. McDonough to announce his candidacy for Congress from the 11th District within the next couple of weeks.

"I am seriously considering announcing my candidacy for the office," said the 53-year-old McDonough Monday in a cautiously worded statement to The Sun.

McDonough said he has done some polling in the district, which runs from Dorchester to Brockton, and he found that "Pat McCarthy is not as strong as a lot of people think."

Randolph Atty. Patrick H. McCarthy is thought to be the early front-runner in the race for the Democratic nomination against Reps. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] and Brian J. Donnelly [D-Dorchester].

As a second candidate from Boston, McDonough's entry would hurt Donnolly's chances and the councillor said that some Donnelly supporters have been trying to dissuade him from running.

McDonough said he would reach a decision in about two weeks because "I've got a fair amount of work to do before I make any kind of an announcement."

The 11th District seat is currently occupied by Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton], who has announced his retirement after 20 years in Washington.

"Jim Burke is one of the most powerful men in Congress," said McDonough in his statement. "The people of the 11th District need the strongest successor to Jim Burke that they can find.

"I believe that in the past 20 years during which I have been in public service I've gained the knowledge and experience needed to be an effective congressman.

"I have worked for the people as a police officer, as an attorney and chief counsel of the Massachusetts Department of Public Works and as an elected city official.

"In all these roles I think I have demonstrated the courage, character and concern for people which I feel are the chief attributes necessary for service in Congress."

Safety And Survival

City's 9th Graders In Civil Defense Preparedness Week

Ninth grade students throughout the Quincy school system this week are observing Civil Defense Preparedness Week with a series of activities keyed to safety and survival in the event of a variety of disaster situations.

Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, superintendent of Quincy Schools, with John Harrington, Quincy coordinator of social studies, and Bernard LaCouture, USAF/civil defense coordinator, instituted a program of realistic activities designed to involve students and parents in thinking and planning for action when disaster strikes.

Assisting in the program are the Civil Defense Preparedness Agency of Quincy, Area II in Bridgewater and the Mass. DCPA in Framingham.

During the week students have been asked to consider the necessity of careful preparation and positive response to such catastrophes as power failures, winter storms, drought, environmental pollution and floods.

The students were made aware of special services provided by civil defense in times of disaster. Volunteer organizations such as Civil Air Patrol, Auxiliary Police and the Boy Scouts provide these services.

The program was also designed to give students and parents a chance to plan their own survival program and to become acquainted with civil defense activities.

The week long program included films about the latest disaster with civil defense response. It also involved trips to local and state emergency operations centers for briefings on the communications system, the operating center and the decontamination center.

Each family was also asked to make a home survey and complete a check list with all needs for emergency survival.

Present plans call for making the program an integral part of all ninth grade civics classes in Quincy annually.

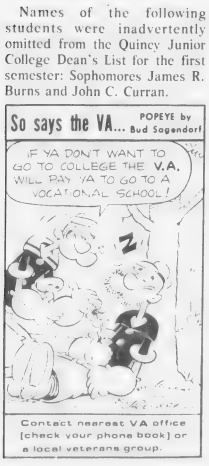
Sheriff Turns $9,266 Over To Treasurer

Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall, has released a report concerning the outside earned income of the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department for the period of Jan. 1 through March 31.



Marshall said income of $9,266.50 has been forwarded to the office of the Norfolk County Treasurer.

The figure represents $8,680.00 received from the federal government to reimburse the county for room and board costs related to federal prisoners incarcerated at the Norfolk County house of correction during this period.

The remaining $586.50 is income earned from inmates participating in the work-release program at the house of correction. These inmates have room and board expenses deducted from their outside earnings.

Hannon To Enter Congressional Race

Norfolk County Registrar of Deeds Barry T. Hannon is on the verge of entering the 11th Congressional District race.

Insiders say he has given considerable thought the past few weeks to running and has now reached his decision.

They expect him to officially announce his candidacy shortly--probably within a week.

Hannon would be the fourth major Democrat in the field. The other three: Rep.-City Councillor James Sheets of Quincy, Rep. Brian Donnelly [D-Dorchester] and Patrick McCarthy of Randolph who ran against incumbent James A. Burke two years ago.

McCarthy polled 40 per cent of the Democratic vote when he challenged Burke and because of that and the fact he really hasn't stopped running since 1976, is given an edge by most political observers. However, both Sheets and Donnelly think they can overtake him.

And, Hannon certainly must feel he can. Actually, he would appear to have a pretty good shot at it.

As Registrar of Deeds the past seven years, he certainly is a familiar figure in Norfolk County. And, Norfolk County represents an estimated 51 per cent of the Democratic registered voters in the 11th Congressional District.

Hannon touches a few "grass roots" in both Norfolk County and the 11th Congressional District. He served two terms in the House of Representatives [1966-1970] from the old Braintree-Quincy [Ward 2]-Holbrook district.

He grew up in Milton and graduated from Milton High School. His father, Edward, retired federal bankruptcy court judge, was the organizer and first chairman of the Milton Democratic Town Committee.

And, coincidentally, he attended and graduated from St. Gregory's elementary school, Dorchester, in Brian Donnelly's backyard.

Hannon obviously took all of this into consideration before making his decision. And all of this obviously helped him make up his mind to run.

He'll certainly liven up the race.

MEANWHILE, Boston City Councillor Patrick J. McDonough is reported "just about" to get into the 11th Congressional District lineup.

AND, on the Quincy front, another McDonough--Atty. Joseph P.--and Sabina Stenberg have nomination papers in circulation for Congress. Sabina, incidentally took out her nomination papers under her maiden name, Sabina Kavanaugh.

SPEAKING OF THE 11th Congressional race, there's at least one political figure who hasn't given a single thought to running for the seat. Rep. Michael Morrissey never considered running because, he muses: "I'm not qualified." What he means is that he's not qualified because he's too young. You can't run for Congress unless you're at least 25. Morrissey won't even be 24 until later this year.

DAVID [JIM] CROWLEY, who served on the City Council from Ward 1 and at large from 1946-55, is reported in "good" condition at City Hospital. He was admitted May 18.

REMEMBER Betty Scanlan? She won a school committee seat back in the 1960's and appeared to have a big political future. A nice combination of beauty and brains. Some even thought she might go on to become Quincy's first woman mayor. But Betty soon grew disenchanted with politics and abandoned the political scene. Well, today she is co-owner of a large farm in Enfield, N.H. and as happy as can be. Betty came back to Quincy for the Koch Club 30th anniversary dinner. She used to baby sit the Koch children.

VI GILLIS, wife of City Clerk John Gillis, is flashing around her Quincy High School class [1950] ring. And, for good reason. Seems about 20 years ago she "misplaced" the ring, never found it and as time went by just forgot about it. The other day, neighbors Diane and Louis Marani, were digging up old roots on their Richard St. property. And, there in the dirt with the roots was the ring. "And its still in perfect condition," says Vi.

This Is Public Works Week

In case it's escaped your notice, this is National Public Works Week in Quincy.

Mayor Tobin issued the proclamation Tuesday, calling on "all citizens and civic organizations to acquaint themselves with the problems involved in providing public works facilities and services."

It is also in recognition of the "important role in our safety, health and well-being that is played by the public works officials in our community."

Some say twins are unusually intelligent and fortunate in love.

help his cousin.

Tran was a police captain in Dahang before the communists took over. He is now a security officer with New England Life Insurance Co. His wife, Lien Do, is in the application processing department of the same firm. They have a six-year-old daughter.

The Lams escaped from Vietnam in a small boat and sailed for three days to the coast of Thailand. Once there the money and jewels they had managed to bring with them were confiscated by the police.

Lam had owned an express company in Saigon. He had a fleet of seven trucks which transported cargo from the docks and the airport to urban destinations. Once the communists took over the trucks were seized and Lam was left without a means of earning a living.

In Bangkok the Lams managed to explain their plight to the Red Cross and the U.S. Embassy and the wheels were put in motion.

The family flew from Thailand to Boston via Hong Kong, Tokyo, Seattle and New York. They still owe the government $1,280 for their fares.

The brothers, Quang and Minh, are now in the seventh grade at Sterling Junior High School and three-year-old Hao is enrolled at a day care center.

And any day now Hao will have an American born brother or sister.

READER SPEAKS OUT

MBTA Station Access From Independence Ave. 'Unacceptable'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Access to the T Station from Independence Avenue is unacceptable to the people of South Quincy. We are outraged that a Mrs. Metayer can demand that South Quincy accept, for the benefit of Braintree, what Braintree has already refused at its own station, direct access to a residential neighborhood.

We find laughable, Mr. Fehan's statement that the traffic and parking problem can be handled by the police. His own police department has been unable to do anything about the moving vans on Independence Avenue. And, we are appalled that the elected officials of our city have made no response to this blatent attempt by Braintree to use South Quincy, again, for its own selfish ends.

Our opposition has already been demonstrated at the Adams School hearing, last spring; a hearing at which some 300 residents, by count, voted 299 to 1 against any access; a hearing which brought promises from both elected officials and the MBTA management that no access would be constructed.

Now it appears that the people of South Quincy are to be sacrificed for the third time in the past five years. We have had our political identity stolen through elimination, of Ward 3. We have had the station forced upon us, and now we are facing an access which will endanger our children, destroy our property values, and diminish the quality of life in our neighborhoods.

Why are we opposed to such an obvious convenience? Why are we willing to drive, when a short walk would do?

First, because we are concerned about the safety and welfare of our children. To provide this access for the convenience of Mrs. Metayer and the drivers of Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Abington, Holbrook and points south, will drastically increase the traffic flow through the whole of the Penn's Hill area and, in particular, Faxon Park Road, Kendrick Avenue, Franklin Street and Verchild Street, the very streets used by the children of the area to walk to school.

Second, with such a convenient, ready made, parking lot, why pay to park at the station when a short walk from an adjacent street will save money?

Third, how long will it be before the property along Independence Avenue, zoned Industrial, is bought up by those in the know and monstrosities, such as are seen throughout Boston, provide parking for profit?

Our children will be in danger, a point which obviously doesn't bother Mrs. Metayer or Mr. Kiley and the "patronage brigade" of the MBTA. Will Mrs. Metayer or Mr. Kiley mend the broken body or restore the life of the children struck down by an out-of-town driver? Will they even care? After all, they are only South Quincy children.

And I wonder how much it concerns our elected officials who were so quick to promise and now appear so reluctant to act. Who among our elected officials has stated for the record that access at Verchild Street is unacceptable to Quincy.

I believe that the time has come when we, the people of South Quincy, must join together and say to our elected representatives "you are either with us or against us; no more straddling. Either give us effective representation or expect us to seek others who will."

If the elected officials of Somerville and Milton could protect their communities from the effects of a major construction program such as Route 1-95, is it unreasonable to expect ours to protect us against a mere walkway.

HANCOCK HONORED -- Quincy-born John Hancock, first signer of the Declaration of Independence, has been honored with a postal card in the Patriots Series. The card was introduced at first day of issue ceremonies at historic First Parish Church where Hancock's father was an early minister. At the exercises were Doris Oberg, secretary of the Quincy Historical Society, William O'Connell, president of the society, and Howard C. Behrens, artist with the Government Printing Office, who designed the card.

year to try to get the message across while the kids are still in school and have contact with each other. Maybe word will get around better."

He said some juveniles were taken into custody but most of the arrests were in the 18-20 year old bracket. There were plenty of girls, he added.

Muolo called Wollaston Beach "a troubled area."

"Anyplace like Wollaston or Nantasket or Revere where you have some liquor establishments close by is potential trouble," he said. "We are obligated to do this for the public so they can enjoy the beaches again.

Earlier, Brownell sent a letter to MDC Commissioner John Snedeker asking that a special effort be made to eliminate public drinking on Wollaston beach this summer.

"This problem has been brought to my attention by a number of residents who live adjacent to the beach," he said, "and I share their concern.

"May I suggest that your agency establish a neighborhood meeting so that you can hear first hand the kind of 'grief' the people have to put up with?"

Morrissey Drinking Bill Amendment Defeated

The State House has defeated an amendment offered by Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] aimed at strengthening the bill that would raise the drinking age from 18 to 19 years old.

Morrissey's amendment would have raised the age for package store purchases to 21 and the age for on-premises drinking to 19 while retaining the age for employment in liquor sales at 18.

"The problem with teens drinking is not in the lounges or bars," said Morrissey, "but the unsupervised drinking and gangs of youths in places lik Wollaston Beach.

"My amendment would still allow 19-year-olders to go out to a lounge while making it harder for the 15, 16 and 17-year-olds to obtain liquor illegally."

The amendment failed by a 102-119 vote but the Drinking Age Bill passed the House 193-26 and was sent on to the Senate.

are conducting a review of the Council on Aging.

The Fin Com chairman indicated that the City Council is in no rush to act on the budget, which must under state law be passed and sent back to the Mayor by June 15.

"The intent," he said, "is to get through the budget and get the feeling of the Council before addressing any of the specific areas. I'm sure there are items on hold that will be put back."

In conjunction with the budget, the Council also has before it a proposed $6,718,000 bond issue to finance a deficit in the 1977-78 budget.

Lydon set a hearing date on the bond issue for 6:30 p.m., last night [Wednesday] in the City Hall Council Chamber.

Lydon said Mayor Tobin and the Finance Committee, which is the City Council as a whole, are thinking in terms of a five year plan to place the city on a sound financial basis.

JFK Urges Action To End Shipyard Strike

Sen. John F. Kennedy [D-Mass] urged President Arthur B. Homer of Bethlehem Steel Co. to take a personal role in settlement of an eight-week strike that was tying up East Coast Shipyards, including Fore River.

Kennedy, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, charged that Bethlehem's negotiating policies seemed to be directed at breaking the Shipbuilders Union or closing down the Fore River Yard.

VIGILANTES NAMED

Commodores William Forbes and Leslie Brierly of the Squantum and Wollaston Yacht Clubs appointed a committee of marine vigilantes to protect yachtsmen from depredations of Quincy Bay pirates.

Forbes named James Bonney and Elliott [Tony] Bowker from Squantum and Brierly designated Anthony DiPiero, Michael Horowitz and Paul Lynch from Wollaston to the group.

It was planned to have one vigilante in the clubhouse and one aboard a boat each night with Citizens Band radios to alert the Police Boat Guardian II in case of a pirate raid.

FIRST FACULTY NAMED

Quincy Junior College received its first fulltime faculty members when M. David Rostoker was named to the $6,600 post of science and math teacher and Miss Elizabeth R. Hicks given the $5,800 job as teacher of English and literature.

Meanwhile, the School Committee voted to look into Dr. Charles Djerf's suggestion that the old Washington School in Quincy Point be renovated for $40,000 as a permanent location for the junior college.

"I have a feeling we aren't enthusiastic enough about the junior college movement and it's something that is here to stay," Dr. Djerf told his fellow committeemen.

Pizza Hut To Get Shamus' Pub License, Rebuild On Site

Pizza Hut of New England won approval of the City Licensing Board Tuesday when it petitioned for a transfer of the common victualer-all alcoholic license now held by Shamus's Pub on Washington St., at Cleverly Ct., Quincy Point.

The board continued final action for one week to give members a chance to view one of the chain's units operating in Norwell.

However, affirmative action appeared assured after City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi and a spokesman for the Ward 2 Civic Association told the board they had no objections.

Robert McNeilly, vice president of Pizza Hut of New England, testified the restaurant would only serve beer and wine with meals.

"There will be no bar. All drinks will be served at tables by waitresses," he said.

He testified the firm plans to raze the present structure and build a 2,400 square foot restaurant, seating 74 patrons. There will also be a 50-car parking lot.

McNeilly said that residents of the area requested a six-foot stockade fence at one side of the property and also asked for strong lights to illuminate the parking lot.

Pizza Hut is based in Wichita, Kan., and operates 3,400 medium priced restaurants throughout the United States and in 11 foreign countries. Last November it became a subsidiary of Pepsi Cola.

Raymondi, in speaking to the board, said residents of the area are trying to get rid of many of the bars presently located in the district.

"We approached this project with caution. But what we have seen and heard has reassured us. They will be good neighbors," he said.

Group Protests

YMCA Defends $6 Annual Parking Fee

Repairing and resurfacing of the YMCA parking facilities on Coddington St., Quincy, cost $50,000, according to George H. Ramsden Jr., executive director of the "Y", defending the imposition of a $6 annual parking fee.

A group of Quincy mothers whose children take part in "Y" activities have protested the charge. They claim the fee adds "insult to injury" since, in their opinion, charges at the "Y" are "none to cheap to begin with."

Ramsden explained that the key-card program was adopted to assist in paying off the mortgage taken out to pay for refurbishing the parking lot.

He noted that it would also keep out parkers who have no connection with the YMCA.

"Some people used the lot as an all-day facility," he said. "We have students from Quincy High, the Vocational Technical, Quincy Junior College who found it convenient. In addition, commuters often left their cars there and took the MBTA into Boston."

In response to the protest signed by five Quincy women -- C. L. Wilson, J. Hurley, Donna Dwyer, Nancy A. Carlson and Maureen Richmond -- the executive committee of the YMCA voted to make keycards available to youngsters whose parents had to drive them to the "Y".

Ramsden said there are already 1,400 keycard holders and most have been highly in favor of the plan.

He pointed out that in addition to the keycard lot the "Y" also maintains two other parking facilities. One calls for 50 cents, deposited at an entrance barrier. Tokens can be purchased at the rate of three for a dollar in the "Y". The third lot is located at the rear of Roxie's Market and is free of charge. It handles 40 cars and is accessible by a walkway to the YMCA.

The keycard lot has 200 spaces which are provided to members who use the facilities regularly. Ramsden said that the $6 annual charge breaks down to about 12 cents per week.

READYING FOR SUMMER -- Front-end loader makes sweep of Wollaston Beach as MDC truck waits to haul away the debris. Much of the accumulated rubbish scattered along the beach can be blamed on the Great Blizzard of Feb. 6-7 which lashed the shore line and hurled many objects up on the sand. Volunteer groups are also joining with the MDC employees in an effort to clean the beach before summer season.

Morrissey Thanks Volunteers For Helping Wollaston Beach Clean-up

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey, (D-Quincy) issued a statement this week thanking volunteers who recently helped clean-up Wollaston Beach.

"Although only 40 people turned out, it still was a success because it provided the MDC with an additional 100 hours of help," Morrissey said. "I hope the clean-up can be expanded next year and more people would participate."

Morrissey also praised the MDC for helping to organize the clean-up and providing the rakes, shovels, and heavy equipment.

He also thanked the MDC police for thir efforts to "clean-up Wollaston Beach."

The police cited over 60 persons for drinking in public. Many of them have received $25 fines or have had their cases continued without a finding until after Labor Day.

"The MDC police are trying to discourage public drinking by making it too expensive to drink," Morrissey noted.

Den 3, Pack 36 Cub Scouts Visit Quincy Sun

Cub Scouts of Den 3, Pack 36, sponsored by the Church of the Most Blessed Sacrament, Houghs Neck, recently visited The Quincy Sun to learn at first hand how a newspaper is brought to its readers.

Members of the Den are: Marc Farrand, John McMillen, Peter Mellyn, Daniel Bythrow, William LaForest, Stephen Bottary, Christoper LaForest, Teddy Bythrow and Stephen Kane.

Den leaders are Mrs. June Farrand and Mrs. Margaret McMillen.

The scouts were taken on a tour of the newsroom, the advertising and production departments. News copy flow and methods of handling advertisements were explained to them.

They saw news stories and headlines set on an IBM computer and Compugraphic photo typesetting machine. The process by which photographs and advertisements are processed to make them ready for printing proved highly interesting to the group.

Before leaving the office each scout was presented with a complimentary copy of The Sun.

It is not too difficult to tell types of stemware apart. The goblet glass, used for water, is the largest. Models range in capacity from nine to twelve fluid ounces. The sherbert champagne glass, while shallower and shorter than the goblet, is about twice as wide. This glass can be used for dessert dishes such as ice cream or fruit cocktail, as well as for champagne. The cocktail glass is similar to the wine glass, except that it is shorter and has a wider mouth opening. Although the cocktail is served from the bar, it is included by tradition in stemware patterns.

We at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490 have a tradition of giving fine service. We're here to help you and pleased when you take the time to shop with us. Between the drug store and the pizza parlor is not a bank.

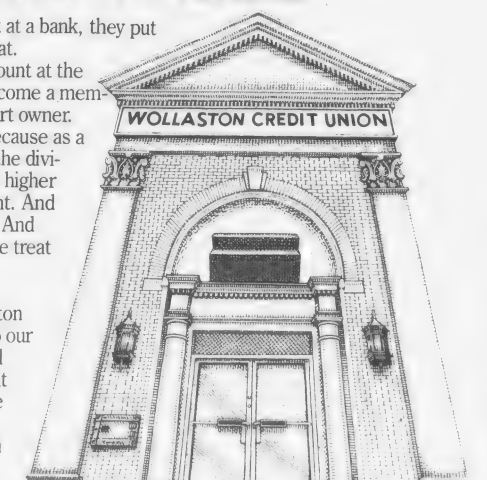
When you open an account at a bank, they put your money away and that's that.



But when you open an account at the Wollaston Credit Union you become a member of the credit union and a part owner.

Which is no small point. Because as a part owner, you get a share of the dividends. In the form of generally higher interest on your savings account. And generally lower rates on loans. And because you're a part owner, we treat you differently here.

One more thing.

As a member of the Wollaston Credit Union, you are invited to our annual meeting and encouraged to voice your opinion about what we ought to be doing. Your vote carries as much weight as our president's. So we wouldn't be a bank even if they asked us.

Business Hopeful But Skeptical

CZM Plan: Balance Environmental, Commercial Interests

By TOM HENSHAW

The state director of Coastal Zone Management says the aim of the new CZM plan is to balance both environmental and business interests on the shore in a way that is beneficial to both.

Eric Van Loon told a breakfast meeting of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Thursday:

"One of the major thrusts of the plan is not to add new environmental statutes and a new layer of bureaucracy but to bring management coordination to the laws already on the books."

Van Loon was one of a panel of six, two from government and four from business, who discussed the CZM plan to which the federal government is contributing $1.2 million in Massachusetts.

Business members of the panel were hopeful but skeptical.

"The problem we have with Coastal Zone Management is not the general concept," said Joseph Corcoran of Corcoran, Mullins and Jennison Inc., developers. "Rather it's the details."

"Development can be good and development can be bad. Good development has brought our people access to the waterways. Bad development has contaminated those waterways.

"The government's role is to strike a balance, encourage the good and regulate out the bad. If the balance is mishandled we could find ourselves with no development on our waterways."

Corcoran said developers are concerned about "implementation of environmental regulations by people on the staffs of particular agencies."

"They have stopped three of our jobs cold," he said, "because of their interpretation based on pressure from the local communities. Generally speaking, local communities these days don't like growth of any type.

"Implementation of regulations is a very subjective thing. The problem is that very well meaning people can interprete things in a different way and we have to live with it."

Due to environmental rules, Corcoran said his company figures a "lead time" of about two years for a project that used to take six months.

"We wouldn't really look strongly at a coastal situation again," he said.

"We have been offered a couple of parcels on the Cape and frankly we are very much afraid of it. We don't know how long we would have to fight and we don't want to get into that kind of fight."

"Remember," he added, "downtown Boston could never be created in the 1980's because it is all basically filled land."

David Standley, state commissioner of Environmental Quality Engineering, sought to allay Corcoran's fears of local interpretations.

"One objective," he said, "is to make very clear what the requirements are so that local flexibility for interpretation is minimal. It can never go away but we will try to reduce it."

One of his department's concerns, said Standley, is that "environmental regulations are being used for purposes that were never intended."

"For example," he said, "they are being used to block low income housing in communities which have found it otherwise impossible to get around the snob zoning act.

"We try to limit as best we can our regulations to the purposes for which they were intended. If they do not apply, then we try to dismiss the appeals."

Ron Courville, owner of Boston Harbor Marina, also expressed concern about interpretation, only he called it "terminology."

"They may say they have no new laws to put into effect," he said. "Maybe that's true. But how are you going to word it? Interpretation of law actually is new law."

Courville said he was disturbed by the people who showed up for the hearings on CZM regulations. Not many of them, he said, were businessmen with vital concerns.

"The greater portion of the people there were paid state employees who had a vested interest in being there," he said. "Others were retired people who had the time to give up.

"I was told by one of the people, 'What are you doing here? We want no growth on the shoreline.' They had no practical knowledge of what was happening."

"But don't get me wrong," Courville added. "In the recreation field one of the big things we have to sell is clean water. If we don't have good environment we're not going to be in business."

Other speakers on the business side were Frank Lee, environmental planner for Boston Edison, and Leo England of the H. P. Hood Co.

North Downs Quincy In Finale

The North Quincy track team, following three straight losses to the top teams in the Suburban League, wound up its regular season with a 90-53 win over undermanned Quincy last week to finish 6-3.

Quincy, with a small squad and no depth, finished with one win under first-year coach Joe Goguen.

The city rivals participated in the all-league meet Tuesday, will compete in the state class trials and finals Saturday, and hope to qualify some members for the all-state meet on June 3.

Lou Tozzi's North team won 13 of 16 events last Friday but one of the top features of the meet was the performance of sophomore Jun Arevalo of Quincy. Arevalo, who is from the Philippines, won the long jump at 20-1¾, which startled everyone, including Coach Goguen.

"He'd come down to practice and there was nothing for him to do," said Goguen. "If he would do something okay, there was always someone better. But he came around and looked real good in the past few meets, jumping 18 or 19 feet. Today he did it. It was great to see him do it and he deserves a lot of credit."

This was the opening event and Quincy swept it with Vin Lorenzano and Roy Higgins following Arevalo, and it gave the Presidents a 9-0 lead, but it was all North from then on.

North had two double winners. Jim Conboy came out of nowhere to defeat teammate Dan McIntyre in the triple jump and he also won the low hurdles. In the triple jump, McIntyre looked like a sure winner with a leap of 40-1¼, only to have Conboy go 40-6¾.

Colin McEachern, who had a banner year for the Raiders, won the 440 with his best time, 52.5, and also took the high jump with his best effort, 5-4.

North's other winners were Russ Chisholm, 100; John McGuiggan, half mile; Mike McCormick, mile; Mike Barrett, two-mile; McIntyre, high hurdles; Mike Larsen, shot put; Mike Gallagher, discus, and Fran McLaughlin, javelin. The mile relay team of McGuiggan, Jim Coughlin, Rich Schaetzel and McIntyre also won.

Quincy's only other winners were Lorenzano, 220, and Dennis Campbell, pole vault.

New Records Set In Track Club Summer Opener

The Quincy Track Club opened its summer season with a number of new records and outstanding performances by new members.

Five club records were set and two others tied in the first of two Youth Games tryout meets at White Stadium. The second meet will be held next month with the best performers from both meets selected to compete in the U.S. Youth Games in Detroit Aug. 4.

In girls 14-15 action, newcomer Vicky Finlayson, 14-year old Abington High freshman, won the 440 in 62.0 and came back 20 minutes later to outkick a tough field down the stretch to win the 880 in a record 2:28.8.

Linda Morash and Mary Crehan took thirds in the 440 and 880 respectively.

Denise Santo won the 100 in 11.9 and set a club record of 26.5 placing third in the 220. She also took second in the long jump.

Loretta Garrigan came back after a year's absence to re-establish herself as the best high jumper around winnning at 4-11, a club record. Kara Crehan cleared 4-8 to set a record for 12-13 girls.

In other girls' 12-13 action, Penny Sawyer placed second in the 100 after slipping at the start. She also placed second in the long jump.

Debbie Hastings took third in the 220, while Sheila Barrett and Eileen Crehan took second and third in the 880.

Maureen Roche, another rookie, sparkled in the 9-11 group, dominating both the 100 and long jump. Geraldine Murphy won the 440 and took second in the long jump. Janice Libby was second in the 100 and Diane Lindenfelzer and Terry McLoughlin took thirds in the 880 and high jump respectively.

Sean Burns destroyed the field in winning the 220 in a record 23.2, while Kevin Wood set records in the high jump (5-9) and 220 (24.4) in the 12-13 field.

Mike Williams won the 100 and long jump in 12-13 action. Brad Kenyon took second in the long jump, Tom English was second in the 880 and Mike Bourikas won the high jump.

In boys' 9-11, Harry Morash set a nine and under record in the 880, clocking a fast 2:53.3 for second place. Steve Kearns took third in the 220, Ed Munroe was second in the 440, Dave Fahey took second in the long jump and Chuck McIntyre was third in the high jump.

14 Local Academy Members In Judo Championships

Fourteen members of the S.A. Judo Academy of Quincy placed in the New England Judo championships, sanctioned by the AAU and held recently at Duxbury High School.

They included three Quincy youngsters, Eddie Boyle, who took second in the 11-year old heavyweight division; Mary Ellen Boyle, second in the 10-year old heavyweight, and Mike Kirchner, fourth in the 7-year old heavyweight.

Seven club members, Eddie and Mary Ellen Boyle, Bill Palazzi, Larry Palazzi, Kim Brooks, Cindy Dowling and Darlene Sherry, will compete in the USIE Junior National championships at Ball State University, Muncie, Indiana, on July 6, 7 and 8. The meet is sponsored by the Indiana Judo Association and is sanctioned by the Indiana AAU.

24 Teams Expected In Easter Seal Softball Marathon

More than 24 softball teams are expected to participate in the local Easter Seal Softball Marathon June 10-11.

The marathon tournament will be held at the YMCA's Rotary Field. Play will begin at 8 a.m. Saturday, June 10 and continue around the clock through Sunday, June 11 until 8 p.m.

Quincy softball teams, both men's and women's, already registered to participate in this 36-hour event are Walsh's Restaurant, State Street Bank, Tornadoes, Bocci Club, Carodona's, Sheas's Formica, Palmer Pub, Balducci's, Quincy Point Dodgers, DiMattia Sailmakers, Nobile Sporting Goods, Squantum and an Easter Seal team.

The marathon a "fun event" is open to both men's and women's teams. Funds for the Easter Seal summer camping program for physically disabled youths will be raised primarily through sponsorships for individual teams.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

THE SECOND TIME IS EASIER

What would you do if your home caught fire tonight? Save the wife and children? Call the fire department? Get a ladder, grab the family jewels, find a fire extinguisher? Get out? But these thoughts come easily when you're reading the newspaper.

But what if you woke up in the night - smelled smoke - saw fire? You'd react on instinct instead of logic and that could spell panic. And panic breeds death.

It's easier to evacuate a burning home safely if you've done it before in practice, especially for the children. Determine at least two exits from each room and which to use - depending upon the location of the fire.

Schools require fire drills, but they are neglected in the home where chances of fire are 200 times greater. Remember - the second time is easier, especially if it's the real McCoy.

'Confidentiality Violated'

Creedon Unhappy Over Speculation

After several months of controversy the school committee has finally named a new head football coach at Quincy High School.

He is Tom Fitzgerald, veteran assistant football coach at North Quincy High School. Fitzgerald, who succeeds Hank Conroy, was appointed on a 5-2 vote by the committee.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, was upset over the manner in which the appointment was handled, particularly all the speculation which followed the rejection of two recommendations he had made.

Although the names of candidates were supposed to remain confidential until the choice was made, several names were widely publicized. Gene Macomber, a coach at Broad Meadows Junior High School, was Creedon's choice, according to word around the city, but was turned down twice on a 4-3 vote of the committee.

"The confidentiality of the screening committee was violated," Creedon said. "I presented one name, consistent with the findings of the screening committee."

He explained that a number of applications were eliminated and that the strongest remaining candidate was then presented to the school committee.

Voting in favor of Fitzgerald were: Francis F. Anselmo, Mary P. Collins, Christopher F. Kennedy, John J. Sullivan and Patricia A. Toland, vice chairwoman of the committee.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, chairman of the committee, and Committeewoman Joan C. Picard, cast the negative votes.

Mayor Tobin then moved that the vote be made unanimous and the committee agreed.

Petracca Going To Britain With Cornell Track Team

Bart Petracca, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Petracca of Wollaston, a junior at Cornell University, will be going with the Cornell track team this summer to the British Isles.

A qualifying race this spring against the U. of Pennsylvania enabled him to travel abroad to run against Oxford and Cambridge of England, U. of Dublin and Edinborough, Scotland.

Cornell, combined with Pennsylvania, makes this month-long trip once every four years. To qualify, Bart had to place in the top two spots in the race, 1500 meters, in which he took second in 3:51.4.

He will leave June 9 and return July 9.

Petracca is one of North Quincy High's all-time great distance runners and set numerous records while running for the Raiders.

Murphy Leads Striders In State Police Race

Joe Murphy led the Quincy Police Striders in the first Massachusetts State Police 6.8 mile road race by finishing fifth overall among 450 runners Sunday. His time was 38:45. He was the first Quincy finisher and received a trophy for a third place in the 30-39 age group.

John Mulligan received a trophy for finishing second in the 50 and over age group with a time of 51:09.

Other Quincy Striders participating were Fran Mullen, Bob Perchard, Dennis Mannix, Paul Hussey, Bill Stenmon, John McDonough, Bill Murphy and Bob Crowley.

Looking Forward To Challenge

Fitzgerald 'Thrilled' Over Appointment As Quincy Coach

By TOM SULLIVAN

Tom Fitzgerald, a Quincy native, has been coaching schoolboy football for 27 years, but the high point of his coaching career will come next fall.

Come September, Fitzgerald, backfield coach and offensive coordinator for the last nine years at his alma mater, North Quincy High School, takes over as Quincy High's new head coach.

Tom was appointed last week to succeed Hank Conroy, who retired after 14 years as Quincy's head coach and 25 years as a coach in the Quincy school system.

Fitzgerald was appointed by a 5-2 vote of the school committee (the vote was made unanimous at the request of Mayor Arthur Tobin, chairman of the committee, who with Joan Picard had originally voted against the appointment).

"This is a big thrill for me as I've wanted to be a head coach in my native city," Fitzgerald said. "I've had nine very happy years as assistant at North under Ralph Frazier and Dave Burke and I'm looking forward to this new challenge. I just hope I do as well as Hank Conroy, whom I consider a fine coach and an outstanding gentleman."

Fitzgerald emphasized that he would like to keep the present Quincy assistant coaches, Bill Maver and Peter Chella, both of whom were contenders for the top post.

"I'll sit down soon with all of them and we'll talk things over," said Tom. "They are a fine group of coaches and if they want to remain, I certainly would like them to." The other Quincy aide is Mark Conroy, son of former Coach Hank.

"I'm leaving North with mixed emotions," Fitzgerald continued. "I graduated from North, have taught physical education there and am now dean of boys. I have a lot of friends there but am eagerly looking forward to this new challenge."

"I am very pleased with this

appointment," said Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone. "Tom certainly has the qualifications and I am certain he will do an excellent job."

As backfield coach and offensive coordinator at North, Tom was responsible for the development of several outstanding backs who are now or who have starred in college. To mention just a few, there are Tom Burke, formerly of Northeastern, John Panarelli of Norwich, Brian Doherty and Bob Morton of Holy Cross, and John Flynn, captain-elect at Trinity College.

"I am not certain right now what offense I will use at Quincy, but I do know I am inheriting some fine players from last year's varsity and some tremendous boys from last fall's undefeated sophomore team," Fitzgerald said. "I also won't decide on just what the assistants will handle until after I talk with them and find out just who I will have."

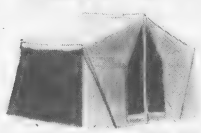
Tom was a top center for Coach Jack Donahue at North in 1942 and 1943, being all-scholastic in his junior year. He left school to enter the Navy and played for the Sampson Naval Station team. After two years in the Navy he returned to North and graduated with the Class of 1946. He also played basketball for North and played for one of the school's Tech Tourney teams.

He played for a year at Thayer Academy and was named to the All-New England Prep School team. He played two years of varsity football at Boston University and graduated in 1951.

Fitzgerald also played for the Quincy Manets of the New England Professional league.

Tom worked with Weymouth Coach Harry Arlanson while student teaching and said, "I learned a lot from Harry, who was one of the finest schoolboy coaches around."

Tom's first coaching job was at St. Catherine's High School in Detroit, Michigan, where he was assistant football coach.



He went on to become head coach of football and baseball at Austin High in Detroit for five years. While there he coached Dave DeBusschere, former National Basketball Association standout with Detroit and New York, who was also a fine pitcher. At one time he was pitching for the Chicago White Sox and also playing in the NBA.

Next came three years as football and baseball coach at St. James High in Hempstead, N.Y. While assistant coach for a year at Plainview, N.Y. High, he also was assistant freshman coach and scout for Hofstra College.

Fitzgerald went to Newfield High School in Centereach, N.Y., where he coached for four years before coming back to his native city as assistant at North.

While at Austin High in Detroit, Tom was named the High School Coach of the Year.

Fitzgerald's son, Tom, who was an outstanding hockey player at Northeastern University, is presently a Marine officer and is stationed in El Toro, Calif.

Local 1139 Racks Up Pair

Local 1139 defeated Houghs Neck Legion, 6-3, Saturday, with Tom Venezia the winning pitcher and Tom O'Connor the loser.

Venezia allowed seven hits in his first game in two years. He tired in the sixth when he gave up two runs but otherwise had little trouble. Tom Richards had a triple. Mark Millane had a double and two singles. Kevin Howlett had a double and single and Kilgallon, Hallberg, Paul Quigley, Twohig and Venezia had singles.

Bill Matthews, Houghs Neck catcher, threw out two men trying to steal second and also had a hit and scored the Legion's first run.

Local 1139 went an extra inning to edge Quincy Police, 6-5, Sunday, with Tom Richards the winning pitcher and Bill Baker the loser.

In the eighth inning Millane hit a long triple and was driven in by Twohig with the winning run.

Dan Boyle's triple and single and three RBI paced the Sons of Italy and he also made two excellent plays at third base to end VFW rallies. Bob Beniers also had two SOI hits and Reinhardt had two hits for VFW.

Morrisette rocked Police Club, 17-4, as Jim Hensley pitched a five-hitter. Bob Craig, Mike Sullivan and Bill Flynn had three hits apiece.

Quincy School Wins Street Hockey Title

The culmination of the Quincy Recreation Department's winter gym program took place with completion of the 7th annual street hockey tournament, as Quincy School was once again crowned city champion.

It did not come easy. There was one overtime game and two games decided by two goals while the final and three other games were decided by just one goal.

In the quarterfinal round, Atherton Hough could only manage a Bobby Forman goal against goaltender Tim Reardon, but that was all Atherton Hough needed as Billy Gardner shut out the Central Cougars, 1-0.

Quincy won several squeakers as Brian Lowe's third period goal and Joe Engrassia's earlier two goals offset a pair of goals by Parker's Ronnie Conway. Parker goalie Robert King turned in an outstanding job in keeping his team in the game, finally losing, 3-2.

In the semifinal round, Greg Keefe scored in the first overtime lifting Atherton Hough over Snug Harbor and into the finals, 2-1.

Peter McCarron put Atherton ahead in the first period but John Gleba's second period tally tied it for Snug Harbor. A scoreless third period set the stage for Keefe's game winner.

Quincy reached the final by disposing of Montclair, 5-3. Quincy got two goals from Robert Livingstone and one each from Paul Penzo, Joe Callahan and Richard Brooks. Montclair, held scoreless in the first period, exploded for two second-period goals by Jim Nee and Richard Horrigan, closing the Quincy lead to one. Teddy Hohmann's third period goal wasn't enough as Quincy withstood the Montclair rally and moved into the final.

Atherton Hough's Forman scored first while Engrassia's second period goal tied the score for Quincy setting up the third period. Jay DeAngelis and Livingstone scored for Quincy and Greg Keefe, who scored the semifinal winning goal, tallied again but that's all Atherton Hough could muster and Coach Don Smith and his Quincy team had the 1978 street hockey championship.

Recreation Director Charles L. Alongi, Jr. presented ribbons to Coach Manual Parros and the runnerup Atherton Hough squad and trophies to Coach Smith and the championship Quincy team.

Raiderettes Defeat First Ladies In Wind-up

Things are looking up in girls track at Quincy and North Quincy with this year's squads dominated by sophomores and the future looking brighter.

Last week, Jeff Strungis' North girls wound up their regular season with a 63-55 win over Joe Amorosino's Quincy team. North finished 3-4 while the small Quincy squad was winless in six meets.

Strungis, in his second year as North coach, has 29 girls, including 19 sophomores. Amorosino, in his first season as Quincy coach, has 17 girls, of which 10 are sophomores.

"Last year we lost to Quincy, 59-58, and I feel we could have won if I had put another girl in the two-mile run. But this makes up for that loss," Strungis said.

The girls at both schools took part Tuesday in the all-league meet and are preparing for the state class trials and finals on Saturday and hope to qualify for the all-state meet on June 2.

Both schools are benefitting from the Quincy Track Club. Many of the girls take part in the club's summer meets.

"We have changed our training a bit," explained Strungis. "We have regular weight training three times a week."

"We need more girls," Amorosino said. "We had some fine performances this spring but lacked depth. I hope interest will continue to improve and that we have a bigger turnout next year."

Janice Kelly, whose late father, Frank, founded the Quincy Track Club, was a double winner for North, taking the dash in 11.9, and the long jump at 16.1. She is one of the few seniors for the Raiderettes.

Cheryl Ames won the high jump with a 5-4 jump, a school record, and she was third in the 220.

Patti Miceli won the shot put (32-11) and was third in the discus. Sue Cahill and Lisa Green were first and second in the javelin.

Sophomores Eileen McKenna, Laurie Adams and Mary Tenney swept the hurdles in that order. Janet Abby was third in the two-mile and Linda Kelleher was second in the half mile and her 2:33.4 was a school record.

For Quincy, sophomore Donna Reardon won the mile in 5:36, a school record.

Paula Constas, a senior, won the half mile in 2:31.3, another school mark, and took second in the long jump.

Senior Heidi Dolan was second in the high jump and third in the half mile, and Dotty Irvine, the only other senior, won the two-mile.

Junior Rita Pasqualone set a school discus record winning with a 92-7 toss and was third in the shot put.

Paula Church remained unbeaten in the 440 and was second in the dash. Lois Guiglielmi won the 220, an event in which she lost only once. Donna Tellefabrizzio was third in the high jump.

Quincy received a tough break when sophomore hurdler Lois Lattina, fell. She was not seriously injured.

"Lois was running around a 35 at the start of the season and improved to 30, a five-second improvement," Amorosino said. "She is an excellent prospect and should be outstanding next year."

St. Coletta Students In Charles River Run

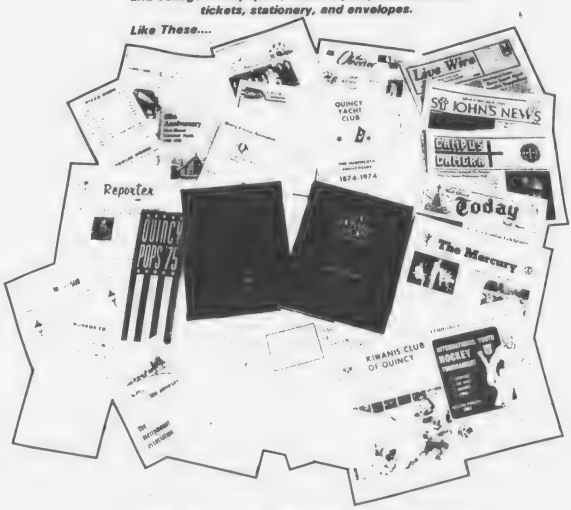
Staff members running with the students were Dick Crisafulli, Mary Cannon, Diane Persichillo, and Vin McGuire.



The team hopes to continue its training and run in at least two sanctioned runs each week.

ADVANTAGES OF BUYING A HOUSE

The decision on whether to rent or buy a home is one that eventually confronts almost every family. If this is your case, here are a few thoughts to consider.

First, an equity [cash value] is built up as you pay for the home over the years. And, its resale value can increase greatly [as has been the case in recent times] with rising real estate prices.

Also, property taxes and mortgage interest can be deducted from income taxes. This can be a sizable tax deduction, especially during the early years of the mortgage when about 90% of the monthly payment represents interest on the loan. Rent, on the other hand, cannot be deducted from anything but the checking account.

When you own your own home, there is no fear of a raise in rent; your monthly mortgage payments remain the same for the life of the mortgage. Finally, where else can you find an investment that you and your family can live in while its value increases?

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

Morrissey Urges

If You Don't Like Airport Noise COMPLAIN!

By TOM HENSHAW

If the noise of passing aircraft is driving you up the wall, pick up the phone, dial 567-3333 and tell the friendly Massport noise abatement people all about it.

"And don't be afraid to give your name and address," said Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy). "Believe me, they take these complaints seriously.

"It's important that people register their complaints. That will give us some bargaining power. We can say to them, 'Listen, you got 600 or 700 calls. What are you going to do about it'?"

Complaints from Squantum, Atlantic and other areas of Quincy about the noise of airplanes taking off and landing at Logan International Airport had official phones buzzing over the weekend and Tuesday morning.

Chief targets of callls were Morrissey, Rep. James A. Sheets (D-Quincy) and the office of Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

"I must have had 20 calls over the weekend," said Morrissey. "There were another 10 or 15 Tuesday morning. Massport told me it has received 300 complaints from the area."

Dial 567-3333 To Protest Noise

Ronald Kaufman, a spokesman for Sheets, said the State Rep's office even had a call from a man living in the Willard St. section of West Quincy.

"He said he moved from East Boston to Quincy to escape the noise from the airport," said Kaufman, "and the noise over the weekend nearly knocked him out of his bed."

To Be 9-Member Line-up

Tobin Announces 6 Choices For Reorganized Park-Recreation Board

Mayor Tobin has announced his six choices, effective today [Thursday] for the reorganized nine-member Quincy Park and Recreation Board. They are:

Ward 1 - Francis W. Donovan, 101 Lenox St., Houghs Neck, a former semi-pro baseball player who has been active for many years in Quincy youth baseball leagues.

Ward 2 - Theodore DeCristofaro, 17 Murdock Ave., Quincy Point, a member of the Park and Rec Board for several years and former president of the Ward 2 Civic Association.

Ward 3 - Miss Katherine G. McCoy, 149 Wilson Ave., Montclair, who returns after a brief absence to the Park and Rec Board on which she served for 25 years.

Ward 4 - Mrs. Barbara L. Righini, 110 Bunker Hill Lane, West Quincy, active in the St. Moritz Association for a number of years.

Ward 5 - Richard M. Morrissey, 9 Buckingham Rd, Wollaston, a former member of the Park and Rec Board and the Quincy Conservation Commission.

Ward 6 - Joseph M. Lydon, 215 Park Ave., Squantum, another former member of the Park and Rec Board.

The two City Council choices for the Board are Gerard A. Colletta Jr. and Joseph E. Burke.

The ninth member will be a member of the School Committee.

Legislation allowing Quincy to increase the size of the Board from seven to nine members was signed into law by Gov. Dukakis last Friday.

Mayor Tobin, who instigated the change, said it will "insure present and future citywide representation on the policy-making body responsible for municipal park facilities, forestry maintenance and recreation programs."

It was the City Council's idea that one of the members also be a member of the School

Viable Location Goal

Good News! ENC To Stay Here

After months of speculation and indecision, Eastern Nazarene College has decided to stay in Quincy after all.

ENC trustees, it was announced this week, "have decided that every effort will be made to make the existing campus a viable location for the present and intermediate range needs of the college."

It means, said a source close to the trustees, "that they have now decided to put all their energies into staying. They are no longer seeking a location elsewhere nor are they seeking a buyer for the present site in Wollaston.

"But the door is not closed all the way. Who knows what can happen in five or 10 years."

The announcement from ENC trustees said the board has also "directed that dialogue be continued with city, governmental and private sector leadership designed to maximize the current location."

Eastern Nazarene, which is crowded into a couple of residential blocks on East Elm Ave., Wollaston, has had a problem with expansion plans in the past few years.

In the past, ENC officials have investigated several sites in Pennsylvania, closer to the center of the Church of the Nazarene's eastern district. The latest announcement apparently rules out such a move.

The announcement said:

"The Board of Trustees further directed that reports be provided at each meeting (with city leaders), regular or special, for the forseeable future regarding the success of these efforts (to enhance the Wollaston campus.

"The Board of Trustees also directed that in addition to the performance of necessary maintenance on existing facilities, a feasibility study should be undertaken in respect to the structure, resources, etc., necessary for intermediate range, new or replacement facility needs with a report back to the Board of the preliminary results of such study by the fall of 1978."

Meanwhile, City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath said he plans to introduce a resolve at next Monday's Council meeting to rezone the college and contiguous property to Planned Unit Development (PUD) to permit ENC to build an addition to the library and a new dorm.

Quincy Oil Given 45-Day Deadline To Clean Up Oil Spill

The Licensing Board has given Quincy Oil Company a 45-day deadline to complete a clean-up program on an accumulated oil spill which occurred at its Town River Terminal, off Southern Artery, when a pipe ruptured during the Great Blizzard of '78.

Fred Bergfors, president of the firm, assured the board that work on the clean-up was proceeding on schedule.

Fire Chief Edward Barry asked why the oil spill had not been reported earlier. Bergfors said a report had been made by telephone. However, Barry insisted the department had no record of it.

Fire Captain Carl Valenti, head of the Fire Prevention Bureau, told the board that he had inspected the terminal on May 15 and found the work being carried out.

Valenti said the contaminated dirt was being rmoved and rocks on the dikes were being cleaned with high pressure steam.

Bergfors said the spill had been reported to both the Coast Guard and the state pollution control bureau and that both were supervising the clean-up work.

Barry also pointed out that there has been vegetation on the dikes surrounding the tanks for some years and that it should be removed and "proper material substituted."

The chief called on Valenti to make weekly reports to him on

Action Postponed

Teachers Leaves Of Absence To Be Clarified

A motion calling for clarification of the Quincy School Department's policy on the granting of leaves of absence was postponed last week until a full committee is present.

Committeewoman Joan C. Picard had asked the matter be placed on the agenda. She told the committee she was disturbed to learn that school personnel have been given leaves to take jobs in nearby school departments, and the right to return to their Quincy post if they so desire.

"I don't think it's good practice to let a staff member work for a year and then return if he dislikes the other system," she said. "I am opposed to this and its about time to take a good look at this policy."

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon accepted a motion by Committeeman Christopher F. Kennedy, but reminded the board that a policy change would have to follow a different parliamentary route.

The motion was finally worded so that the action taken will reflect "the sense of the committee". Postponement was necessary because Mayor Tobin, chairman, had left the sessions and Committeeman John J. Sullivan was absent.

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the continued use of Boston Harbor as a port of entry and eastern Massachusetts as a storage and transportation point for liquified natural gas [LNG].

LNG has been criticized by some as a substance too hazardous to be stored or transported in areas of dense population.

"LNG has been imported in Boston since 1969 and is a regular import into major world ports," said Chamber President Gerald T. Reilly. "Over 3,000 LNG marine cargoes have been handled without major injury or fatality.

"LNG ships of equivalent value have lower insurance premiums than gasoline or oil tankers. It has been demonstrated that LNG cannot detonate and that an LNG vapor cloud cannot detonate, only burn."

Reilly pointed out that, with more than 100 LNG tanks in service in the United States, there has been only one accident in which fatalities have occurred.

"That was in Cleveland in 1944 where a primitive tank with inadequate nickel alloy steel in the first LNG facility ever built and with no diking ruptured and burned," he said.

"Some liquid flowing into sewers caused explosions, killing 128 people. There was no vapor cloud and onlookers 1,000 feet away experienced no harm. Two loaded LNG tanks in the middle of the fire did not burn."

Reilly said the Chamber's board of directors feels that "the use of LNG is vital to the continuation of gas service to Massachusetts high-priority residential and small commercial customers.

"In each of the last two winters, local gas companies have relied on LNG to serve approximately 15 per cent of their customers' needs. But the most critical need for LNG is during prolonged severe cold periods.

"During a typical three day cold period in New England, LNG would provide over 30 per cent of daily sendout; and on the peak day, vaporized LNG could constitute as much as 50 percent of the gas sent out by local gas companies."

Old Library Bookmobile Now In CD Department

The old Bookmobile has found a new home.

The vehicle, originally owned by the library department, was acquired some time ago by the School Department. The original intent was to convert the bookmobile into a traveling laboratory/shop in conjunction with the career education program.

This part of the program did not materialize and the bookmobile wound up parked among the school buses.

The school committee has now approved the transfer of the vehicle to the Civil Defense department which plans to use it with its recovery team.

Dr. Creedon explained that no money is involved in the transfer.

Quincy: The Right Place To Locate Your Business

By TOM HENSHAW

"Quincy," said a man who plans to build a $12 million home office in West Quincy, "has just what we seek in a new location.

"It's got permanence. It's got leadership. It's attractive from a cost viewpoint. It has a full range of services and amenities from a nice downtown area to a very rural atmosphere."

"I'm sure," added Robert Grant, vice president of the National Fire Protection Association, ' "that when the final decision is made Quincy will be a very desirable home for NFPA."

Grant's words set the tone for last week's Quincy Development Conference, called by Mayor Arthur Tobin to extol the virtues and opportunities of Quincy to developers and real estate operators.

The NFPA, which has occupied three different locations in Boston since 1896, has taken an option on 40 acres of land in the Old Colony Crushed Stone area of West Quincy.

The company said Grant, looked at 75 sites in suburban Boston before settling on Quincy.

Why Quincy?

"It is 15 to 20 minutes from our present downtown location," said Grant. "This move is less complicated than moving out to Route 495. It's much easier to sell to our employees.

"It provides us with a warm and pleasant working atmosphere and a certain charm we don't feel we would get in the middle of a downtown area. It's 15 or 20 minutes from downtown Boston but it has all the advantages of the city in a suburban atmosphere.

"It is very close to public transportation. Our employees can use rapid transit. Highway access is excellent. We're still close to the airport, which is very important because we have visitors from all over the world.

"From our standpoint, Quincy offers a good value for our dollars and there is a value that goes beyond dollars and that is the cooperation we have gotten from the leadership of the city."

It was just what every aspiring city wants to hear from a theoretically neutral source and the other members of the conference panel took it from there.

"The real magic of Quincy is that it has no Achilles heel," said Charles Hilgenhurst of Charles Hilgenhurst Associates, producers five years ago of the Hilgenhurst Report on the future of downtown Quincy.

"The projections we made five years ago are conservative at this point. Barring national calamities, Quincy is on the verge of crossing over the threshold in its downtown developments and particularly in commercial and retail areas.

"Quincy has everything to offer. Look at the transportation access. Where can you find so many vacant sites so beautifully located withing walking distance of the MBTA?

"There are certain towns in Massachusetts that are 'no-nos.' If you're a developer you're not going there because you know their reputations, their lethargy. They're more interested in protracting things than in making things happen.

"That's not true in Quincy. The government here is really very dynamic. It's like the old sports saying, 'These fellows come to play

2 QJC Graduates To Share $1,500 Scholarship Award

A $1,500 Quincy Cooperative Bank scholarship to aid students receiving an associate degree from Quincy Junior College will be divided this year between two students who have demonstrated strong academic achievement and contributed to the college or community.

This year's winners are Noreen Guest of Quincy and Marcelle Kiely of East Weymouth. Both students equally demonstrated the high qualities and achievements deserving of the award.

Miss Guest ia a 1976 graduate of Quincy High School where she served as class president during her junior and senior years. She was enrolled in the pre-nursing program and intends to go into nursing at Southeastern Massachusetts University.

"Thank God for Quincy Junior College," Miss Guest said recently. "I wouldn't have had anywhere else to go. I owe a lot to Quincy Junior College and will always be grateful."

In commenting on winning the scholarship she said: "It was thrilling. I really worked hard for it and it paid off. It's good to see a bank interested in kids in school."

Noreen was "Whip" of the Social Senate and as such ran most of the social functions at QJC.

Marcelle Kiely, the co-recipient, graduated from Rockland High School in 1967. She was in the legal secretarial science program at QJC and plans to attend the University of Massachusetts at Boston to major in journalism. She lives in East Weymouth with her son, Joshua, seven.

It took Marcelle 10 years to return to school on a serious level and she now feels she will be a perpetual student in some ways.

She was this year's editor of the Quincy Junior College Challenge, the student newspaper, and also was a staff member and photographer for the yearbook.

Asked for remarks and advice to new students Marcelle said: "Do yourself a favor and get involved. But don't forget extra curricular activities are just that and should not get in the way of your studies.

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

Spring is a time of rebirth for many living things. So, it is a good time to repot plants that may have grown too big for their pots during the winter. It is also a good time to trim plants that might have become stingy or lost leaves during the dry winter months. Any kind of trimming or repotting is something of a shock to plants, so if the work is done in the early spring, when plants are rejuvenating themselves, they have a better chance of surviving and thriving.

Our staff at NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 would like to remind you that it is not necessary to wait for a special occasion to send a gift of flowers or a plant and that today is as good a time as any to express our thoughts with a living message sent by us. Our floral designers are professionals in their field so let them create just the perfect arrangement. Delivery to your satisfaction is always guaranteed. Business Educators Speak At QHS

Business educators from Quincy and the South Shore recently attended a "Great Things are Happening in Business Education" workshop at Quincy High School Methods Center.

The workshop was sponsored by the business education departments of Quincy High School, North Quincy High School and Quincy Junior College.

Leroy Brendell, academic dean at Interborough Institute, New York, commented on "Trends in the Business Education Curriculum." Brendell quoted statistics indicating that although unemployment is high in many areas, business majors are still in great demand.

Margaret Collins, personnel administrator, Teradyne Inc., Boston, spoke on the topic "Crime and Punishment - Preparing Today for Work Tomorrow." She explained the crime is that young people are unprepared for work and the punishment is either they are unable to obtain employment or must accept employment in low level jobs which offer no opportunity for growth.

Marie Lynch, head of the business education department at Quincy High, introduced William Phinney, assistant superintendant of curriculum for Quincy Public Schools; Lloyd Creighton, principal of Quincy High School, and Edward T. Hannon, coordinator of Career education.

She also recognized Mary Jo Kilmain, a member of the Business Advisory Board, who was recently named Secretary of the Year by the South Shore Chapter of the National Secretaries' Association.

QJC 20 Years Young And Looking Ahead

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy Junior College is starting its second 20 years with a shaky past, a sound present and a dream of bigger and better things to come.

"We would like to see tuition [$600 a year to Quincy residents] remain low so that we can offer our services and scholarship aid to more and more people," said President Dr. Edward F. Pierce.

"We'd love to see a nice new campus, perhaps with a gymnasium and swimming pool that could be used by the entire community - for there are no non-students at a community college.

"We're meeting a need but obviously we could do a much better job with bigger and better facilities, more people – and, of course, more money."

The college will officially mark its 20th anniversary with a dinner dance Friday evening at the Holiday Inn, Randolph. The event is sponsored by the Community College Association of Quincy and the South Shore.

A reception will be held at 7 p.m. followed by dinner at 8 p.m. and dancing.

Quincy Junior College began in 1958 with 35 students attending classes in the old Coddington School in late afternoons when grammar school pupils were through with it.

Now there are about 1,200 fulltime students and some 2,500 more attending evening classes in the Coddington School, the old Courthouse and school buildings all over the South Shore.

There were only three graduates of the college in the first year [1960] -- William Smith, Janette McGuigan and Marjorie Guppy. This year [1978] there will be 360.

Actually, the role of the Quincy Junior College has changed dramatically along with the enrollment and facilities since those first classes entered in the late 1950's.

"The institution was founded to meet specific needs," says Dr. Pierce. "But the needs of 20 years ago no longer exist. The students of 1960 who could not be accepted by the larger colleges are now being recruited by those same schools.

"For example, the business administration program of the 1960's was identified as a transfer program to the Suffolk University junior year. Students in the 1970's can find direct admission to Suffolk."

When Dr. Pierce arrived in the summer of 1972 from Keene, N.H., State College he found enrollment declining and the college itself unsure of the direction it would take.

"High school guidance councillors did not look upon Quincy Junior College as their first recommendation for their students," he says. "We had to change the image of the institution.

"We are moving toward career education. We still maintain a liberal arts program for we still feel a need for it. But liberal arts and general education have gone down in enrollment and job related programs have gone up."

QUINCY JUNIOR COLLEGE

Quincy Junior College, under Dr. Pierce, has become less of a junior college and more of a community college.

"A community college," Dr. Pierce defines, "orients its curriculum to meet the needs of its junior college students and the community as well. In addition to pure education, it tackles the problems of the community."

When Dr. Pierce was still new on campus, a group of day care agencies approached the college about offering a course of training to staff and parents in day care.

Now it's a full two-year credit program leading to an associate degree in science.

"We expect 90 students to be enrolled in that program this year," says Dr. Pierce. "They are placed for internship with South Shore Day Care Services Inc."

Programs in computer science, law enforcement and electronics technology were started in the same fashion, by community demand.

The measure of success of Quincy Junior College, at the age of 20, is that it not only has the approval of its students but high school guidance councillors no longer hesitate to recommend it.

"It's the first choice of some students," says Dr. Pierce, "those who need a more informal atmosphere than the lecture hall of one of the larger colleges.

"More than 92 per cent of our graduates go on to further education, that is they take one or more courses. About 80 per cent go on to fulltime study at some point in their careers.

"Our most successful graduate is earning a salary in excess of $100,000 a year, although we can't claim credit for all his success. He went into the Air Force and now has a job as an airline pilot.

"We have had students leave Quincy Junior College and not only be accepted as juniors at Harvard but receive scholarships.

"Our students have been admitted to more than 100 institutions across the country but the number is small because our students tend to remain in this area.

"At this moment we have a very healthy situation of mutual confidence and trust on the part of all components of our community.

"We know what we need. We know what we want. We realize that we can't have all the individual things that would help to make life comfortable but we think we have a fine institution."

In a way, Dr. Pierce feels that Quincy Junior College is a little bit ahead of some older and better known institutions.

"You'll notice in the past year or two Harvard has started its outreach college into the community and now offers degrees in the evening programs.

"We've been doing that for years but it's really something new for Harvard."

Koch Club Awards $500 In Scholarships

Six graduates, three boys and three girls, from Quincy and North Quincy High Schools and the Vocational Technical School have won scholarships totalling $500 from the Koch Club of Quincy.

Carol Ann White of 18 Billings Rd., and Gregory J. Zoia of 72 Farrington St., each was awarded a $100 scholarship as the winners from North Quincy High.

Mary Megnia of 9 Brockton Ave., and Patrick J. Bambery of 42 Delano Ave., were the winners of $100 scholarships from Quincy High.

Patricia A. Brennan of 9 Yardarm Lane and David Craig of 229 Quincy Shore Drive were recipients of $50 scholarships from the Vo-Tech School.

Anthony T. Delmonico, chairman of the Koch Club scholarship committee, said the six awards makes a total of $8,000 given out since the inception of the program in 1959.

Although the Koch Club is largely involved in athletic and recreation programs, the prime purpose of the scholarship fund is to impress upon the boys and girls the fact that the organization is greatly interested and concerned with the education and scholastic ability of its members.

The scholarship committee members are Chairman Delmonico, Vice Chairman Thomas F. Nestor, Richard J. Koch Jr., Mrs. Anthony T. Delmonico, Mrs. Richard J. Koch, Howard F. Crowley and David J. Donaghue.

A total of 90 boys and girls have received awards since 1959. They included 40 from North Quincy High School, 30 from Quincy High School and 20 from the Vocational Technical School.

The Koch Club set up a permanent scholarship fund on the 25th anniversary of the organization in 1973, with a $5,000 grant established with the city of Quincy. The action guarantees that the scholarship awards will continue perpetually, should the Koch Club disband.

In 1998, on the 50th anniversary of the Koch Club, the interest accrued annually will each year provide scholarship awards to boy and girl graduates of the Quincy Public Schools.

The perpetual fund investment has grown to $8,700, and will continue to increase until the 1997 funding date.

Warned Of Tough Job Market

130 Graduate At ENC

A graduating class of 130 received degrees at Eastern Nazarene College commencement exercises Monday.

Also participating in the exercises were 34 students who will complete their studies and receive diplomas in August.

Dr. Eugene L. Stowe, general superintendent in the Church of the Nazarene, addressed the graduating class warning that they face the toughest job market in 25 years.

A professor who spent his entire teaching career of 41 years at the college, William J.V. Babcock, was awarded a doctorate and rendered a standing ovation by the graduates.

One of the most touching moments occurred when Bruce Baswell, New York, crippled since birth and the veteran of numerous operations, handed his crutches to a classmate and slowly walked across the stage to receive his diploma. His fellow graduates, many with tears in their eyes, rose and cheered.

David Wilfong, the student with highest marks, also was cheered as the last person to receive his diploma. He will wed fellow classmate, Donna Fandel of Quincy, in June.

Ten percent of the senior class has been hired by the Ohio Association for Retarded Citizens to work with such citizens throughout the state. Eastern Nazarene is one of two colleges in Massachusetts with an accredited program in social work, and this year graduated 22 persons in that field.

The graduates:

Curt Gowdy & Joe Costanza

Curt Gowdy and Joe Costanzo go together like sausage and scrambled eggs.

And that's appropriate because that's how they got together -- over breakfast.

Gowdy, one of the nation's top sportscasters came out of Wyoming. Costanza one of the top sports statisticians came out of -- Quincy.

They got together in 1950 when Gowdy was signed to the Red Sox games. And they have been inseparable as a broadcasting team since.

And, naturally, they were together at the head table recently when the Montclair Men's Club honored Gowdy, presenting him with its John B. Gillooly Award.

Gowdy, who had been working the New York Yankee games with Mel Allen, was hired by the Red Sox in November, 1950 for the 1951 season.

No sooner had the story gotten out when, recalled Gowdy:

"I got this telephone call one morning. This fellow said his name was Joe Costanza and he wanted to know if he could talk to me about working for me as a statistician for the Red Sox games.

"I told him there was still plenty of time and why not write me a letter and tell me all about himself. He said he was downstairs in the lobby [New York City] and had come in by Greyhound bus.

"Hell," I said. "If a man spent the night riding a Greyhound bus, at least I could talk with him. I invited him up for breakfast."

And since then, they have covered every major sport together either on radio or television.

"Joe started working for me," noted Gowdy. "Now, he works with me."

Costanza had this tribute for Gowdy: "He's the greatest guy I've ever met. And I owe everything I have today to him."

Joe grew up on Payne St., South Quincy and fondly recalls those years. He now lives in Wakefield but has replanted Quincy roots as a businessman here. He has the "Sports Information Center" located in State Street South, North Quincy.

If you ever get a chance to hear Curt Gowdy as an after-dinner speaker, don't miss it. He spellbound his audience that night at Montclair talking about his sportscasting experiences and got a standing ovation.

Among the highlights:

ON TED WILLIAMS: "One of his problems is that he's a perfectionist. He gets madder at Ted Williams than at anyone else. He took an awful lot of abuse from some of the fans in the left field stands--abuse that sometimes made him act the way he did.

Gowdy credits Williams for making him a better sports announcer.

"He taught me to try harder. I decided that if this man with all his natural talent still thought he needed to work at it, then I was going to work harder at being a sportscaster, by better preparing myself.

ON THE RED SOX: "The happiest 15 years of my life were the ones I spent with the Red Sox. Why did I leave? Because I had a wife and babies at home and I was on the road so much. Now, I'm away even more. I live in Wellesley. I will always stay here. This is my home."

ON TOM YAWKEY: "One of the nicest persons I have ever met in my life." Gowdy recalled being in the hospital for back surgery and worrying about his future. Yawkey visited him virtually every day and told him not to be concerned. His job with the Red Sox would be there waiting for him when he got back.

ON THE GREATEST ATHLETE: Gowdy said he is frequently asked who is the greatest athlete he has ever seen. The greatest, he says, would be a composite of three people: [1] Phil Harris, the singer-actor for stamina despite his fondness for booze. [2] Ted Williams for dedication to his work and his perfect eyes. [3] Byron [Whizzer] White, former football star now a U.S. Supreme Court justice and the man credited with breaking the Japanese code during World War II, for his mind.

Gowdy recalled Harris with affection. Harris, who is now 75 is up early to shoot or fish. Gowdy told of his first meeting with Harris at pre-dawn in a hotel restaurant before going out to do some duck shooting for a TV sports show.

Gowdy introduced himself and Harris said: "O.K. Jack, we're gonna have a real good time today."

Gowdy told him his name was Curt--not Jack. Harris just laughed and again said: "Well, Jack, it's still gonna be a good day."

Gowdy, quite puzzled, looked around figuring there had to be someone there by the name of Jack. But they were alone. Then Harris smiled, suddenly unveiled a quart of Jack Daniels, passed it and said: "How ya, Jack!"

A few kids showed up at the end of dinner and Gowdy obliged them with autographs.

Incidentally, wherever he speaks he gets a fee. He got one that night, too. And turned it over to the Jimmy Fund.

If you like Curt Gowdy on TV, you'll like him even better in person.

Quincy Lauded As Right Place For Business

ball.' When you're with them in a room they know how to play ball."

"Quincy is what we used to call a hybrid," said Kevin Phelan, vice president of Meredith and Grew Corps, Boston real estate firm, who used to be with State Street South.

"We're not downtown Boston. We're not Canton. We're not Wellesley. We're a neat in between fit. Twelve minutes from downtown Boston. Twenty minutes from the airport. A half hour closer to the Cape on a Friday afternoon. Little things are important.

"Quincy is turning into a first class office market. It's a town whose time has come and it's ready for additional company relocations and even speculative builders. It's an easy sell. The town is happening."

"Transportation was a part of the new spirit of growth in the city," said Jack Leary, project manager for the MBTA, which, he said, has invested or committed about $115 million in Quincy.

"After 14 years of existence, the federal transportation bureaucracy has finally begun to realize that good public transportation can be a major instrument of urban revitalization.

"An important section of the MBTA's federal aid applications now deal with the ability of the expenditures to stimulate private economic development. Urban revitalization has become a primary justification for approval."

Leary said daily ridership from the three MBTA stations in Quincy has reached 26,300 trips with 30 per cent of that figure representing Quincy residents.

"This," he said, "makes Quincy the gateway to the South Shore."

The Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development director, told the developers and real estate men that the value of Quincy today is like the value of IBM stock in 1930.

"Take a guess at what land areas in the downtown area are going to be worth 10 years from now," he urged. "If you're wise you'll get in on the ground floor."

He cited "a couple of bargain areas I want to offer you."

One is the acre-and-a-half Della Chiesa Parking area, 500 feet from the MBTA station, and the other is the larger Hancock Parking Area, two blocks away.

"The city," he said, "is willing to offer either or both of them to any developer on a lease basis for $1 a year as long as you give us a minimum of 200,000 square feet of new buildings on each space."

He said the city is negotiating with the county to bring to Quincy a $20 million county courthouse, flanked by two office buildings with about 100,000 square feet of space.

"We have a new mercantile store of the highest quality that's just on the verge of signing a contract to come into the city. We have $18 million worth of housing being constructed on the periphery of the downtown area."

Baharian gave this timetable for the construction of the Burgin Parkway [formerly Upland Rd.] extension:

Public hearings, just around the corner. Contract for engineering studies, signed in six weeks. Bids, out next February. Start of construction in about 10 months.

"This means you will be able to get here in a matter of seconds," he said. "It will open the entire downtown area to development that up to now we have not dared to dream of."

Carmine D'Olimpio, president of the Quincy Building Trades Union, held out to developers the bait of "a long established recognition of labor and management, one for the other."

"It is proven," he said, "in the form of agreements and contracts and the participation of both parties in city committees and commissions.

"When an area can get the Chamber of Commerce and the unions to sit down, have coffee and conversation to discuss the problems of mutual concern, then you've got a progressive community.

"Time and effort have been put in by labor and management to insure common goals, such as extension of the MBTA tracks and the writing of local building codes.

"This not only recognizes the problems but also provides the vehicle to solve them, insures respect and harmony and helps to promote peace and productivity."

Joseph Angelo, manager of Remick's of Quincy, told the gathering that "selling Quincy as a viable retail center is not a difficult job."

"We have enjoyed an excellent business," he said, "and we're expecting to enjoy an even more profitable business in the years to come.

"We can and will grow through easier accessibility to the south and west. Those roads are coming by 1981. We're going to be ready. We want you to join us and help us and grow with us.

"Quincy has been known, is known and will be known as the capital of the South Shore."

Introductions were performed by Mayor Tobin, Planning Director Walter J. Hannon, and City Councillor Leo J. Kelly, chairman of the council's development committee.

Developers and others attending the Conference included:

John and Leo Corcoran of John M. Corcoran Co.; Charles Clancy of Cabot, Cabot and Forbes; Peter J. Benke of Hunneman and Co., Inc.; Maurice E. Frye Jr. of R. M. Bradley and Co., Inc.; Eric Swider of the New England Council; Robert Kenney of Urban Consulting Associates.

Ove Standakov of Sears, Roebuck; William McCall of Leggat, McCall and Werner; James Chandler of Charles T. Main, Inc.; Charles B. Twigg of Twigg Associates; Robert Alton of Bay Development Co.; Thomas Curtis of Angelo's Markets; and Ron Zooleck of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

READER SPEAKS OUT

It's Still Bethany Church

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Through a misunderstanding of a legal notice, newspaper announcements have conveyed the impression that Bethany Congregational Church has changed its name to simply "The United Church of Christ". Such is not the case.

In 1965 the church voted to add "United Church of Christ" as a form of subtitle. This was in keeping with the merger of the Congregational Christian and Evangelical and Reformed denominations into the new national body called "The United Church of Christ".

In connection with the transfer of church property it was discovered recently that our corporate title had not been legally changed in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth; hence the public notice that we are officially "Bethany Congregational Church of the United Church of Christ in Quincy, Massachusetts."

More simply, we will go on under the familiar title of Bethany Church.

Tobin, O'Connell Back Abigail Adams For Silver Dollar

ABIGAIL ADAMS

Abigail Adams on the new U.S. silver dollar?

Sen. Arthur H. Tobin (D-Quincy) thinks it's such a grand idea that he has filed a resolve in the Senate asking the President and the Congress to give it some thought.

The resolve urges them to "take whatever steps are necessary to place the profile of the outstanding woman of American History and a Massachusetts native, Abigail Adams, on a new dollar size coin next year, representing all American women."

It notes that Abigail was the wife of one president and the mother of another, "a charming, intelligent and dignified representative of American womanhood.....an early feminist and exponent of freedom and equality of all women."

Other candidates for depiction on the proposed silver dollar are Susan B. Anthony, a leader of the women's suffrage movement; and a fictional "Miss Liberty."

That Abigail -- wife of John and mother of John Quincy -- appear on the coin was first suggested by the Patriot Ledger in an editorial May 26.

The Ledger called the Weymouth-born daughter of the Rev. William Smith "a true-life woman who attained most of the honors symbolized by the female Liberty Head and was a women's rights advocate long before Ms. Anthony."

"A decision to carry Abigail Adams on the new coin could do much to restore dignity to the selection process, even if it does little to restore faith in the American dollar," added the newspaper.

William A. O'Connell, president of the Quincy Historical Society and no shrinking violet when it comes to standing up for Quincy's past, fired off an enthusiastic endorsement to Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal.

"We would like to point out that consideration of Abigail Adams as a profile for the new dollar coin would be especially timely in that the Adams Birthplaces have been officially offered to the U.S. Government," he wrote.

"We believe that she would be well-accepted both as a woman who played a unique role in our early history and as a prototype of the high caliber, self-esteemed woman whom we would seek to honor today."

The decision is up to Blumenthal, who could jump at the chance to select a compromise candidate between warring factions in the Treasury Department, one supporting Ms. Anthony, the other favoring Miss Liberty.

City Officials Protest Noise From Flight Patterns

Mayor Tobin fired off a heated letter to Massport Director David Davis complaining about the noise, which was caused by shifting flight patterns to a new runway at Logan.

"It is a tragedy," he said, "that the Port Authority would sneak in this new flight pattern in the Squantum and Wollaston areas. They should be considerate of the noise all over the South Shore, including Dorchester and South Boston without shifting it from place to place.

"With the Atlantic Ocean all to the east of Logan Airport, it just seems to me that a new flight pattern could be created so the densely populated areas, which I represent, would not be adversely affected."

Tobin said he feels strongly enough about the matter to bring it to the attention of the governor.

Morrissey said Massport gave him this explanation of the noise problem:

"In general, all aircraft prefer to take off and land into the wind. That explains the runways they are using.

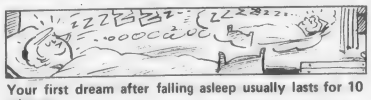
"In the last three or four weeks, they've changed the pattern. They're flying out at a heading of roughly 195 degrees over the Squantum-Wollaston area.

"Planes landing come right down the Neponset River. There is a beacon five miles out from the airport, which is the Neponset Drive-In. That marks an approach.

"On takeoff, aircraft can be fanned out so the noise will not affect a single area. I think that what's happened is they are not fanning out. They're going right over Squantum.

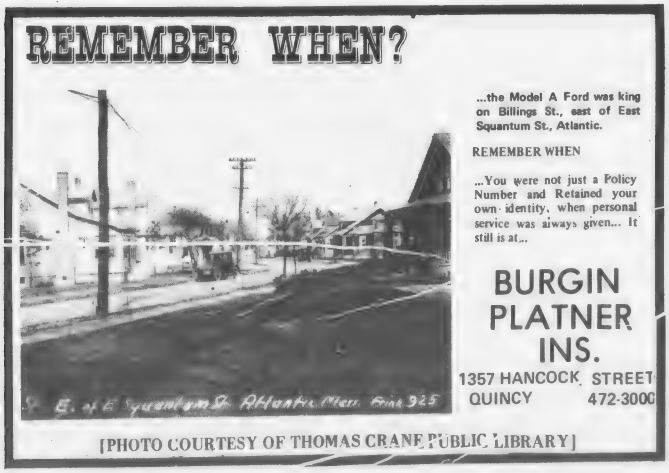
"The noise has been getting worse and worse. I think over the Memorial Day weekend a lot of people were home and more conscious of the noise."

Morrissey said Massport experimented for two hours, between 10 a.m. and 12 noon, Tuesday, changing the direction of takeoffs and landings from 195 degrees to 180 degrees, a little farther out to sea.



"People noticed a marked change in the 15 degrees difference," he said. "But Massport hasn't evaluated the affect the 180 degrees would have on other aspects of takeoffs and landings."

Kaufman said Sheets has been aware of the problem since last October when he and Morrissey asked for a meeting with Massport.



"Out of that meeting came the promise that Massport would put noise monitoring stations, at least temporarily, at Quincy, Squantum and Dorchester to measure the problem," said Kaufman.

"We got a letter in April giving us the results, the decibel count in Squantum. This dealt with takeoffs. They told us landings are much noisier than takeoffs. We're convinced the decibel range is much higher."

Kaufman said Massport "promised to work with us but they haven't been improving the problem. They've been making it worse."

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By Tom Henshaw

Stage Set For Eastern Mass. Bus Strike

A strike of 2,100 AFL bus drivers and mechanics against the Eastern Mass Street Railway Co. loomed as members of the union refused to approve a new contract.

The contract, which would have given drivers a 15-cent hourly wage hike over two years and a reduction of the work week from 48 to 40 hours, was voted down 1,197 to 758.

June 1-7
1948
30 Years Ago
This Week

The vote of the Quincy local was 232 to 2 to reject.

The drivers, who were working a 48-hour week for $66.82, were seeking a 20-cent hourly pay increase and a 40-hour work week. The company's original offer was a 5-cent an hour raise.

Meanwhile the New Haven Railroad postponed until June 13 its scheduled cut of 64 commuter trains on the Old Colony Division in case the bus drivers went on strike.

FORE RIVER LOW BIDDER

Bethlehem's Fore River Shipyard was disclosed as the low bidder at $54 million on contracts to build two passenger liners for American Export Lines.

John T. Wiseman, general manager of the Yard, said if Bethlehem got the contracts the 4,500 workers at Fore River would be assured of stable employment for the next two years.

However, a spokesman for American Export Lines said construction of the two liners depended on favorable Congressional action on bills calling for a 50 per cent federal subsidy.

$16 Million In Rebates For Boston Gas Co. Customers

Boston Gas Company announces a rebate of $16 million for about 60 percent (280,000) of its gas customers, along with an on-going rate reduction for them.

The rebate and lower rates result from the successful challenge by Boston Gas and others of rate increases in recent years implemented over the last few years by one of New England's two pipeline suppliers of natural gas from the southwest. The other supplier is also expected to send Boston Gas a refund in a few months which similarly will be returned to the remaining 40 percent of Boston Gas customers whose rates are based on gas from this pipeline supplier.

The rates charged by pipeline suppliers to local gas distribution companies like Boston Gas are authorized by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) subject to refund if successfully contested.

Over the past several years, with Federal government approval, the pipeline instituted rate increases based on its anticipation of severe effects of curtailment, plant depreciation and capital costs. On behalf of consumers, Boston Gas and other distributors challenged the increases and successfully negotiated reductions based on a variety of changed circumstances, including improvements in the gas supply situation.

This refund, which will average about $90 for the typical residential gas heating customer, will be reflected in a lower "Price Adjustment" on monthly gas bills over the next year, starting June 1.

In addition, the lower pipeline rates ordered by the FERC also result in an on-going rate reduction for those same Boston Gas customers whose rates are based in part on this pipeline's gas prices.

The board asked Bergfors to consider fencing the entire terminal and give them an answer within 30 days.

Councillor Raymondi told the board residents of the Quincy Point area have expressed concern that the terminal is not completely fenced.

The board also noted that the Quincy Oil Company filling station at Fore River traffice circle was "a mess".

"The station is a disgrace," Raymondi said. "I have had many complaints about the place. The general condition of the property is deplorable.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn, acting chairman of the board, said the company should be compelled to maintain the station.

"We will bring them before us every week until something is done - or we will close them down," he warned.

He called on Bergfors to visit the station personally and return before the board in two weeks "with ideas on what you are going to do to improve the station."

WHY IS OUR'S BETTER?

People often remark about the quality of the things we sell. "Why is it so much better than other places?" they ask. Maybe it's just because we care more. Of course this is the tenth year for O'Connells in the garden shop business and by now you'd expect that we know what we're doing...we get only top quality trees, shrubs, plants and supplies for our customers. You could go to the most elegant florist shop and pay outrageous prices but you wouldn't get better merchandise.

Many people say they've seen us as they go by on the train. If you're among them give us a wave next time.

MONEY TALKS
Your Insurance Agent Deserves Careful Selection
By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Our observation that many homes today are inadequately covered by insurance prompted a flurry of comments and questions that indicate some home owners have been overly casual about protecting one of their principal assets.

Inflationary trends in home values have outstripped insurance coverage to such an extent that owners suffering fire damage or loss today could not afford to continue living in comparable accommodations under old insurance policies.

Discussions with some couples have revealed that they are actually unaware of what protection they have. Comprehensive home owners' packages now safeguard against more than loss from fire, lightning, smoke, and the water or chemicals used to fight the fire. Protection is also available against explosion, riot, aircraft, vehicles, windstorm, and hail; it may also be desired against such hazards as vandalism, glass breakage, ice, snow, freezing, falling trees, and bursting pipes.

Some home owners have not been selective in their choice of insurance agents. Agents are as important in their fields and should be as carefully chosen as are doctors or lawyers. A good agent will assure himself or herself that you get the kind of insurance appropriate to your needs. You may, for example, live in a modest home which is filled with priceless antiques and should therefore have a heavier coverage of contents than would a conventional policy which limits contents to 40% of the coverage on the house itself.

The good agent works for you in seeing that you get the right settlement in case of loss. The company's adjustor can be expected to save his firm as much as possible; a good agent will treat you as a client and will protect you from settling for less than you should. He or she will intercede if you and the adjustor cannot get together and may request a special investigation by the company.

One test of a good agent is whether he or she has approached you in the past five years to recommend bringing your coverage up to date, switching to a more comprehensive package, or saving on premiums through deductible clauses. If you have not heard from him or her over these years of fast-rising home prices, you may consider whether the agent you have is the one you need.

Real Estate Issue Top Item On November Ballot Says Harold

City Councillor Paul D. Harold says the most important item on the November ballot will be not the candidates, but a state constitutional amendment which would allow real estate to be taxed according to use.

Harold, who is a candidate for state senator, told the state and local government class at Aquinas Junior College:

"The amendment would make legal the illegal practice that has been used for at the least the past hundred years of assessing commercial and industrial property at a rate higher than homes.

The amendment would allow property to be assessed at a flexible rate. The four classes proposed would be residential, industrial, commercial and open space.

"If the amendment is not adopted the tax burden would be further shifted to homeowners and increase taxes as much as 30 per cent in older cities," said Harold.

"For small towns the classification would have the added advantage of helping to keep large blocks of land off the development market."

The Amendment, which will appear on the November ballot as a referendum, is supported by the Massachusetts Mayor's Association and the Massachusetts League of Cities and Towns.

WHITE ELEPHANT SYNDROME

In the real estate trade it's called a "White Elephant". An excellent house for sale which just sits and sits. Often you can recognize it by the tall grass and weeds overrunning the front yard; an occasional broken window here and there. The cause of this blight is always the same - OVERPRICING!

This story always has a sad ending - for the seller. Eventually, he has to reduce the price to sell. By this time, it's too late. The good prospects have waved goodbye and bought elsewhere. The appearance and condition have deteriorated. The eventual selling price is far below what it could have realized had it been valued realistically from the outset.

You don't have to increase the "White Elephant" population.

There is a safe way to establish the RIGHT price. When you're ready to sell, see a local Realtor. He'll know the true value and what it will bring in the market. Top price, yes! Overprice - No!

Sterling 9th Graders Tour Quincy Cooperative Bank

Fourteen ninth-grade students from Sterling Junior High School visited the Quincy Cooperative Bank recently to explore careers in banking.

The students included:

Michael Coska, Shelley Dell, Dennis Donovan, Joan Fantucchio, Roy Hart, Walter Kilgallon, Michael Kradolfer, Joseph Marchese, Deborah Merrill, Julie Murphy, Stephen Remillard, Susan Smith, Donna Thomas and Lucille White.

The group was welcomed by the bank's president, John R. Herbert, who told them of the institution's history.

Carl Abramson, personnel director, and Joan Ilacqua, training supervisor, spoke to the students about careers in banking -- job requirements, wages and benefits, advancement possibilities, education and training, etc.

Students then toured the bank -- from tellers and customer service department through the loan and investment departments to check processing and accounting department.

The students were invited to ask questions of employees to learn about the various jobs, but also to learn something of the employee's background, training and career development. "One of the most effective ways for students to learn about careers," explained Ron DuBois, director of the program, "is to listen to others talk about their own careers."

The career education program is sponsored by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the Quincy public schools to assist students in making career choices.

South-West Council To Explain Paint Program

The South-West Neighborhood Council will meet June 7, at 10 a.m. at the South-West Community Development office and Councillor James Sheets will be at this meeting to explain the paint program.

The paint program enables homeowners to have the exterior of their homes painted. Any homeowner, who meets the guidelines, may apply for assistance.

All residents of the South-West Quincy Area are invited to attend the meeting.

Community Garden For Liberty St.

A suburban version of the famed Victory Gardens in Boston's Fenway is coming to South Quincy.

A tract of land on the dead-end section of Liberty St., off Centre St., is being prepared for a community garden program, according to City Councillor James A. Sheets.

The program is sponsored by the State Divison of Agricultural Land Use so that residents who do not have an area for gardening can have a chance to grow their own vegetables.

Sheets said much of the credit for the project goes to Russ Costa of 131 Liberty St., who has been the driving force behind it. Costa said about 30 lots will be available.

The land is owned by Old Colony Crushed Stone Co., and is being made available by Roger MacDonald.

Those interested in gardening should contact Costa or Norma Barriere at the South-West Community Center (471-0796) or Sheets at his State House office (727-2584).

Memorial Day Speaker

Ryan Disagrees With Court On Veterans Preference Statute

Memorial Day marks the blending of patriotism with gratitude, Quincy District Court Clerk Dennis F. Ryan, told a crowd attending exercises at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery honoring the city's war dead.

"This is our nation's most solemn holiday, blending patriotism with gratitude -- gratitude to those living and dead who put their country first," Ryan said. "Let us renew our pledge to heroic men and women whose love of liberty and justice would not allow them to be crushed under foot."

In his remarks Ryan said he disagreed with the ruling of the U.S. District Court that the state's veterans preference statute was unconstitutional because of the inevitable consequence of discriminating against women.

He said the statute "applies to veteran men and women and the fact that the statute favors males in greater proportion to the females does not make the statute unconstitutional."

Ceremonies at Mt. Wollaston followed a parade through downtown Quincy by veterans' organizations. The parade paused at United First Parish Church while wreaths were placed on the tombs.

Chief Marshal Joseph Callahan, Sr., commander of the sponsoring Quincy Veterans Council, reminded the audience that the ceremonies were held "to pay homage and respect to the men who, in their last measure of life, gave it for devotion to their country and to God."

Parade stopped at Quincy Sq. to place wreaths on tombs of John Adams and John Quincy Adams and then proceeded to Mt. Wollaston Cemetery where exercises were held at the World War II Podium. The parade and ceremonies were sponsored by the Quincy Veterans Council.

Tobin Names 6 To Park-Recreation Board

Committee.

The Park Board was established in the 1800's by city ordinance and was responsible for park facilities and recreation programs until 1948 when a seven-member Recreation Commission was established to oversee municipal recreation activities while the three member Park Board was retained.

In the legislative acts of 1961, the Park Board and Recreation Commission was disbanded and a merged Park and Recreation Board was created consisting of seven members, five appointed by the Mayor, with one required to be a member of the School Committee, and two chosen by the City Council.

Although the old Park and Recreation Board membership consists of representatives from every ward in the city, it was not required, and all members could have been chosen from one or two wards if the Mayor and Council so decided.

The Board annually elects a chairman from among its members.

The administrative structure will remain the same with the Executive Secretary to the Park and Recreation Board responsible for the administration of the Park Department while the Director of Forestry is supervisor of the forestry maintenance activities and the Director of Recreation, administrator of the municipal recreation programs.

On June 1, Old Colony Bank starts paying the highest short term savings interest rates ever.

With Old Colony's Six-Month Savings Certificate you get the same high rate as a six-month U.S. Treasury Bill with a minimum deposit of $10,000.

Here's how it works.

U.S. Treasury Bill rates change weekly. So the interest rate your Six-Month Certificate will earn depends on the rate of Treasury Bills most recently issued. (On May 22, the rate was 7.141%.)

Then at the end of 6 months, you can renew your certificate at the new prevailing rate or transfer your funds to an Old Colony NOW Account—an interest-bearing checking account. Or simply withdraw your funds.* It's that simple.

So fill out the coupon now. Or stop in to any office of Old Colony Bank. And on June 1 you'll start earning the highest short term rates we've ever offered.

*If the funds are withdrawn before maturity, Federal regulations require that the interest rate be lowered to the then current savings rate and that 90 days interest be forfeited.

Open House Sunday At Quincy YMCA Camps

This year marks the 50th anniversary of Resident Camping on Cape Cod for the Quincy YMCA.

In celebration of this milestone, an open house will be held Sunday, June 4, between 1 and 5 p.m., at Camp Burgess for boys and Camp Hayward for girls, located on Stowe Rd., in South Sandwich.

All former campers and staff members are welcome, as well as anyone else who is interested in visiting and inspecting the camps.

The Quincy YMCA Resident Camp program was started in East Bridgewater in 1919 by Floyd Folmsbee, who was general secretary of the Quincy YMCA and a pioneer in the resident camping movement.

When the Robbins Pond area became overcrowded, Folmsbee was instructed to find a more suitable camping area and his selection of an 80-acre site in South Sandwich resulted in the founding of Camp Burgess in 1928. The girls' camp, Camp Hayward, was founded in 1960. At the present time the camp site, encompassing both camps, covers an area of over 550 acres bordering Triangle, Spectacle and Lawrence Ponds.

Coordinator Assigned To Willard St. Traffic Problems

The State DPW is assigning Sumner Hoffman, chief urban systems coordinator of the Highway Designs Division, to lead a task force that will work toward improving traffic conditions on Willard St., West Quincy.

Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] said the task force will also consist of engineers from the MDC and the city of Quincy, plus residents of the area.

"It is my hope that with the cooperation of all concerned parties we will be able to find some solutions to the traffic problems that plague the ares," said Sheets.

He said improvements to the traffic flow from Wood Rd, Braintree, to South Shore Plaza have already been finalized and hopefully will be implemented next spring.

Sheets Asks $750,000 For State Scholarships

The amount of money available for state scholarships has been increased by $750,000, a sum added to the budget by Rep. James A. Sheets (D-Quincy) just before passage by the House.

"After talking to the state's scholarship office," said Sheets, "I was extremely concerned over the lack of funds available to our students particularly incoming freshmen."

While he is sensitive to the size of the state budget, he said, "it is my feeling that the families of college students, particularly those of middle income, must have some relief."

"It is almost impossible for the average family caught up in today's spiraling inflation to help put their children through school," he said.

"Until such time that we have some increased aid from Washington, it is our job at the state level to help those hard hit middle income families."

Fitzgerald Hopes QHS assistant Coaches Stay On

Tom Fitzgerald, newly-appointed Quincy High football coach, has been sitting down with the Quincy assistants, hoping that they will stay on.

Three of the current aides, John Bogan, Bill Maver and Peter Chella, were candidates for the position vacated by Hank Conroy, who retired after 14 years as head coach. The other assistant is Mark Conroy, Hank's son.

Bogan, a Quincy assistant for nine years, had much support for the job.

He, Maver and Chella are all former Quincy players.

Fitzgerald last week met t players who will return nex season and was pleased with th meeting.

"I outlined my philosophy and the boys were very receptive and I think it was an excellent meeting," said Fitzgerald, a former North Quincy all-scholastic who has been assistant coach at North for the past nine years.

Win 9-8 In 10 Innings

Mariners Upset Defending Champs In League Debut

The Quincy Bay Mariners' debut in the South Shore Coastal Baseball League was a resounding success Sunday as they upset the defending champion Weymouth Elks, 9-8, in 10 innings at Adams Field.

The Mariners, one of two new teams in the league this year, will host Whitman Friday night at 8 under the lights at Adams Field and Tuesday will be home to Hanover at 8:30 at the same site. The Mariners played Plymouth Tuesday.

Trailing, 5-0, after two innings, the Mariners stormed back with four runs in the third inning. Chuck LoPresti walked and Bob Benn tripled. Preston Carroll singled Benn home and he scored on a triple by Dave Perdios. Bob Mavo's sacrifice fly brought in Perdios with the fourth run.

Weymouth scored twice in the top of the fourth and Quincy came back with a run as LoPresti hit a home run.

Thanks to a brilliant play by Perdios, the next two innings were scoreless. With Weymouth runners on first and second and one out, Frank Niles hit a line shot on which Perdios made a great catch and turned it into a double play.

The Mariners added a run in the seventh on a walk to Carroll, a stolen base and Lew Fishman's double.

In the bottom of the eighth, Quincy went ahead, 8-7, with two runs on Benn's two-run homer, giving him three RBI.

Four walks enabled Weymouth to tie the score in the ninth.

In the 10th, Weymouth went down in order but pitcher Tim Clifford walked to lead off the Mariners' half and he moved up on a passed ball. Benn then doubled for the game-winning run and his fourth RBI.

Clifford, who had a fine season for Harvard, got the win and Tom Melanson was the losing pitcher.

Naborhood Bows To Frank's, 11-8

Scoring 10 runs in the first three innings, Frank's Pizza defeated Naborhood Pharmacy of Quincy, 11-8, in the Over the Hill Softball League. Naborhood is now 2-2 in the league.

John Volante had a two-run single, Bob Keenan a two-run single and Bob Conley a two-run triple to pace the Naborhood attack. Jack Silverstein and Keenan shared the pitching chores.

Friday at 6:15 Naborhood will play defending champion CBM at Hollis Field in Braintree.

No Heat Next Winter?

A reason, other than the obvious, lack of fuel, is a dirty chimney. Why?

Over the years soot has been building up on the walls, and in the lower part of the chimney, in many cases up to the furnace vent pipe. A loose brick or a heavy rain could knock enough soot off the chimney wall to completely cover the furnace vent pipe. Result, a furnace that has no where to vent except the cellar.

Morrisette, Topsham MDA Benefit Doubleheader Saturday

Morrisette Legion Post's baseball team, defending champion in Zone 6 and winner of the zone title 22 times, will host the Topsham Memorial Post team of Brunswick, Me., in a benefit doubleheader for Muscular Dystrophy Saturday at Adams Field.

The first game will start at 5 and the second game will be played under the lights at 8.

Morrisette has been involved in the Legion baseball program since 1945. Coaches Ray Cattaneo and Bill Corcoran played on the first team and have been coaching for the past eight years.

Morrisette has been in the state finals four times and in 1975 it captured the state and Northeast championships and played in the Legion World Series in Rapid City, South Dakota. Morrisette that year hosted the Northeast Regionals, the first time the event was held in Eastern Massachusetts, and Morrisette again will host this tournament next August.

Morrisette has scheduled 10 exhibition games prior to the start of the Zone 6 season. On the July 4 weekend it will play in a benefit tournament hosted by Salem Post for a Beverly High School athlete who was paralyzed in the Thanksgiving football game.

Morrisette has another outstanding lineup this season with the pitching showing more depth than a year ago as the team goes for its 23rd zone championship.

Pitchers include Ron Donovan and Dave Austin of Quincy High, Gary Earle and John Wilkinson of North Quincy High and Paul O'Toole of Boston College High.

The team has two excellent catchers in Steve Cook of Abp.-Williams and Bob Biagaini of North Quincy.

Infielders are Fran Donovan, Austin, Bill Deitsch and Pete Niosi of Quincy and Harry Donaghue, Bill O'Connell, Mike McCormack and Dave King of North Quincy.

In the outfield will be Steve Hale and Don Perdios of Abp.-Williams, O'Toole, McCormack, Niosi and Mark Giordani of Quincy.

Topsham Post is sponsoring baseball for only the sixth season. The team has made the state tournament three times in five years.

The first manager, Franklin R. Donley, past commander, is still with the team and his son, Charles, a former Springfield College player, is a coach. Thad Dwyer, a former University of Maine player, is the other coach.

Topsham has several three-year players including third baseman Tom Fish, catcher Mark Bower, first baseman Kevin Sullivan, and outfielders Dale Perreault and Gary LeClair.

Ray Billings, strong righthanded pitcher from the U. of North Carolina, is back, along with Craig Briggs, a three-year pitcher. Bob Lambert is another returning pitcher and Jon Nowicki is a promising newcomer.

Last year's shortstop, Gerald Billings, varsity shortstop this year for Plymouth State College in Vermont, has been replaced by Kyle O'Brien. Jim Michard plays second and is outstanding on double plays. Jim Thibeault, a first year player, will be in right field.

"We are looking forward to our trip to Quincy, June 3, and we fully intend to come back in August representing Maine in the regionals," Donley said.

The doubleheader Saturday will be the first in a series of spring-summer activities for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, sponsored by the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee.

Tickets are available from committee members, Cattaneo, Fred Prezioso, Charles Ward, Richard Walters, City Clerk John Gillis and City assessor John Comer. They are also available at the Morrisette Legion Post, 54 Miller St., The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., and the City Clerk's office at City Hall.

The North Quincy girls' track team finished its second season of official competition last week with a 4-4 record as it edged Newton North, 60-58.

ROTARY MOWER-LEADING HOME MENACE

Ever since the rotary mower became popular about 15 years ago, it has been a leading cause of home accidents. Each year [according to Public Health statistics] more than 140,000 injuries requiring medical attention are caused by these mowers.

Consider what goes on under the housing. With a motor turning up at 3,600 revolutions per minute, each blade tip of a 20-inch mower is making more than 60 revolutions per second. Thus a hand or foot could be slashed 120 times in one second. Actually, amputation can occur in 1/120th a second - the very first pass of the blade.

Unfortunately, children are often the victims. Twenty to thirty percent of mower victims are children under the age of 13. Children don't have to suffer these accidents. They should be kept out of the area when the mower is being operated and immature children should be refused permission to operate them under any circumstances.

Zambruno Javelin Winner

Barrett, Saville, 1-2 In Suburban 2-Mile Run

North Quincy's Mike Barrett and John Saville provided one of the highlights of last week's Suburban League track meet at Newton with a brilliant duel in the two-mile run.

Barrett won the event in the excellent time of 9:41, with teammate Saville just one second behind.

"It is a lot easier running when you have someone alongside helping out," said Barrett, a senior who overcame some nagging injuries to become the league's top two-miler.

North's Mike Gallagher won the discus at 162-6, a school record, and he evened his personal duel with Newton's Joel Dennis. Gallagher's only loss all year was to Dennis during the winter indoors. North's Mark Robinson was third.

Other North scorers included Jim Hanrahan, second in the javelin; Dan McIntyre, third in the low hurdles; Mike Larsen, third in the shot put; Fran McLaughlin, third in the javelin; Russ Chisholm, fourth in the 100; Jim Conboy, fifth in the triple jump, and Bill Dailey, fifth in the pole vault. The Raiders' mile relay team placed third.

Quincy's Kevin Zambruno won the javelin and the Presidents' Roy Higgins finished second in the 440.

Both teams will take part in Saturday's state class trials and finals with hopes of qualifying for the all-state meet Saturday, June 3.

Final City Budget Hearings Friday

The City Council's Finance Committee will conduct hearings on the final department budgets tomorrow [Friday] at 5:30 p.m. and Saturday at 8:30 a.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall.

Friday night's hearings will involve the Council on Aging, the Police Department, the Parking Receipts items and the Animal Control portions of the budget.

Saturday, the Committee will review the School Department budget and those items which have been placed on hold in previous hearings, according to Chairman John J. Lydon Jr.

Council President John J. Quinn said that Monday's recessed meeting of the City Council will be resumed Tuesday, June 13, at which time the city budget for fiscal 1978-79 will be passed.

Raymondi Blasts Bureaucrats

Tobin Threatens Court Action Over Aircraft Noise

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy and Massport confronted each other over aircraft noise this week -- the city in a surly mood and the state agency trying to placate and perhaps shift the blame to the FAA.

Mayor Tobin threatened to go to court for "injunctive relief" from the noise and, incidentally, obtain a legal ruling on Massport's definition of what is temporary and what is permanent.

City Councillor James A. Sheets introduced a resolution in the Council asking that an environmental impact statement be filed before permanent changes are made in flight patterns.

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi, in a table-thumping mood, demanded that Quincy "stand up and say, 'No! No! No!' That's the only language these bureaucrats understand."

Donna Berman, manager of noise abatement for Massport, told a Monday morning meeting Massport would like to move the takeoff and landing patterns out over the water but the FAA must approve.

She conceded that planes were now routed over Quincy to relieve noise levels in South Boston and, while the change is temporary, she was unable to put a time limit on temporary.

"I have assigned the city solicitor," said Tobin Tuesday, "to check on the technical and legal aspects of what grounds we would have to go into U.S. District Court for injunctive relief if this noise continues.

"If it continues on a 'temporary' basis for a long period of time we could ask for a declaration from the court on

Council On Aging Reorganization

Andrews 'Commissioner' Appointment Draws Fire From Stenberg

Mayor Tobin is reorganizing the Council on Aging and it's not going down well in some quarters.

Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, chairwoman of the Council on Aging, has called a meeting for today [Thursday] at 2 p.m. in the J. F. Kennedy Health Center to find out what's going on.

"The people on the board are kind of upset because we haven't been recognized," she told The Quincy Sun. "We haven't been notified about anything. We're like a bunch of patsies sitting up there on the board. We don't know what's going on."

She said the Mayor and Marion Andrews, who reportedly will become "commissioner" under the reorganization, have been asked to come to the meeting to tell "exactly what the story is."

Mayor Tobin, however, said Tuesday that he had not been invited to the meeting nor had he heard of it.

"What we're trying to do," he said, "is restructure this department so that we can provide many more services to the people, the handicapped and blind as well as the elderly.

"If she was listening during the campaign this was one of the things I said I was going to do and it is underway. We have been having regular meetings with the Department of Elderly Affairs in Boston.

"There's nothing that says I have to consult with her or anybody else. I'm the chief executive. It's been brought to my attention that some things are not being done and we're going to make sure they're done."

Tobin said he learned from the State Department of Urban Affairs "that there are additional

KIM DZUNG VO in tribute to Quincy and America.

Kim's Tribute At QHS Commencement:

'I Go To Sleep At Night With No Fear . . .'

Kim Dzung Vo came to America two and a half years ago, unable to speak a word of English, a refugee from a war-torn land, uncertain of the welcome she would receive in her new home.

Monday night, graduating with high honors, a member of the National Honor Society, she addressed her commencement in "the language that I have learned in two years at Quincy High School."

"I go to sleep at night with no fear from bombs, no fear from communist invasion, no need to escape," she said. "The people I have met in Quincy have been kind, friendly, caring and helpful."

Kim, a Vietnamese, was chosen to speak for her 434 graduating classmates at Quincy High's combined commencement with Quincy Vocational Technical School's 230 seniors at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"My family came from a fearful situation," she said. "We feared bursting shells and a communist invasion. Once it was clear we would get to America, we worried that America would not accept us.

"We worried that we could not understand this new language, environment and culture. I personally worried about the rumors concerning Americans circulated throughout Vietnam. These American people were supposedly selfish, unfriendly and crude.

"These rumors have proved false.

"My family has been accepted as permanent residents in America. My brothers and sisters attend public schools. Free educational opportunities help us to improve and to gain new knowledge, to continue to function in our new environment and to understand our new culture.

"Teachers in Quincy at all levels and subjects are friendlier and more willing to help the yearning students than the instructors I had in Vietnam.

"Friendships also develop more quickly here, especially in my case over the last two years at school, at church and at my job. These new companions have made me feel warm, happy and at home."

Edward F. Lawlor Jr., speaking for the Vocational Technical School, noted the rivalry between students at the Vo Tech School and those at Quincy High School.

"Vo Tech is not a step down," he said, "but a step up and is moving closer to a profession. Skills are developed, techniques are taught and experience is

Board Continues Matter

Kelly, Gillis Clash Over Cumberland Farms Ordinance

By PETER BARNICLE

A petition by Cumberland Farms for a permit to operate two combined retail food-gasoline station facilities was continued by the Quincy Licensing Board on Tuesday, pending City Council action on an ordinance which would prohibit such units.

City Clerk John Gillis, chairman of the board, informed the meeting he will seek an opinion from the Attorney General regarding the legality of such an ordinance.

In a heated discussion at the close of the hearing, City Councillor Leo J. Kelly charged the board chairman with favoring Cumberland Farms.

"If there is anything wrong with the ordinance let Cumberland Farms go to court," Kelly said. "Why should the city have to make the move?"

Gillis tried to explain that he did not want to be in the position of trying to defend an ordinance which the state might consider illegal.

Kelly insisted the ordinance was properly drawn by the City Solicitor and submitted to the council Monday by himself, and Councillors Joanne Condon and Stephen McGrath.

At one point Mayor Arthur H. Tobin came into the Council Chamber, where the board meets, to offer his support to Kelly.

He said that the traffic on Sea St., Adams Shore, where one of the units would be located, is already a problem.

"We have a redevelopment program going on in the business districts of the city," the Mayor said. "We shouldn't go into residential areas. This would only cause great difficulties."

City Councillor Stephen McGrath told the board the ordinance is now in committee and will be brought to the floor for action as soon as possible. He said he hopes that it will be passed before June 27, the date set for the continued hearing.

Board member Allan McDonald, Quincy building inspector, noted it was the policy of his department to issue no permits which might be in conflict with a pending ordinance.

Other members of the board, Police Chief Francis X. Finn, Fire Chief Edward Barry and Health Commr. Dr. Samuel Solomon indicated they favored Kelly's position.

In demanding the petition be turned down Kelly said that the board was not being fair to the people in the area he represented.

"You're not giving my people a break," he said.

Cumberland Farms came before the board several weeks ago requesting permits for two locations -- 470 Sea St., Adams Shore, and 604-614 Hancock St.

In similar requests they asked permission to store 800 gallons of oil and anti-freeze above ground, and 24,000 gallons of gasoline underground.

The petitions also contained a request "for a permit for a retail food outlet."

At previous hearings a number of residents of both areas voiced opposition to the requests and Tuesday signed petitions containing more than 200 signatures were presented to the board.

City's Financial Position 'Poor' Says Foy

"The city's financial position is poorer than it has ever been," says City Treasurer Robert E. Foy III, and it's costing the city money in interest on short-term borrowing.

Foy told the City Council Monday night that Quincy paid $373,000 in interest on tax anticipation notes last year while four years ago "we spent as little as $50,000 in temporary loan interest."

Tax anticipation notes are loans made generally between July 1 when the fiscal year starts and November when the first installment is due on property tax payments.

"All the interest has been paid off as of the middle of May," Foy said. "As of the moment we owe nothing in tax anticipation notes in either principal or interest."

He said he had no idea what the city will have to spend on temporary borrowing in the coming year, "but if we get back on a current basis, it could be as little as four years ago."

The subject came up when the Council was asked to authorize the Treasurer to borrow from time to time to meet expenses during the fiscal year starting July 1. It okayed the authorization.

Workshop On Day Care Facilities To Be Held June 13

A workshop for women on day care facilities - where to find one and how to operate one - will be held at North Quincy Public Library, Hancock St., Tuesday, June 13 from noon to 2 p.m.

The program is being sponsored by Project WAGE, a task force of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women in Quincy and the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College.

Guest speakers will be Rachel Rubin, family day care co-ordinator for the Office for Children, Sheila Pappas of the Living and Learning Center, and Donna Feldman of the South Shore Day Care Centers.

Many mothers would like to return to work, but find it difficult because of pre-schoolers. There are many excellent day care facilities available but some women have found it difficult to locate the one that meets all their needs. Many area facilities will be discussed in detail, including the things to consider when seeking day care for your child. A directory of day care options will be available to workshop participants.

Being a family day care provider is an excellent employment opportunity for women who have small children and wish to stay in the home. The workshop will explain the procedure for becoming a licensed day care provider, and how to run a day care home.

Free child care will be provided by a licensed day care provider during this workshop. For registration and further information, please call Project WAGE at 479-0734. Registration will also be available at the door.

Quincy Cookies, Nuts Sales Raises $8,417 For Blue Hill Girl Scouts

The Blue Hill Girl Scout Council has just concluded the order-taking phase of its annual product sale of cookies and nuts in Quincy.

Council Chairman Rosemary Hamelburg of Braintree, said that despite the bad winter, this year's product sale was the biggest ever.

Based on the initial orders, Quincy residents ordered 12,984 boxes of cookies and 2,520 cans of nuts, which will result in a profit to Quincy troops of $2,325.60 and a profit to the Blue Hill Girl Scout Council of $8,417.04. In addition, girls accumulated $1,298.40 in credit toward summer camp fees.

Mrs. Ruth Johnson, 24 Stevens St., Quincy product sale chairman, noted the money is the main source of revenue for Girl Scouting on both the community and council level, and "the support is greatly appreciated."

Anyone who was not contacted still has the opportunity to get cookies and nuts by calling Mrs. Johnson or the Blue Hill Girl Scout Council Service Center [472-5960].

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

As the price of gold continues to remain high, gold filled jewelry is increasing in popularity. After all, gold filled jewelry is actually gold. The difference is in degree. A piece of jewelry that is 14K contains 58.3% pure gold, while a gold filled piece of jewelry contains only 4% gold. Presently, gold filled jewelry is the second biggest type of jewelry seller. Its beauty and its price are hard to resist.

You'll find it hard to resist the many lovely pieces of jewelry we have displayed at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490. There is still plenty of time to find the perfect gift for that man in your life for Father's Day. There are many antique or estate jewelry pieces for your selection. Stop by and let my wife Marilyn, my son Bruce or me help you choose your gift. Hours: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

No Heat Next Winter?
A reason, other than the obvious, lack of fuel, is a dirty chimney. Why?
Over the years soot has been building up on the walls, and in the lower part of the chimney, in many cases up to the furnace vent pipe. A loose brick or a heavy rain could knock enough soot off the chimney wall to completely cover the furnace vent pipe. Result, a furnace that has no where to vent except the cellar.

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

Perhaps the most famous gardens in the world, outside of the Garden of Eden, are the Hanging Gardens of Babylon, the pride and joy of Nebuchadnezzar II [6-5BC to 562BC]. But these are outdoor gardens. For years, people thought that indoor gardens didn't start until Victorians started building conservatories inside their homes for flowers. Well, they were wrong. The first indoor gardens ever made were in Pompeii, built about two thousand years ago. The Pompeiians were a very proud people and liked to show off their wealth if they had any. And the way many of the wealthy showed off was to have elaborate, formal gardens in their inner courtyards.

Broad Meadows 9th Graders Collect Over 3,000 Pounds Of Aluminum

Ninth graders at Broad Meadows Junior High School during the past two months have collected more than 3,000 pounds of aluminum for recycling and hope to collect another 3,000 pounds before the end of the school year.

Last year's ninth grade earned $800 by recylcing nearly 5,000 pounds of aluminum. The students receive 17 cents a pound for the recyclable material from Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Company.

The project is under the direction of Peter Swanson, science teacher and student advisory board advisor. He explained the program is designed to contribute to a clean community and to raise funds for the student's end-of-year activities.

Next year ninth graders at Quincy Point Junior High School plan to start their recycling program.

Lisa Smith, president of the student advisory board at Quincy Point, said students from that school have met with the Broad Meadows recyclers for advice about setting up the program and approaching the community for support.

To introduce the program Broad Meadows ninth graders conducted a door-to-door survey in their neighborhood to raise the recycling consciousness of the community.

The students have organized themselves into rotating groups of "Friendly Recyclers". Each morning at 8 a.m. the group takes up stations at the main entrance to the school to receive aluminum brought in by students or local residents.

Most of the aluminum is beverage cans, but people also contribute clean household aluminum such as foil, frozen food trays, and snack containers, or aluminum scrap such as siding, storm door and window frames and lawn furniture tubing.

The average daily collection has been about 100 pounds, although on some days up to 300 pounds have been brought in. The Broad Meadows total of 3,000 pound since April 1 represents approximately 66,000 all-aluminum beverage cans.

The recyclers keep track of each student's contribution and often run small contests between classes or individuals to keep the spirit and interest high.

Cindy Wins Part In Brink's

Some day soon, 12-year-old Cynthia Manupelli of West Quincy will go to a movie and see herself on the screen.

Cindy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Manupelli of Adele St., and a sixth grader at the Willard School will appear in the upcoming movie "Brink's".

And how does a girl from Quincy get into a movie about the sensational million dollar hold-up at the Brink's North End, Boston garage?

Well, how did Lana Turner get discovered? In a drugstore. She was at the right place at the right time. So was Cindy.

She happened to be visiting a cousin in the North End when a neighbor suggested the girls submit photographs to the film producing company which was then lining up "extras" for scenes in the movie to be shot on location there.

The girls sent in snapshots last April. Time went on. And nothing happened. Until May 19 when the phone rang at 8:30 p.m.

Cindy was told to report to Brink's Productions, on Stuart St., Boston, at 5:30 a.m. the following morning -- with her hair in pincurls. Her cousin was not called.

Cindy, depicting a young immigrant Italian girl, took part in several scenes shot in the playground on Prince St., adjacent to the garage which housed Brink's counting room back in 1950, where the robbery was pulled off. She was filmed playing hopscotch, buying popcorn from a street vendor, riding in a 1950 vintage car and running along the street as Brink's trucks passed by.

The filming continued for six straight days and sometimes a scene was shot over as many as 20 or 30 times. That's a lot of hopscotch and popcorn.

Cindy did not have a speaking part but got a chance to chat with Peter Falk, (off camera), the film's star. He plays the role of Anthony Pino, the brains behind the robbery, who lived in Quincy at the time of the big heist.

And, she received $50 a day as an extra.

"Some days they only worked three hours but she got paid for the full day," Cindy's mother, Marie, notes. "If she worked for 10 hours there was overtime."

Cindy's quite an active girl. She plays first soprano bugle with the Sir Thomas More Drum and Bugle Corps. She's a member of Girl Scout Troop 141 sponsored by St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, and plays softball for the "Seals" in the West Quincy Koch Club League.

Cindy's days before the camera may not be over yet. When the company moved to another location, she was told to stand by. They may be back for remakes.

Cindy's ready.

THE QUINCY SCHOOL system is publicized as "Your Child's Business Address," and it's big business indeed.

Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon told the Quincy Taxpayers' Association that Quincy schools are second only to the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard as the largest employer on the South Shore with more than 2,000 workers.

And with it come some of the unusual headaches of big business. For example:

"We are now in the process of negotiating an agreement with our lunch matrons," said Dr. Creedon. "We are negotiating hours, wages, sick leave, vacations, etc., for a part-time job that's an hour and a half a day, four days a week. The law so requires."

MILESTONES: Mrs. Goldie Berry, former senior clerk in the City Engineering Department who retired in 1958, is a young 90 this week.....Joe Gildea, former member of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board and quite active in civic affairs, just turned 70, but looks no more than 50.....Mildred Lynch, principal clerk in the City Assessor's office the past nine years, has retired after 16½ years service to the city. Colleagues honored her with a little farewell party at City Hall presenting her with a gold chain bracelet and a money gift. And Mayor Arthur Tobin presented her with a citation.

CONTRACTOR Peter O'Connell has found out why they call it Granite St. O'Connell is building a 270-unit apartment complex for the elderly on a three-acre site there. And before the site is prepared, he will have blasted and removed 540,000 cubic feet of Quincy granite.

With a little luck, it would have all worked to his advantage. Builders of the John F. Kennedy Library were interested in the stone for that project but inspected it and found the Quincy granite too dark in color. If it had been the shade they wanted, they would have done the blasting and removing and paid O'Connell for the privilege of it.

As it stands, the once famed Quincy granite will be used as fill. And the blasting and removing will cost O'Connell $200,000.

Tobin Threatens Court Action To Stop Aircraft Noise Over Quincy

what we can reasonably assume is temporary and what is permanent.

"I think Massport will get the message. We're not going to tolerate sneak studies and that's just what this is, an experimental change in flight patterns sneaked in without telling anybody."

Mrs. Berman told the Monday meeting that the change in flight patterns has been in effect since May 1.

"For how long?" asked Tobin.

"I'm not sure," said Mrs. Berman, "but I can find out for you."

"Years or months?" persisted the Mayor.

"Oh, months," said Mrs. Berman.

"Would six months be temporary?" asked Tobin.

"I'm not sure what the definition of temporary is in this situation," Mrs. Berman conceded.

At one point in the meeting, Mrs. Berman announced that flight patterns had just been switched to take planes over Braintree for two hours. Just then a plane flew over.

"Would you wait a minute," Tobin interrupted her. "We can't hear you over here, really."

Tobin said the basis for the city's proposed court case is that "the action taken by Massport has nothing to do with safety regulations. It was strictly noise pollution.

"If it involves safety factors, no environmental impact statement is needed. But since safety was not a factor, it is our contention that they should file a statement before undertaking these things."

It was the introduction of Sheets' resolve that touched off Raymondi, who thought that a simple request for a study was not strong enough to impress Massport or the FAA.

"I don't support a study," he said angrily. "I think it's crazy. I think the City Council should go on record this evening as saying we don't need the noise; we don't need the jet planes.

"I don't think there's room for compromise. It's just 'No!' and that's it. Go some other place. Go over the ocean. Go under the ocean. Do whatever you have to do but stop bothering the people that I represent! I'm sick and tired of it!

"I think the people of Quincy are sick and tired of studies and committees and that sort of thing. Studies haven't done much good for the people of South Boston and Dorchester and they've been fighting for years.

"I think the issue is clear. The communities that say, 'No!' the loudest are the ones that benefit. The reasons other communities have succeeded is that they've continually said, 'No! No! No!'

"The city of Quincy should stand up and say, No! No! No!' That's the only thing these people understand. They're bureaucrats to the Nth degree. They only react to 8,000 phone calls every five minutes. Then they'll move some other place."

Sheets, somewhat taken aback by Raymondi's vehemence, explained that the only reason he presented the resolution "was to reinforce the Mayor's position which is to take legal action."

"It's not a question of going on record against Massport," he said. "It's building a case that's strong enough to win. Too many communities have not built their cases and they haven't won. They still have the noise."

Raymondi wasn't mollified.

"Studies and all that kind of thing scare me," he said. "Maybe if all the communities raise enough havoc then they could influence the federal authorities to approve a flight pattern out over the ocean."

Sheets said he would see what he could do to get officials from Milton, Dorchester, South Boston and other noise impacted communities together to see if they could make common cause.

The Council then passed the Sheets' resolution, 8-0, with Raymondi passing.

Mrs. Berman, with the aid of two Massport companions, Dick Marchi, chief of technical services, and Marco Trbovich, director of public relations, explained the change in flight patterns during the Monday morning session.

The problem runway, she said, is Runway 22, which is heavily used during the summer when the prevailing winds are blowing from the southwest. Planes take off best into the wind.

For 15 years, she said, the departure heading on Runway 22 was 195 degrees, which took planes over Quincy before they made a right turn to join the regional pattern controlled from Nashua, N.H.

"Two years ago the decision was made to give the air traffic controller at Logan the discretion to pick the heading depending on the wind," she said.

"His choice was to pick a heading (180 degrees) that would bring the planes down over an open piece of water (Dorchester Bay) before they turned west over South Boston."

South Boston, she said, is only a mile and a half from the end of Runway 22 and with the planes flying at 1,000 to 1,500 feet there was "a high level of noise exposure in South Boston."

Massport requested the FAA, which assigns flight patterns, to change back to 195 degrees, back over Quincy, to relieve the situation in South Boston.

"Until 10 days ago," said Mrs. Berman, "the runway had not been used sufficiently for us to get an idea of what the impact is on this area."

The noise is becoming more noticeable, she said, because there are more planes flying as the weather gets warmer, the prevailing winds are from the southwest and people tend to have their windows open in the summer.

Noise readings taken in Squantum, she said, indicate less noise level there than in South Boston, mostly because Squantum is 4.75 miles from the end of Runway 22 and the planes are 3,500 to 4,000 feet over the area.

Mrs. Berman also made these points:

- Even eastbound overseas flights from Logan must make the westbound turn over Quincy in order to join the regional control pattern at 270 degrees before heading out over the ocean.

- The big problem in routing departures out over the water is that "certain corridors are reserved for arriving traffic and can't be infringed upon by departing planes."

Massport itself cannot make changes in flight patterns but can make suggestions to the FAA, said Mrs. Berman, "and the FAA has been very responsive to our suggestions, within the perimeters of safety."

"But," said Trbovich, "as a matter of law, the FAA has the final decision."

READER SPEAKS OUT

Opposes Courthouse On Bargain Center Site

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In my short term in office as a City Councillor the Quincy Planning Board came up with many ideas, some good, some bad, but the prize of all their ideas is their proposal to take the Bargain Centre for a court house site.

This prime piece of property that yields the City of Quincy thousands of dollars in taxes every year should be the last piece of property taken for some non-tax-paying project. One can assume that any intelligent jury would award the Bargain Centre owners at least one hundred million dollars for the one store in Quincy Centre that is at all times busy and is, one could assume the store that is keeping Quincy Square alive.

If a courthouse is to be built let them add on two or three extra stories to the splendid court house on Chestnut St. in Quincy Square. There is no shortage of parking across from the present courthouse.

If the Quincy Planning board can get a developer to put up a high rise office building beside the Bargain Centre, that might prove to be of advantage to our city, but leave the Bargain Centre alone.

But before the City or County enters into an agreement let the City Council and The Mayor check into the tax-paying record of any developer. They should take a long look at past performances of any one who seeks to come into our city.

Quincy has long passed the point where it can afford any free-loaders.

Calls For Monthly Meetings

Harold Says City Should Keep Merchants Informed On Downtown Projects

City Councillor Paul Harold has called for regular monthly meetings of the Council's Downtown Committee to keep merchants apprised of pending projects and on-going studies.

In a letter to Councillor Leo J. Kelly, chairman of the downtown committee, Harold said the merchants need to be involved on a regular basis so they will know how proposed projects may affect them.

"Some merchants are in a precarious position," he said, "because they are hesitant to make improvements to their stores or expand without knowing the effect on downtown.

"Revitalization is one of the most important future tasks facing the city but in the interim it is important that we maintain our present strength and vitality.

"This present strength can be adversely affected if existing businesses are not kept up to date on various downtown proposals."

To often, he said, "the merchants most affected by a plan learn about it by reading it in the newspapers."

Harold cited plans for a medium-capacity convention center and hotel complex that were revealed in The Patriot Ledger this week by Planning Director Walter J. Hannon.

"The merchants read about it in the newspaper," he said, "with no details, no indication of the actual chances that the project will be built.

"But even more importantly, there was no information on how it would affect existing businesses."

Regular monthly meetings of the Council's downtown committee, along with members of the planning department and merchants, also would help solve some of the day-to-day traffic and other problems before they reached the crisis stage, Harold said.

He suggested that the committee, which is made up of all nine Council members, meet on the first Monday of each month just prior to the regular City Council meeting.

Tobin Adds $2 Million To State Budget For Quincy Hospital

Sen. , Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy] announces he has included money in the state budget as passed by the Senate, which will provide about $2 million of state reimbursement each year to the Quincy City Hospital annual operating budget.

Tobin added the money last week during hearings held by the Ways and Means Committee, on which he serves.

"Two years ago, in an effort to cut its own costs, the state stopped reimbursing hospitals for the medical costs incurred by patients on General Relief," said Tobin.

"The resulting financial burden to Quincy and its Hospital has been tremendous.

"This year, however, the state is in fine shape financially and has a sizable surplus. Those of us who represent the cities and towns are determined to recapture all this surplus in order to relieve the property tax burden borne by our constituents.

"This new money coming to Quincy and its hospital, equals about $8 on our tax rate. It is my intent that this reimbursement become permanently mandated by the legislature."

In all, Tobin added $23 million to the budget fo. both municipal and city hospitals.

"Adding money to these hospitals," he said, "is part of the effort by those of us who represent older cities to insure that as much of the state's surplus as possible is returned to our community."

A legislative conference committee must now work out the differences between the House and Senate version of the budget. The House version includes no help for municipal hospitals. Tobin said he is optimistic that his position will prevail during conference.

monies and programs that we are not even tapping."

"This is no criticism of any member of the board," he said. "If there is any criticism at all it would be that the whole existing setup is too fragmented.

"It is in the best interests of our senior citizens to bring all our programs under one direction.

"Some of our senior citizens resent the term Council on Aging so we have been thinking of changing the name to something like Senior Citizens Service Bureau."

The reorganized department, he said, probably would have a new board.

"There'll be an advisory board of citizens for input to make sure the programs and services are being handled right. We want people who are interested in senior citizens and have some expertise."

Tobin said it was proposed that the new head of the reorganized bureau be called "commissioner". But, he added, "I'm not hung up on that."

But Mrs. Stenberg was.

"Nobody knows anything about this new title of commissioner," she said. "Our bylaws state that the Council on Aging director is supposed to be appointed by the board and not by the Mayor.

"We're supposed to be making decisions for the Council on Aging. Marion Andrews [the acting director] is supposed to work for us. We're not supposed to work for her. But she's telling us what's happening. We haven't been notified about anything."

7-Month Bus Strike Settled

Service returned to normal on Eastern Mass Street Railway Co. bus routes but patronage was reported down following settlement of a seven-month strike of drivers and mechanics, longest in Eastern Mass history.

1959
19 Years Ago
This Week

The New Haven Railroad said that of the 1,700 new commuters it picked up as a result of the strike only 380 went back to riding the buses and many others were still using other alternative means of getting to work.

Twenty of the 125 drivers in the Quincy division failed to report to work on the first day after the settlement. It was said that seven had taken other jobs, eight were on the sick list and five were giving a week's notice to new employers.

The drivers, who were getting $2 an hour, and the mechanics, who were getting $2.16, sought a 25 cents an hour increase. They settled for 6 cents retroactive to Oct. 1 and an additional 4 cents starting July 1, 1960.

PARKING BID REJECTED

The City Council turned thumbs down on a suggestion by the Police Traffic Bureau that parking be permitted on side streets off Quincy Shore Drive during the summer to handle the autos of the large number of bathers expected.

Councillor Charles L. Shea voiced the suspicion that the MDC had made insufficient preparation for parking spaces when it built the new Wollaston Beach seawall and now it was trying to get the Police Department to bail out the situation.

Shea presented an anti-parking petition signed by more than 1,000 residents of the Wollaston Beach area.

"Such thinking," said the Quincy-born jurist, "strangles the free man or woman, reducing him too often to a vegetable status in a large organization."

Ambition Of A Lifetime

Mother Of 4 Graduates Magna Cum Laude From ENC

The ambition of a lifetime was realized recently by Mrs. Joanne Zoia Kelly of 21 Massachusetts Ave., Quincy Point, when she was awarded her bachelor of science degree in elementary education, magna cum laude, from Eastern Nazarene College.

Mrs. Kelly, mother of four sons, obtained her entire education - from the first grade on - within Quincy. She has also gained experience within the school system.

Joanne was enrolled in the first grade of the Francis W. Parker School in 1948 and continued on to graduate from North Quincy High School in 1961.

She put aside her plans for a teaching career in 1963 when she married Lawrence P. Kelly, a Quincy police officer. The couple has four sons, Lawrence Jr., 14, Shaun, 13, Kevin 12, and Steven, 10.

When the boys started school she again became active in education, volunteering as a classroom aide at Daniel Webster Elementary School. The desire to teach became stronger and in 1972 she applied to the Quincy School Department to become an aide. She began as the first Title I guidance aide in the city, working with kindergarten through the third grade at Webster.

Shortly after her appointment she began to take Early Childhood courses at Quincy Junior College to give her a broader background as a guidance aide. She resigned her position to pursue her studies at QJC and graduated with an associate degree in 1976.

During the latter period of her studies she was assigned as a student teacher at South Area Jewish Community Center Nursery School on Merrymount Rd.

This experience led to a part time teaching position at the center for a year and a half. In the summer of 1976 Joanne decided that she would transfer into a bachelor program to earn certification to teach in the public schools.

She entered Eastern Nazarene, achieved high marks, was elected to Phi Delta Lambda Honor Society, and this month received her degree.

Her husband is also a student. Officer Kelly will graduate next year from Northeastern University with a degree of bachelor of science in law enforcement.

Says NQHS Speaker

Graduates Must 'Face Obligations Of Adult World'

"It is silly to believe that simply having a diploma in our possession will make us adults," Anne Hogan, commencement speaker, cautioned her 425 North Quincy High School classmates during graduation exercises held Tuesday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"Maturity is a gradual process that has been going on for years and which will hopefully, continue throughout our lives," she said. "Nevertheless, graduation is an extremely important event for we are now members of the adult world, and we have to face the duties and obligations of that world."

Miss Hogan pointed out that all the graduates will have to share the responsibility of getting a job, maintaining a home and paying taxes.

"As responsible citizens," she said, "we have the committment of voting and making sure our communities are being administered in the most effective and efficient way.

"Furthermore, a responsible person is informed and interested in community and world affairs. The complex social, political and economic problems of the world today demand the attention of a knowledgeable public. National and international issues have an impact on each of us; therefore, we must look beyond the limits of our personal concerns."

"As a generation, it is our duty to deal with these very real problems; as individuals, we cannot ignore or shun them," Miss Hogan said.

"Yet the concept of being a truly responsible person goes beyond the challenge of such duties. I see a responsible person as one who is dedicated, capable and trustworthy in all respects; who is energetic and strives for success through hard work and determination."

Fifty-four members of the graduating class shared in more than $18,625 in scholarships. In the class, 133 seniors were presented 146 academic and achievement awards.

The Commencement Program:

Fanfare and processional, Elgar-Ployhar, by the North Quincy High School Band under the direction of David Watson, followed by "On North Quincy" and the National Anthem.

Invocation by Rev. Arthur Curtis, Memorial Congregational Church.

Response, "Let the Words of My Mouth," by the choir, directed by Maurice Charbonneau.

Following is the text of Anne Hogan's address at the North Quincy High School graduation exercises Tuesdya night:

Graduating from high school is truly an exciting time in our lives. It seems incredible to think that years of schooling have suddenly ended in a whirlwind of yearbooks, proms, pictures and parties. Graduation is a happy event, a time for celebrating and enjoying ourselves. In fact, all the festivities would be totally enjoyable if it were not for that inevitable question which seniors must encounter: "So, what are you going to do next year?"

This is a question which plagues seniors not only because of the number of times it must be answered but also because it points out all too clearly that next year really will be different and that in many ways our lives will be changed. Whether we go on to college or we immediately enter the business world, we will be experiencing new situations, attitudes, problems and pleasures. Furthermore, we will be facing them as adults. We realize that we can no longer fall back on our parents and the rather comfortable excuse of immaturity.

Of course, it is silly to believe that simply having a diploma in our possession will make us adults. Maturity is a gradual process that has been going on for years and which will hopefully, continue throughout our lives. Nevertheless, graduation is an extremely important event for we are now members of the adult world, and we have to face the duties and obligations of that world.

We will all share the responsibility of getting a job, maintaining a home and paying taxes. As responsible citizens, we have the committment of voting and making sure our communities are being administered in the most effective and efficient way.

Furthermore, a responsible person is informed and interested in community and world concerns. The complex social, political and economic problems of the world today demand the attention of a knowledgeable public. National and international issues have an impact on each of us; therefore, we must look beyond the limits of our personal concerns. As a generation, it is our duty to deal with these very real problems; as individuals, we cannot ignore or shun them.

Yet the concept of being a truly responsible person goes beyond the challenges of such duties. I see a responsible person as one who is dedicated, capable and trustworthy in all respects; who is energetic and strives for success through hard work and determination.

Our entire futures lie ahead of us. It is a terribly exciting thought to realize that we are now able to set out on our own as independent, mature persons, and to make for ourselves the kind of future we want. Some may say it is foolish idealism to believe that we can become anything we wish if we work hard enough, but I truly believe that [while it is not perhaps absolutely assured], it is possible to attain whatever hopes and desires we have for the future, provided, of course, that we are willing to accept the responsibilities and sacrifices that go along with it. When we look at responsibility in this light we see that it is not really a burden at all but rather means of gaining accomplishments.

At this stage in our lives, we can only hope that the experiences and the education we have so far received have prepared us for the duties we will encounter as adults. Soon, all of the parties and celebrating that are so much a part of graduation will be over and we will be on our own. It is understandable that we may be a bit frightened by this thought, but instead of dreading the obligations we will soon be facing, we should accept them willingly, confident that they will allow us to attain our hopes and dreams. By accepting responsibility and hard work, we can enjoy the kind of future to which we are looking forward.

30 Graduate From Quincy Head Start Program

Thirty Quincy children received certificates of achievement recently from the Quincy Head Start Program at a graduation ceremony held in St. Boniface Church Hall, Germantown.

The children attended classes held by teachers Alice Owens and Donna Murray at the Hunting School.

Quincy Head Start is a federally funded pre-school program which is part of the Quincy Community Action Organization.

Open to boys and girls 4 and 5 years of age, the program provides an opportunity for the children to interact socially and develop growth patterns that will enable them to adapt themselves more readily to the learning process they will encounter in kindergarten.

In addition to classes, which included such things as games and handicrafts, the children also went on several field trips this year.

Parents Kathy Dwyer, Judy Livingstone, Karen Garland, Debbie Quinn, Anna McDonough and Jackie Ryan, along with Head Start Parent Coordinator Mary Campbell, planned the graduation exercises.

The thirty graduating youngsters are: Lisa Wenners, David Mullen, Brian Ramsey, Billy Lawn, Christopher Garland, Michelle Chamness, Patricia Quinn, Michael Stevens, Tommy Benner, Tara Miles, Kimberly Jones, Scott Parrish, Kevin O'Malley, Teresa Federico, Shawn Kennedy, Tommy Kane, Jennifer Ryan, Kelly Dwyer, Sean McLean, Billy Keefe, Billy Bates, Dawn Kelcourse, Rachel Marshall, Eric Grady, Todd Livingstone, Melissa Scanlon, Faith DeAngelis, Cheryl Bartlett, Douglas Affearn, Mark Kelliher.

Our Pride And Joy

(Once Again)

The Quincy Co-operative Bank Josiah Quincy, Jr. Awards have been made once again to an outstanding group of students. This is our second year of scholarship awards, and The Quincy Co-operative Bank takes great pride in the very wonderful group of winners honored for their scholarship and good citizenship.

When we announced last year's winners, we said:

"The Quincy Co-operative Bank believes that the future of the communities we serve is in the hands of our young people. The Quincy Co-operative Bank believes, too, that our schools provide the surest guarantee of future excellence of community leadership through the learning processes.

"When the statute was changed in 1976 to allow co-operative banks to provide scholarship funds, we moved quickly to set up $100 scholarships in the high schools of the communities where we have our main office and our branches. In addition, we provided a $1,500 scholarship for the Quincy Junior College to help a graduate go on to a four year college after completion of two years of studies here. We were happy to learn that this is the largest scholarship offered by the Quincy Junior College.

"We left the choice of all scholarship winners to each school administration. Naturally, we called the scholarships "The Quincy Co-operative Bank Josiah Quincy, Jr. Award." The awards were made for scholastic excellence and outstanding citizenship through school and community activity.

"Josiah Quincy, Jr. was the father of co-operative banking, and we named our Bank for him. Because our scholarship program is totally consistent with his ideals, we know that Josiah would have liked that."

This sums up the attitude of our Bank about our scholarship awards. But we do have to add one more comment: the $1,500 scholarship selection for the Quincy Junior College ended in a tie this year. The award was split between two young women, and from their comments to us, both are thrilled that they could share a very great honor.

Some days ago we honored our scholarship winners at a luncheon. Each winner was accompanied by his or her Headmaster. Take a look at these fine young people whose pictures are displayed here; we are sure you will agree with us that the South Shore's future is in good hands.

Creedon Tells Graduates

Personal Fulfillment Can Not Be Pre-Packaged

If Quincy schools have done anything for their students, says Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, it is to nurture a feeling of self-worth, instill a love of country and assist in development of skills.

But, Dr. Creedon told commencement ceremonies of Quincy and North Quincy High Schools and Quincy Vocational Technical School Monday and Tuesday:

"Personal fulfillment, productive citizenship and competence in one's life work are not things that can be pre-packaged.....for in fact they are never fully realized until life's journey is done."

Here is the text of Dr. Creedon's graduation remarks:

In his Essay On Liberty written in 1859, John Stuart Mill made the observation that:

It really is of importance, not only what men do, but also what manner of men they are that do it.

The words of Mill echo truer today and for you graduating seniors -- women as well as men -- than when Mill offered them 120 years ago.

It is commonplace today to suggest to you that you have grown to maturity during an "age of discontinuity," during a time when the only constant seems to be one of change.

However, through it all, educators in the Quincy public schools have tried to keep foremost in their minds three cardinal principles as they assisted in helping you to come to know. They have labored to help each of you to became a self-fulfilling individual, a good citizen, and a competent worker in a world that is maximally effective for all.

The task is easier said than done and indeed it is not done.

If this school system has accomplished anything in your behalf it has helped to nurture in each of you a feeling of self-worth, a love for your country and its institutions, as well as assisting you in the development of introductory skills into the world of work and commerce.

As the term "commencement" implies, your teachers know full well that these goals have not been accomplished and that you are only on the threshhold. Your lives are just beginning and for each of you it is destined that the future will hold moments of bitter disappointment as well as periods of great satisfaction. Our wish is that the periods of satisfaction far outweigh the moments of disappointment.

Personal self-fulfillment, productive citizenship and competence in one's life work are not things that can be pre-packaged during one's adolescent and teenage years for in fact they are never fully realized until life's journey is done.

Therefore as you leave here this evening and begin to go your separate ways your teachers ask of you but three things:

Live your life to its fullest potential.

Contribute to your government as a good citizen.

Take pride in your chosen field of endeavor and strive to excel in whatever you do.

In so doing you will have contributed significantly to making your world a place that is maximally effective for all.

And now on behalf of the entire faculty of the Quincy public schools, it is my pleasure to inform the members of the Quincy School Committee -- Mayor Tobin, Mrs. Toland, Mrs. Collins, Mrs. Picard, Mr. Anselmo, Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Sullivan -- that the candidates for high school graduation before you have fulfilled all the requirements laid down by you and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. I recommend that they be graduated from the Quincy public schools and receive their high school diplomas.

Graduate Edward Lawlor:

'Vo-Tech Is Not A Step Down But A Step Up'

Following is the text of the commencement address by Edward Lawlor of Quincy Vocational Technical High School.

The Voc-Tech is a school where students are prepared for the real working world. "Prepared" means made ready for entrance into the profession of their choice. The Voc-Tech teaches students what they need to know; not just to survive in a competitive field, but to excell as well. The opportunity is there for the taking; the student must take advantage of the chance to explore his potential.

At the shops in the Vocational School, a student can develop entry level skills in the fields of baking, auto mechanics, electronics, cooking, commercial art, plumbing and printing. The Voc-Tech provides the apprentice-pupil with the on the job training that is otherwise unavailable and is always required in the job market of today. The three year, in depth program the Voc-Tech offers is the best road to take to arrive at a career in the vocational fields.

A recent graduate from the power mechanics course is now employed at The Harold Robbins garage and he feels that the instruction he received at the Voc-Tech both got him his job and allows him to successfully complete the tasks he is given. The student is taught his trade by an instructor who is both a teacher and a craftsman. Before becoming a teacher, every vocational instructor must serve a minimum of five years on the outside, working at his trade. Students gain from the teacher's in-shop experience and his knowledge of how things are done in the real working world. The instructor's directions are respected because he knows his business.

A large part of the training a student receives at the Tech depends upon the individual. A diploma is not handed to the student; he has to work for this kind of an education. Unfortunately, some of the students don't have the right attitude to make full use of the facilities available. This side of the Voc-Tech isn't the best side.

A non-motivated person can "goof off" in the large shop areas if he chooses. The person who will invest three years of his life without gaining the skills needed to support himself is not doing what is best for himself or his career. The Voc-Tech cannot prepare the individual who doesn't want to put in any effort for life in the working world. Learning is always a give and take process with commitment on both sides.

"Techers" have made a firm choice as to future career goals. The Quincy Vocational Technical School is the best possible way for a student to start learning his craft. Skills are developed, techniques are taught, and experience is passed from teacher to student. Voc-Tech is not a step down, but a step up and a moving closer to a profession.

The friction between the High School and the Tech could be attributed to a conflict in goals – High Schoolers shooting for white collar jobs, and Techers aiming for employment as skilled craftsmen. One group can't survive without the other. A white-Collar motorist broken down on the Southeast Expressway appreciates the expertise of the mechanic who comes to his rescue. Differences in education are forgotten and replaced by admiration for the mechanic's skills. Perhaps the wisdom a few years will bring will bear out this example.

The Quincy Vocational Technical School is a valuable resource of our city and surrounding areas that offers educational situations that are relevant to the real working world. The Voc-Tech provides instruction in a profession to which a goal-oriented student is devoted. He should use it to realize his full potential and further his career.

EDWARD F. LAWLOR, JR.
[Miller Studio]

Upon graduation, the student who has taken advantage of the Voc-Tech's strengths will be well-prepared for the real working world.

Text Of Kim's Address

Following is the text of Kim Dzung Vo's address at the Quincy High School Commencement:

I came to this country from Vietnam two and a half years ago without knowing an English word, but today I am talking to you with the language that I have learned in two years at Quincy High School.

My family came from a fearful situation. We feared bursting shells, and a communist invasion. Once it was clear we would get to America, we worried that America would not accept us. We worried that we could not understand this new language, environment, and culture. I personally worried about the rumors concerning Americans circulated throughout Vietnam. These American people were supposedly "selfish," "unfriendly," and "crude."

Today, in Quincy, I go to sleep at night with no fear from bombs, no fear from communist invasion, no need to escape. Besides these blessings, my family has been accepted as permanent residents in America. My brothers and sisters attend public schools; free educational opportunities help us to improve and to gain new knowledge, to continue to function in our new environment, and to understand our new culture. The rumors have proved false. The people I have met in Quincy generally, and in Quincy High School especially have been kind, friendly, caring, and helpful.

These favorable circumstances have helped me greatly in learning. In my nutrition class I learned the American way with food; in my English class I learned the ins and outs of language usage, the complex history of my new language, and forms of Western literature, especially poetry. Science, chemistry and biology taught me about the complex functions of chemical elements and living organisms. I also continued to learn math, the universal language, from the foundation that I studied in Vietnam. I learned about artistic expression in photography, pottery, and painting. In Social Studies, I learned about the American political system and world culture including some Asian countries other than my own.

In Quincy High School, electives are available and also guided to fit individual interests, capabilities, and career goals. Teachers in Quincy at all levels and subjects are friendlier and more willing to help the yearning students than the instructors I had in Vietnam. Friendships also develop more quickly here; especially in my case over the last two years at school, at church, and at my job. These new companions have made me feel warm, happy, and at home. The Quincy taxpayers have provided in school advanced materials we rarely had in Vietnam: a well-equipped science laboratory, educational filmstrips, and an extensive library.

Elected officials, school committee members, taxpayers, and especially teachers and friends, thank you for alleviating my initial fears about personal safety, learning in a strange environment, coping with a new culture and preparing for my future career.

OUT STEALING -- Morrisette's Mike McCormack is tagged out trying to steal third base in the second game of Saturday's doubleheader with Topsham Post of Brunswick, Me.

For Muscular Dystrophy

Morrisette, Topsham Split Benefit Doubleheader

Morrisette Legion baseball team of Quincy, which opened its quest for a 23rd Zone 6 championship Tuesday, broke even last Saturday night in a doubleheader with Topsham Post of Brunswick, Me., played for the Muscular Dystrophy Association at Adams Field.

Morrisette rallied for three runs in the fifth to overcome a 7-5 deficit and edge Topsham, 8-7, in the first game.

Gary Earle was the winning pitcher but needed some strong relief assistance from John Wilkinson. Bill Deitsch and Peter Niosi had two hits apiece for Morrisette and drove in two runs each, while Mike McCormack and Steve Cook also had two hits each.

In the second game Morrisette was held to four hits by Jeff Briggs and the Maine visitors won, 5-2. Ron Donovan was the losing pitcher, having streaks of wildness and Maine came up with some timely hits.

Niosi had one of the four Morrisette hits. The only extra base hit was a double by Maine centerfielder Ed Perrault.

Stay Alive!
By Jack Silverstein

IF IT FLOATS - USE IT!

Suppose you see someone fall into the water and begin shouting for help. You're not a good swimmer. What can you do? There's no ring life bouy or other aid in sight - or is there?

Usually there is. How about a vacuum jug, or an ice chest with a clamp-on lid? A canoe paddle? A fallen branch from a tree? And don't forget the spare tire in the trunk of your car.

These and dozens of other commonplace objects have one important, lifesaving characteristic - they float, and a floating object can save a drowning person.

Many of the 5,000 victims who drown annually in water-related accidents could be saved by the use of improvised flotation aids. Just keep in mind that lots of things float - and not every lifesaver has to look like one.

Jimmy Matera won a silver medal in the intermediate class, dropping a split decision to defending champion Bob Carter of Saratoga, N.Y., in the finals. This bout was voted the best in the tournament.

Eddie Reardon and John Keady won bronze medals, losing in the semifinals, but winning two bouts in the competition. In each case, the South Shore boxer lost to the division champion.

Fifty-two boxers competed in the tournament. Burke will compete in the National Junior Olympic tournament at the University of Arizona June 14 through the 17. Only the seniors compete in the nationals.

"This was a superb effort by these boys, who have been participating in our program for only a year or less," Coach Bill Halpin said. "The South Shore can be very proud of these kids."

Quincy's Jordan "Tinker" Picot was picked by boxers and their coaches as the top referee in the tournament. Picot, a three-time winner in the Lowell Golden Gloves Tournament and later a ranked pro is also a Quincy Youth Boxing Club coach and did not handle any of the South Shore boxers' bouts.

The trip to New York was made possible through the help of the Quincy Elks, Quincy Youth Commission and The Quincy Sun.

Track Club Girls Win Women's Meet

The Quincy Track Club girls won the Region 1 AAU Women's meet championship last week in Greenwich, Conn.

Although Quincy had only one winner, it relied heavily on seconds and thirds for the title.

Michelle Millane did most of the work in the field events, breaking her own club record in the discus with a toss of 106 feet. She took second in the javelin with a club record 94-11 and was third in the shot put.

Bodil Wahlstedt, a Weymouth exchange student from Sweden, did well in the weight events as she took second in the shot and third in the discus and she also surprised with a third in the high jump. This was the first time Bodil was defeated in the shot put, but the day before the state meet she did 44-2. She will travel to Indiana late this month to compete in the Junior Nationals.

Denise Santo took third in the 100 meters and fourth in the long jump with a club best of 16-4½. She was also fourth in the 200 meters.

Penny Sawyer set a club 12-13 record in the long jump with a leap of 15-10½.

Vicky Finlayson was second in the 880, Mary Crehan second in the 3000 meters, Donna Reardon third in the mile and 3000, Kara Crehan second in the high jump and mile walk and Margaret Osterman third in the walk.

The 440 relay team of Lois Guglielmi, Paula Church, Sawyer and Santo took third and the mile team of Guglielmi, Church, Finlayson and Linda Cellini took second with a club record 4:12.2, which secured the team trophy for Quincy.

Pinball Machines Approved At Quincy Hockey Rink

The Quincy Licensing Board on Tuesday reluctantly approved a request of the Quincy Youth Arena, 60 Murphy Memorial Drive, for permission to install 10 pinball machines at the facility.

Mrs. Beverly Reinhardt, manager of the rink which hosts many of Quincy's youth hockey teams, told the board the machines were needed to raise funds.

Fire Chief Barry asked if "this is the right way to go." He said he appreciated the expenses incurred in keeping the rink operating, but wondered if some other fund-raising device was not possible.

Mrs. Reinhardt said that many of the rinks throughout the state -- MDC rinks excepted -- had installed the pinball and audio-games to meet mounting expenses.

The board agreed to issue a license for a six-month period and said the operation will be reviewed at the beginning of next year.

Mrs. Reinhardt assured the members that at the first sign of trouble the arena officials would be the first ones to take action.

Seeks 18% Limit On Income

Conway Heads Drive To Put Cap On Local, State Taxes

By TOM HENSHAW

The people of Massachusetts rank 10th in the nation in gross income but only 48th out of 50 in the amount of money they have left over after they pay their taxes.

Fully 18 percent of all the income of the residents of Massachusetts goes toward state and local taxes, which puts the Bay State third behind New York and California among such confiscators.

As a result, says Jack Conway, South Shore real estate man, there is a fall off in economic vitality in Massachusetts.

"When you're selling property on the South Shore," says the founder of Conway Country, "you're not selling it to any new companies. It's the same old companies recycling people. There's no new companies and no new people."

That's why Conway is heading a signature drive to get a non-binding referendum on the November ballot that would put a cap on the local and state taxes at 18 percent of the income of the residents of the state.

"Over the last decade," says Conway, "personal income has increased almost three times while the cost of state and local government has increased 8.1 times.

"Let's put a cap on it. Since we are living with 18 percent, let's cap it at that. Let's stop the forward movement and then get involved with legislation to send it into reverse."

Actually, Conway's referendum reads like this:

"Shall the senator from this district be instructed to vote to approve the passage of a bill requiring the reduction and limitation of local property taxes by substituting revenue from state taxes, and providing that all state and local taxes combined shall not take a larger percentage of the total personal income in Massachusetts than the average percentage taken in the three year period immediately preceding approval?"

Conway's immediate goal is to get 64,000 signatures -- 1,600 in each of the state's 40 senatorial districts -- by July 19, in time for submission to Registrars of Voters for certification by July 26.

The five-week signature drive will start June 14.

Actually, Conway is not overly concerned that what goes in as his referendum comes out precisely as state law. But he's looking for 90 percent of the voters to support it.

"If we can come out with a mandate of 90 percent of the vote," he says, "then it's going to give the issue the visibility it needs so that legislators can get their teeth into other proposals.

"We're going to take the most dramatic and vital issue of today off the back burner, where everybody is talking about it and doing nothing, and put it out front.

"This state has never said, 'We can't afford it.' It's always been, 'Let's pay it off with a bond issue,' or Let's put it on the local real estate tax bill.'

"Suppose they have to say, 'It's a great idea but we can't afford it. We've only got 18 percent to play with. So we've got to put a cap on this budget, too'."

Conway notes that California is in the process of voting on a constitutional amendment that would put a cap on property taxes of 1 percent of the value of the property.

In Massachusetts, the percentage runs from 1.5 percent on Cape Cod to as much as 6 percent in other sections of the state. In Quincy the average is 3.5 percent.

"Which means," says Conway, "that a guy is paying for his house all over again every 27 or 28 years."

He has a list of recent sales in Quincy that shows a house on Nelson St., West Quincy, was sold for $20,000 while the real estate tax on it was $1,144.45, or 5.7 percent.

Another house on Nelson St. went for $28,000 with taxes of $1,948, or 6.9 percent.

"Once we cap taxes at 18 percent," says Conway, "then the state is going to have to have a rebate formula to give property tax relief to the cities and towns.

"That has got to be the second part of this plan."

'TIME IS OF THE ESSENCE'

You have agreed to purchase a house or piece of property. You have discussed with the seller the importance of a definite settlement date. Whether the reason is personal or for business, it makes no difference. But if closing is important within a certain time limit, be sure that the phrase, "time is of the essence" is inserted into the sales agreement.

If this key phrase is not included, then either the buyer or seller can delay settlement for a "reasonable" time. What may be reasonable for one party may be unreasonable for the other. At this juncture, it may become a matter for the court to settle.

On the other hand, if you anticipate the need for flexibility, avoid the insertion of the "time is of the essence" limitation. This is just another reason why it is important to discuss the sales agreement with your attorney before you sign your name on the dotted line.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

$30 Million So Far For Development

$8-9 Million Office Building May Be Next For Downtown

An obviously pleased Mayor Tobin disclosed Tuesday that his administration has obtained "in excess of $30 million in commitments" for development in Quincy since Jan. 3.

He listed these five developments which will bring outside money, both public and private, into the city in an effort to broaden the tax base:

• A $5 million MDC bond issue for culverts in South Quincy.

• $8.5 million for the Thomas S. Burgin Parkway [formerly Upland Rd.] extension.

• A $12 million building for the National Fire Protection Association in West Quincy, final details of which will be announced around June 24.

• $1.5 million for an addition to the Pneumatic Scale Corp. building in North Quincy.

"I had a developer in here Tuesday morning," the Mayor said, "and he is talking to the financial community about putting up an $8 or $9 million office building in downtown Quincy. We should be announcing something in July or August.

"These are developments that will be creating jobs, putting people to work, on which we have obtained commitments in the first six months of our administration."

Sheets Asks Leash Law Check

Kelly Suggests Vo-Tech Students Build New Dog Pound

The City Council is moving on the problem of roving dogs that persists nine years after passage of the city's leash law.

It's so bad, said Councillor Leo J. Kelly, that packs of dogs "are starting to come down into the downtown area, unleashed and unlicensed."

The Council approved Kelly's resolve that the Mayor study the possibility of using Vo Tech School students to build a new dog pound or remodel and enlarge the old one.

Councillor James A. Sheets added a resolution of his own that the Public Works Committee and Dog Officer Francis Berlucchi look into "the extent to which the leash law is being enforced by the city."

Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi lamented the fact that "we really haven't given enforcement of the leash law priority in the City Council."

"We only have one employee in the department," he said, "although the current budget places another fulltime employee there. Up until last year the vehicle used by the dog pound was a hand-me-down from another department.

"We have to put our money where our mouths are."

"We need not only a review of the physical facilities," said Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., "but we need to find out who is contributing to this crime. Is it the dog or the owner of the dog?

"For too long the structure of the fines has been such that dogs are released for a minimum amount of money and it goes on and on and on.

"It's so bad in New York that they shoot dogs on the spot."

Lydon said he recently insisted that a dog in Wollaston be destroyed "because we can't afford to wait until the dog attacks a child."

Kelly said he received a call from "a highly emotional woman" who told him she had been attacked four times by a pack of dogs and her young child also had been attacked.

"It's not only that," said Kelly, "it's an accumulation of these incidents over a long period of time."

Bond Issue Approved

Council Passes $94.4 Million City Budget

By TOM HENSHAW

The City Council Tuesday night passed a $94,432,658 budget for fiscal 1978-79, chopping $246,851 out of the fully funded budget requested by Mayor Tobin.

The Council also passed the Mayor's request for authority to borrow up to $6.7 million to cover an expected deficit to be determined at the end of the 1977-78 fiscal year.

A surprise visitor to the Council's final deliberations on the budget was former Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, who sat impassively at the back of the Council Chamber while councillors debated.

The Council got hung up for a while on the bond issue.

Councillor Francis X. McCauley wanted to leave the loan order in committee until the precise deficit figure is revealed and he could get a look at estimated receipts on which the tax rate will be based.

Councillor Stephen J. McGrath set the tone for the rest of the Council when he said:

"I look at the bond issue and budget as a package. If we pass the budget and don't pass the bond issue we will be faced with

Fr. McCarthy, D'Olimpio Tobin Choices For QHA

Mayor Tobin has submitted to the City Council the names of Carmine G. D'Olimpio, president of the Quincy Building Trades Council, and Rev. William R. McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church, for posts on the Quincy Housing Authority.

City Councillors Daniel G. Raymondi and John J. Lydon Jr., attempted to obtain immediate confirmation but Councillor Paul D. Harold objected and the matter was tabled until the next council meeting.

Fr. McCarthy would succeed Rev. William F. Sharkey, associate pastor of St. Ann's Church, who has resigned [effective June 1] with four years remaining in his five-year term.

D'Olimpio would be serving his second five-year term, having been first appointed to the five member authority by Mayor Walter J. Hannon in 1973. His first term expired last March.

Tobin said Fr. Sharkey submitted his resignation "for personal reasons."

"I understand he will be leaving St. Ann's also and will no longer be a resident of Quincy," he said.

Fr. Sharkey was appointed by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia in 1977 as a compromise candidate after the City Council refused to confirm LaRaia's first two choices, Mrs. Ellen Nieters and Frank Myett, both endorsed by the Harborview Tenants Committee.

Tobin said he did not pass the names of D'Olimpio or Fr. McCarthy through his Blue Ribbon Screening Committee

McCauley Would Have Council More Involved In Tax Rate Setting

City Councillor Francis X. McCauley would like to have the City Council become a little more involved in setting the tax rate.

He introduced an ordinance change in a recent Council meeting that would require the Mayor, the City Treasurer and the Board of Assessors to appear before the Council prior to the setting of the tax rate.

They would have with them for the Council's inspection the recapitulation sheet containing all the figures that go into the compilation of the tax rate.

"This goes back to the problems we've had in this city involving so-called election year tax rates," said McCauley.

"We have some control over the budget but we have no control over the estimated receipts, the overlay deficits or the figures that go into the assessed valuations."

It has been charged that in recent years estimated receipts, overlays and valuations have been juggled during election years to produce a low tax rate that is made up in non-election years.

McCauley said his ordinance "would not give us any control over those figures but it would require the people mentioned in the ordinance to present figures and let the Council talk about them.

"A year from now, when the figures are off, we could ask what the problem was."

The proposal was sent to the Council's Ordinance Committee for advertising.

Project's Future Still In Doubt

Park Dept. Cleaning Up Ruth Gordon Ampitheater

The Park Department is cleaning up the debris accumulated in the $544,000 Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre in Merrymount Park but the future of the unfinished CETA project is still in doubt.

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary to the Park and Recreation Board, said the cleanup is being made pending decisions growing out of a series of scheduled meetings on the project.

Koch said the cleanup is important because the amphitheater abuts the Pageant Field area where the Happy Acres Day Camp program for the retarded is conducted during July and August.

A work force from the Park Department has been cleaning up the Pageant Field area and the abutting William F. Ryan Municipal Boating site at Black's Creek for the past three weeks.

The area was used as a snow storage site during the Greater Storm of Feb. 6 and piles of snow were still there under debris late in May.

Some 10,000 persons use Pageant Field for picnics and outings, May through October, under permits issued by the Park Department. A similar number uses Faxon Park in South Quincy.

Koch said Park Department employees and equipment removed 10 truckloads of debris from the boathouse site, including remnants of the old boathouse that was destroyed by fire.

The Quincy School Department assigned a welder to assist in removing the metal from the steel building.

O'Neil Fence May Be Taken Down

A year ago, at the request of residents, the School Committee erected a fence on East Squantum St., to block an entrance to O'Neil Field that had become a nuisance.

Now, at the request of other residents, the City Council wants it taken down.

"It has created a severe problem," said Councillor Joanne Condon. "The people who used to use the passageway are now using back yards to get to the field. The nuisance has been moved into people's back yards."

Councillor Francis X. McCauley, who was a member of the School Committee last year when the passage was closed, urged the Council not to move in haste on the problem.

"We ought to go slowly and find out what is the true sentiment of the people," he said. "Maybe people see that the benefits outweigh the detriments of that walkway."

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

After a while, I find myself getting a little tired of the way my living room looks. Sometimes I move the furniture around, but often that really isn't what is needed. I have found the easiest way to brighten up and really add to the appearance of a room that needs a little life is to bring in some flowers. They add color, softness, and often, a nice aroma to the room. If matched well with the furniture and other decorations, they can give new life and brightness to everything in a room. You would be surprised at how much effect a bouquet of live flowers can have on a room.

Let our skilled floral designers at NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 create a lovely arrangement to brighten up any room in your home. We are real professionals so of course we only use the highest quality flowers available. We constantly scour the market to make sure we have the very best. "For the Creative and Unusual in Floral Designing". Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. Open: Mon. - Sat., 8 - 6, evenings by appointment.

The Bill Bowyer Memorial Gym

The recent open house marking the 50th anniversary of Point Junior High School [and the Daniel Webster's School's 60th] rekindled fond memories for many former and present Pointers.

And, for City Clerk John Gillis it also triggered a thought.

Gillis, who graduated from Point Junior in 1940, would like to see the gymnasium named in memory of Bill Bowyer who coached both basketball and football and was the boys gym teacher at Point.

Bowyer, who died in Rhode Island recently, produced outstanding basketball and football teams during the 1930's and 1940's. His teams symbolized--and helped generate--that fierce school pride and spirit at Point.

Some outstanding basketball players came out of Point, Among them Fred DiSantis, Jackie Pettinelli, George Page, Ralph Graham and Al Mountain. They went on to Quincy High to become the nucleus of the famous Granite Chips of 1937-38, along with Art Mackie and John Joyce, who came out of South Junior [now Sterling]. That was the first QHS team to go to the finals in the Tech Tourney only to lose a heartbreaker to Chelsea in the final seconds of the final game.

To anyone who went to Point during Bowyer's tenure he was tops as a coach. His records and teams speak for him.

But Gillis and a few others who played on Bowyer teams also knew Bowyer, the man. And to them, he was also tops in that department.

One of the best kept secrets was Bowyer quietly collecting coal and food for needy families in the Point area, and some of his players helping him to distribute it.

He got the food from some of the small stores in the area. But it has never been revealed where he got the coal.

"Let's just say," smiles Gillis, "that he had a knack for finding coal."

The Bill Bowyer Memorial Gymnasium sounds good. We second the motion.

YOU MAY HAVE your own feelings about whether Quincy and North Quincy High Schools should have separate graduation ceremonies. But George Wilson, former principal at QHS, thinks its a great idea. He attended last week's QHS VO-TECH graduation--his 56th--and found it to be "one of the best of them all." The decorum was excellent, he said. There were no signs of the old QHS-NQHS rivalry that have caused disruptions in the past, he says. His verdict: "This year's graduation is a good argument for separate ceremonies."

THE CARNEY HOSPITAL is beginning to look like the campaign headquarters for Rep. Michael Morrissey. His mother, Marion, has been a patient there the past two weeks and underwent surgery, but didn't let that stop her from talking up her favorite candidate.

She's been handing out campaign buttons and bumper stickers to hospital personnel, and they responded by hanging on the door of her room this sign: "Committee To Re-elect Michael Morrissey State Representative."

And she found the hospital full of Morrissey constituents. Among them, from the North Quincy area: her physician, Dr. Stanley Mikal; nurses Carol McLaughlin, Beverly Albanese, Beverly Welch, Laura Martin, clinical technician; Barbara Nofsinger and Tim Lynch, blood technicians; Robert Jones, therapist; Maureen McDonald, computer specialist.

With a little luck, Mrs. Morrissey will be out of the hospital in time to attend a reception for Mike Friday night at the State Street South Courtyard, North Quincy.

WELL, it didn't take Joyce Baker long to get back in the political groove after returning to Quincy to live. She was elected vice-chairman of the Ward 5 Republican City Committee at a recent meeting at the home of Agnes Costello, 226 Belmont St.

Barry Hannon Definite Candidate For Congressional Seat

Barry T. Hannon of Braintree, the Norfolk County register of deeds, plans to announce his candidacy for Congress next week, the fifth to seek the vacancy created by the retirement of Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton].

Hannon, who had been reported considering a run for the past two or three months, said he has delayed his announcement out of concern for his family, his wife, Deborah, and their three children.

"It's a young family," he said, "and I wanted to make sure they understood the implications of waging and winning a congressional campaign. They do and they're all for it, even the youngest."

Hannon's children are Amy 15, Barry Jr. 12 and Kathryn 10.

The 42-year-old Hannon served as a state rep from Braintree, Quincy and Holbrook for four years before he was elected register of deeds in 1970.

He pointed out that the jump from register of deeds to the U.S. Congress has already been made successfully by Cong. Edward P. Boland [D-Springfield], who held the office in Hamden County.

Hannon is a graduate of Tabor Academy, Holy Cross and the Boston University Law School. He was a captain in the U.S. Air Force judge advocates office.

Patrick McDonough In Race

Patrick F. McDonough, the veteran Boston city councillor, will announce his candidacy for the 11th District congressional seat today [Thursday] --at 6:15 a.m. at the main gate of the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard.

He also plans to announce at 12 noon at the corner of School and Main Sts., Brockton, and at 3 p.m. at the old Harlow Lumberyard on Pierce St, Hyde Park, key points in the sprawling district.

McDonough's entry into the Democratic primary race brings to five the number of candidates seeking the nomination to succeed the retiring Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton], who has held the job for 20 years.

McDonough said that at each stop he will "address issues raised by circumstances surrounding each location, including job development, urban revitalization, elderly housing, taxes, federal aid to cities and neighborhood stability."

McDonough has been a Boston city councillor for 20 years, having served as president of that body in 1958, 1961 and 1973. He is a lawyer and former Boston police officer.

He is a veteran of World War II with the U.S. Army in Guam and Okinawa and was graduated from Boston English High School, Boston College and Boston University Law School.

He and his wife, Mary, have seven children and live at 11 Barrington Rd, Dorchester.

His father, Michael McDonough, who died last year, was a retired employee of the Fore River Shipyard.

Quincy Delegation To Meet With Massport On Aircraft Noise

The Quincy legislative delegation will meet with Donna Berman, head of the Massport Noise Abatement office today [Thursday] to discuss progress made in alleviating the problem of jet aircraft over North Quincy.

The meeting was called by Reps. James A. Sheets and Michael W. Morrissey [both D-Quincy].

Sheets noted that no solutions have been found for the problem since air traffic routes were changed over two weeks ago and "residents of Quincy should not have to live with this problem all summer."

"We have been working with Massport for over a year on landing procedures," said Morrissey, "and just when it appears we have made some progress in controlling that noise problem we have been given a new one.

"I refuse to accept that nothing can be done."

Sheets, who is also a city councillor, and Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi co-sponsored action that will make available petitions on which citizens can register their protests against the noise.

The petitions would be available at the City Council office in City Hall or through the individual councillors or in the Mayor's office.

Pesticides May Control Roaches At Dump

The State Pesticide Control Program has come up with three products it feels can help control the cockroach problem in the Quincy and Milton dumps.

Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] said he was told by program supervisor Louis F. Wells Jr. that all three products contain "malathian", an organic phosphate acceptable under environmental standards.

Sheets said he is confident that a solution to the problem is imminent.

"Trying to find effective pesticides for the landfills has been a frustrating experience," he said. "The existing laws and regulations which attempt to safeguard our environment, while understandable, put a limit on the number of products available to us."

Wells, who visited the dumps with Sheets and Rep. M. Joseph Manning [D-Milton], said he had searched for a long time with the help of the Environmental Protection Agency before arriving at the three products, all made by Dyman Inc., of Kansas City.

The only other solution, said Wells, would be to obtain a special local needs registration to use another product that is effective but detrimental to the environment.

Atlantic Association Sponsoring Flag Contest

In conjunction with the Fourth of July Celebration, the Atlantic Neighborhood Association is conducting an "Atlantic Neighborhood Flag Contest" for school age children of North Quincy.

The contest is to design a flag which represents the Atlantic Neighborhood as an active community of neighbors helping neighbors, with all ages involved.

The winning design will be transferred to a 4 by 6 foot flag, which will be raised for the first time at the Fourth of July Celebration at Welcome Young Park. The winner will be awarded with a $100 Savings Bond.

Instructions are as follows: The design must be done on 8½ by 11 inch paper and no more than three different colors can be used in the design. The only words that can and must be used in the design are "The Atlantic Neighborhood.

All entries must be dropped off at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 150 East Squantum St., by 5 p.m. Friday, June 9. If there are any questions, Atlantic residents may call Carol Bray at 328-1708.

Raymondi: 'Long Range Ramifications'

City Paying Legal Expenses For Both Sides In Finn-Solimini Case

The city of Quincy is in the unusual position of paying legal expenses on both sides of the same court case.

City Solicitor Richard W. Barry said the city has agreed to pay Atty. Martin S. Cosgrove for representing Police Chief Francis X. Finn in the landmark case, Finn vs. Solimini, et al.

In that case, Norfolk Superior Court Judge Ellis F. Brown ruled that then-Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia did not have the authority to make duty assignments for officers within the Police Department.

Then-City Solicitor Thomas F. Williams represented LaRaia and Police Lt. Corady Solimini in the case.

Barry said Cosgrove's bill totalled $10,656.84, including 209 hours of work at $50 an hour, but that Cosgrove had agreed to settle for a lesser sum.

The City Council recently voiced its approval of Barry's action.

"The decision has long range effects on all departments," said Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi. "Chief Finn did not bring this suit on behalf of himself as an individual but as a department head. It has long-range ramifications throughout the entire state."

"Quite often," said Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., "we ask department heads, particularly the building inspector, to do something in the interest of public safety and he asks, "Are you prepared to stand behind me if I am brought into a court of law?"

"This is not too far from happening to one of us councillors that we become involved in a law suit. They are common today. This is a type of support I would second."

Councillor Paul D. Harold, while agreeing that the bill should be paid, pointed out that the Council was dealing with "an extraordinary case."

"No way should we give an opinion to department heads that we are going to bail them out in similar circumstances," he said. "We should pay in this case but we should not mislead city employees."

Council Investigating Mt. Wollaston Memorial Day 'Conditions'

The City Council has named an ad hoc committee to investigate complaints that Mt. Wollaston Cemetery was in "questionable" condition over the recent Memorial Day Holiday.

The probers are the Cemetery Board of Managers, Supt. J. Vincent Smyth and Councillors Leo J. Kelly, James A. Sheets and Joanne Condon. Sheets and Mrs. Condon asked for the study.

Sheets suggested that the investigation be carried out by the Public Works Committee, of which Kelly is chairman, but Kelly objected to another councillor "dumping" work on his committee.

"I'd be glad to look into it," said Kelly, "but I don't want to hold the Public Works Committee responsible for any actions that may not be taken."

Besides, said Kelly, the problems may not be the fault of the people who work there and may be difficult to correct.

"Mt. Wollaston has been there since the 1800's," he said. "In fairness to the people who work in the cemetery, it was not designed for power tools or heavy equipment.

"It was laid out years ago for hand work. The head stones are very close to each other. It was not designed for so many burials. That's the crux of the problem."

Sheets said his request for an investigation did not condemn anyone.

"If there is a problem," he said, "we want to make sure the problem is considered and resolved. If there is no problem we want the people of the city to know that."

Mrs. Condon said she heard from a constituent who was concerned enough about the situation to send a certified letter.

"The letter writer indicated it is 'impossible to fight city hall' and I don't think that it is impossible," she said. "We are doing the right thing by sitting down and resolving this problem.

"When we receive certified mail on a subject it should be addressed."

Myron Lane Candidate For District Attorney

June 15-21
1954
24 Years Ago
This Week

Politics began moving to the fore as various Quincy politicians disclosed their availability for state and county offices.

Acting Dist. Atty. Myron N. Lane of 140 Warren Ave., Wollaston, former city councillor and state rep. announced that he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for district attorney.

State Rep. Clifton H. Baker of 260 Pine St., Wollaston, a Republican and former city councillor, said he plans to seek re-election for a third term from the First Norfolk District.

Stephen J. Carr of 43 Vershire St., Montclair, who lost a bid for the post in 1950, announced he would try again for secretary of state against incumbent Edward J. Cronin.

BROAD MEADOWS PROTEST

City Councillor Carl W. Anderson wrote a letter of protest to Cong. Richard B. Wigglesworth [R-Milton] against the proposed erection of a Navy training center on Broad Meadows off Southern Artery.

At the same time, City Manager William J. Deegan Jr., in a letter to the Navy Public Works Office in Boston, questioned whether the Navy has the right to take land by eminent domain.

Besides, said Deegan, there is all that vacant Navy-owned land in Squantum.

MORRISETTE WINS

Vin Moscardelli pitched a three-hitter and his mates pounded out 22 hits as the Morrisette Junior Legion baseball team beat Braintree, 21-1, for its third win in a row.

Joe Corbin had a perfect day at the plate with four hits, including a double, in four at bats and Bob MacDonald went five-for-six, including a pair of two-base hits.

The Morrisette lineup included: Chet Bonvie 3b, Ronnie Leone lf, Steve Collins 2b, Bob MacDonald cf, Jim Tantillo, ss, Bernie Lux rf, Smollett c, Joe Corbin 1b, Vin Moscardelli p.

YARRINGTON COMPLAINS

George A. Yarrington, executive director of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, charged that "public contracts are not being awarded to low bidders" and some bids are "rigged to rule out certain vendors."

He asked that the City Council pass legislation restricting the award of contracts to the lowest responsible bidder. Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa thought it a good idea but City Manager Deegan declined comment.

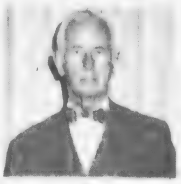
Obituaries



Robert M. Faxon, 69, Quincy Businessman, Civic Leader

Official flags flew at half-staff this week for Robert M. Faxon, president of the Faxon Trust and the city's best known fund-raiser, who died Saturday, June 10, in Massachusetts General Hospital.

Mr. Faxon, 69, descendant of one of Quincy's earliest families, headed the Community Fund of Quincy and the United Way for many years. He was a director of the Quincy and South Shore Chambers of Commerce for 45 years, and last September was elected an honorary life director.

"Quincy is saddened by the loss of this wonderful man," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin. "It is a terrible loss. He was truly a gentleman, always a very calming influence."

Mr. Faxon was born and raised in Quincy but lived in Milton at the time of his death.

ROBERT M. FAXON

He was graduated from Milton Academy and Harvard and served as a lieutenant commander in the U.S. Navy during World War II, winning a Bronze Star and a Presidential Unit Citation.

He was a director of the Quincy Savings Bank and the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co. and president of the board of trustees of the Adams Temple and School fund.

Mr. Faxon was a member of the Milton Hoosic Club, the Neighborhood Club of Quincy, the Quincy Historical Society, the Harvard Club of Boston and the New Bedford Yacht Club.

He leaves his widow, the former Rebecca Hallowell; a son, Robert M. Faxon Jr. of Barrego Pass, N.M., and three daughters, Mrs. Laurence S. Johnson of New York, Mrs. Robert M. Knowles of Cumberland Foreside, Maine; and Miss Elizabeth Faxon of San Francisco.

Memorial service was held Tuesday at United First Parish Church in Quincy and burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Services Held For Mrs. Julia O'Neil-Walsh, 68, Mother Of 'Easter Parade O'Neils'

Three daughters and a son of Mrs. Julia (Oliver) O'Neil-Walsh, 68, of Brookline, matriarch of the famous "Easter Parade O'Neils" are residents of Quincy.

Mrs. Walsh died Friday at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. Funeral services were held at St. Mary's Church, Brookline. Burial was in New Calvary Cemetery, Roslindale.

Widowed in 1959, she married Joseph Walsh of Brookline in 1970. At a recent reunion she spoke of her 59 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

For years, the O'Neil family photo appeared in newspapers on Easter Monday. They were the feature of the Easter Parade along Commonwealth Ave., all ten girls dressed alike in outfits hand-sewn by their mother. The father and two brothers wore complimentary suits.

The daughters living in Quincy are: Mrs. Evelyn Kiley, 246 Marlboro St., Wollaston; Mrs. Jane Deery, 25 Edgemere Rd., Quincy Center, and Mrs. Frances Gannon, 128 Turner St., Houghs Neck. A brother, Daniel O'Neil lives at 3 Lawn St., Quincy Point.

Mrs. Kiley says her mother came to Quincy weekly to attend the Kingdom of God Prayer Community at St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Point.

Houghs Neck Memorial Service

Houghs Neck Legion Post held its annual Memorial Service for deceased members Sunday at a mass at Most Blessed Sacrament Church, celebrated by Rev. Richard Uftring.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

The fresh water pearls from Lake Biwa, Japan, are probably the best known in the world. Like most fresh water pearls, they are rarely round, but usually oval or elongated in shape. In their natural state, they have a light salmon hue, but, if they are exposed to strong sunlight, they gain a beautiful milky translucence. But Japan does not have a monopoly on the production of fresh water pearls. Mainland China and the United States also contribute their share to the pearl market.

We're known around this area for our friendly, family type of business and our complete selection of jewelry and gift items. Come to us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490 for all your needs. If you haven't already chosen a gift for Father's Day perhaps you would like to look at our estate pocket watches. Some are more than 75 years old, run perfectly and are beautiful pieces. Pocket watches have become a very popular item again in recent years, and make a fine addition to a man's wardrobe. Open: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Mon. thru Sat. Have a nice Father's Day.

Violators Moving Elsewhere

Condon Asks Stricter Controls On Public Drinking

The MDC crackdown on drinking on Wollaston Beach is such a success that it is creating problems elsewhere in Quincy.

"The enforcement is so good along Wollaston Boulevard," said City Councillor Joanne Condon, "that the drinkers have moved to the parks and playgrounds of the North Quincy area."

She introduced a resolution asking for a Council study of the feasibility of adopting stricter controls on public drinking and possibly increasing fines for violations.

MDC Commissioner John F. Snedeker noted in a letter to Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] that the MDC's Special Arrest team of eight officers has already made numerous arrests for drinking on the beach.

"We will continue to maintain a similar police presence throughout summer weekends and holidays when misuse of our facilities is at its greatest," he said.

"The eventual completion of our Wollaston police sub-station will further improve our surveillance capability. However, the problem extends beyond the dangers of public drunkeness.

"Broken glass on the beach and adjacent roadway can and has proved highly injurious and requires the time and attention of our laborers to the detriment of maintenance elsewhere.

"Our efforts to better safeguard our beaches can only be furthered by growing public awareness and concern. The MDC will work with any responsible neighborhood meeting brought together to review the situation."

College Plans To Remain

McGrath Withholding PUD Proposal At ENC

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath is withholding his proposal to rezone land around Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston as Planned Unit Development (PUD).

Since McGrath announced he would present the proposal to the City Council, Eastern Nazarene said it plans to remain in the Quincy campus for the foreseeable future.

"The pressure is off for a while," said McGrath. "It is advisable to hold off on the rezoning plan. I think we can give ENC more time to plan what it is going to do."

McGrath's rezoning plan drew the ire of the Wollaston Park Association.

Association Secretary Dorothy C. Kelly complained in a letter to Council President John J. Quinn that its officers "were never asked to join in any of the councillor's discussions with the college."

"Basically," she said, "the Wollaston Park Association Inc., is, and always has been, opposed to the concept of PUD because the present zoning ordinance already amply provides a route for development of the college through variances.

"By rezoning to PUD the homeowners and interested abutters lose their legal recourse to law because authority is transferred to the Planning Board and the City Council."

The association requested the City Council "to reject Councillor McGrath's proposal as detrimental to the rights of his own constituents and unnecessary."

McGrath said he talked to Miss Kelly and to Anna E. Lucey, treasurer of the association at length and told them about his proposal.

"I'm a little miffed at the letter," he said. "I have no intention of freezing anyone out. I don't see how they could take a vote without hearing the other side."

YOUNG IDEAS

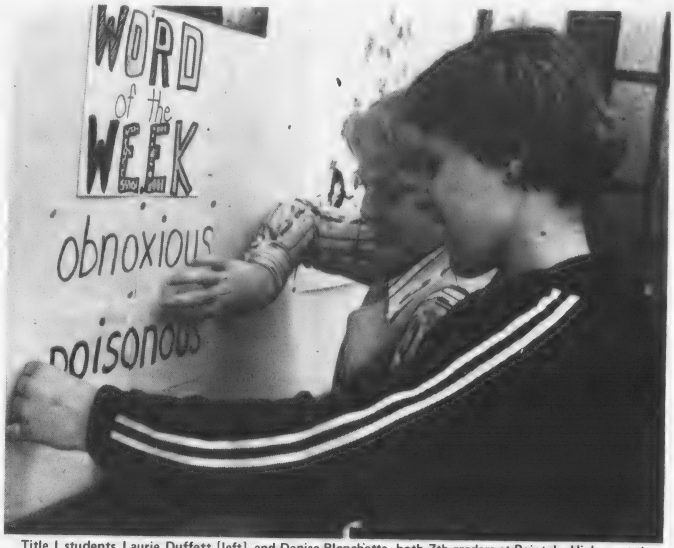
A NEWSPAPER BY AND FOR THE CHILDREN OF QUINCY

Editor: Linda Dugan

Title I Students Learn

EVERYONE NEEDS TO READ!

The students at Sterling, Point and Broad Meadows Jr. High Schools that are involved in the Title I reading and writing skills program are becoming increasingly aware of the need to read and comprehend written material.



The Title I program was recently expanded to the Jr. High level in January of 1978, to assist students who need additional support in reading and writing. These students have a regular class schedule, with the addition of meeting 2 or 3 times every week in very small groups for help and guidance in areas of language arts. That they have trouble in.

It's the main intent of the teachers and aides in the program to instill in the students a genuine interest in reading with various methods of stimulating learning activities. "Variety is a big factor," explains Jane McGuinnes Title I teacher at Sterling, "It's important to get the students involved in a number of different activities to expand their vocabulary and awareness of what's going on. Everyday activities such as reading the newspaper, writing letters, and following written directions [such as recipies and assemblies] are important in everyones lives, and we try to stress this through our program and then give them the necessary help to achieve these goals."

At Point Jr. High, Title I teacher Nancy Ellis encourages the students through bulletin board activities such as "Words of the Week" and "Doggone Difficult Words" in which a new word is posted each week that the students must learn and be able to use in a sentence. She also points out that "the help they receive in Title I has many positive effects in their other academic subjects. They learn tips on how to attack a chapter of reading in social studies or how to study a list of terms in science. It's important that they apply these skills to other classes. These skills will eventually become a part of their life habits at home and at work."

Joe Goguen at Broad Meadows is using an eyecatching newspaper collage to get his Title I students involved in reading the paper to understand and become familiar with current events. He explains, "They find that they need to be able to read well to understand what most of the photos are about. So if I can arouse their interest with exciting pictures then they become inquisitive and start looking up words and really trying to improve their skills."

Indeed, the students in the Title I program in the Quincy Jr. High schools are becoming increasingly aware of the fact that "everyone needs to read." For additional input, let's look at their reactions and comments on the program.

Title I students Laurie Duffett [left] and Denise Blanchette, both 7th graders at Point Jr. High, post the new "word of the week". Each week students must learn the new word and be able to use it effectively in a sentence. It increases their vocabulary as well as enforces correct spelling.

Mr. Joseph Goguen, Title I instructor at Broad Meadows Jr. High helps 8th grade student Tony Anshewitz individually. In the Title I program groups are small enough to allow as much individualized help as necessary.

'I like Title I because it helps me in Math. I can get individual help when I need it. Also, it is a different kind of classroom. There are no desks, just big tables and I'm allowed to sit anywhere I want to as long as I do my work.'

- Tony Anshewitz

EDITORIAL

Reading Is Important

In our lead editorial, Karla Marsden, an 8th grader at Sterling Jr. High, explains why she feels reading is important.

"We need reading because it is very important in our everyday lives. If people could not read we would not be able to communicate with one another. Without reading we would not be able to enjoy books, magazines, or newspapers. Reading allows us to visit other countries without going to them and also helps put things together in our daily lives. Reading is important in my life and also in everyone elses."

Special Award

Michael Kelsey, an 8th grader at Sterling Jr. High was the recipient of a very special award for reading. Michael was the first person to complete an NFL Pro Football reading skills kit consisting of approximately 50 cards. Each card has a complete story on some aspect of football, followed by a series of questions that test reading comprehension and understanding. Each card in the series becomes a little more complicated, and the questions require generalizations and full understanding of the reading material.

It's a tough project to finish, and the awarding of this completion certificate is quite an honor. Here are Michaels own feelings on the matter.

"Being the first to complete the football kit was very important to me. I wanted to prove to myself that I could do it. Towards the end, I got nervous and tense and it was on my mind constantly. From the kit I learned a lot about the game and the people of football. I especially liked the competition."

CATEGORIES

"Categories is a word game we play," says Charlie Kerr an eighth grader at Point Jr. High. "We list four categories across and eight letters down. You use the letter at the left to start a word in the categories. Any number of people can play, and the winner is the one with the most correct words."

See how you do with it!

Point Jr. High student Jeff Meigs thumbs through current magazines for pictures to be used in the class collages. Teacher Nancy Ellis explains, "The more written, visual material the students are exposed to the better. So many of the kids are so dependent on television showing and telling them everything that the need for them to read seems to have lessened ; and we have to convince them that it hasn't."

Title I Aide Debbie McCarter helps seventh grader Mark Copson with a paper he's writing at Broad Meadows Jr. High. "The Aides in this program are indispensable," states coordinator Stewart Sargent. "Without their assistance the success of the program would be severely cut back."

POINT JR. HIGH Teacher Nancy Ellis works with seventh grader Ralph Lambert on a collage they're constructing from magazine cutouts. Each collage has a specific theme or word that all the pictures must relate to.

SANDY MAGEE an aide in the Title I program at Point Jr. High, works with a small group of students on a word building game. Robert Burns, grade 7 joins in on the fun.

Word Chains

Word chains are a favorite activity of Robert Elder, a student at Sterling Jr. High. "The object," he explains, "is to make new words by changing only one letter at a time from a given word."

Example: Bean [starter word] bear tear hear head heed
weed

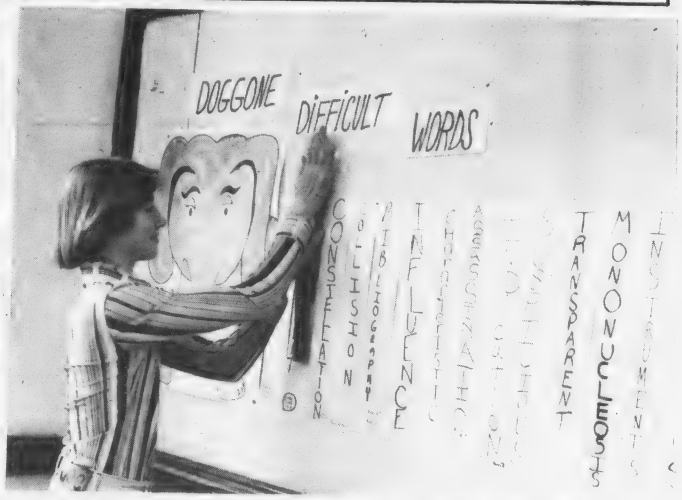
Try some on your own now. Suggestions for starter words are - Gold, Sack, Root or Fall - just about any word will do, but you can only change ONE letter at a time!

POEMS

Writing poetry is a creative way to get students involved in the writing process.

Here's one in tribute to teacher Nancy Ellis, written by Joey Colleton, grade 7 of Point Jr. High.

Roses are red
Violets are blue
Reading's important
Miss Ellis is too!



Personality Poems are another way to express yourself through poetry. It's an easy and fun way to write a poem about yourself. You just use each letter of your name to start a word or phrase that tells something about YOU. Follow the examples of Sharlene Bulonis and Larry Scarnici, both of Sterling Jr. High.

Loves Pizza
Always active
Ready for action
Runs on energy
Yells a lot.

Sensitive
Happy
Always reading
Running.
Laughing
Eager to try something new Never sad
Eats spaghetti.

BETH FITZGERALD, grade 7, Point Jr. High staples some "Doggone Difficult Words" to the ever-expanding display on the bulletin board. At the end of the year they're scheduled to have a test over all the words they have posted on the board.

Why I Like Title I

By Bobby Baldwin

In a short essay, Bobby Baldwin, grade 7, of Broad Meadows explains why he likes Title I.

"I like Title I because I can get out of some classes to get important help in reading. It helps me in other classes because now I can understand more than I did before we had a Title I program. I also enjoyed the field trip we went on to Hammond Castle because I learned how people lived in the olden days."

COLLABORATIVE WRITING

"Collaborative writing is when 2 or more people work in a joint effort to write a story," explains Jane McGuinnes Title I teacher at Sterling. "We usually give the kids a theme or the first sentence of a story. Then one person begins and writes a paragraph, and the next person must then read what the first person wrote and add on to it. This can be continued for as many people as you want, but each section must relate to what was written before. Sometimes the stories end up totally different than what the first person expected - but as long as each writer relates to what was previously written anything is possible!"

Here's an example of a collaborative story written by Title I aide Miss Beverly Dunn, Marie Mattina, and Patty Hayden both 7th graders at Sterling Junior High.

By BEVERLY DUNN, MARIE MATTINA and PATTY HAYDEN

Yesterday I saw the strangest sight. It was so hot out that the sun was beating down upon my back. When I looked up in the sky all I could see was the glare from the sun. Then far up in the sky, over Wollaston Beach I noticed a U.F.O.!

At first I thought the sun was making me see things, but it was really there. People started screaming and running. I just stood there awhile, I thought someone was trying to trick us. Then I walked over to the water and sat down to think. The water tingled my toes and the day grew even hotter.

Then all of a sudden the earth started to melt! The beaches started boiling and the roads melting, all the cars were sinking. The people still kept on running and screaming, but I couldn't move because there was no place to run. After awhile everything vanished.

Collaborative writing is a fun activity for any number of people. Here are some suggestions for other possible subjects to write on.

Friday was the worst day of my life because.....

I just sat down. I had a steaming hot dog covered with mustard and relish. The sun was warm and the first pitch was thrown.....

Title I Aide Carol Novick works with 8th grade student Susan Moody at the Broad Meadows Jr. High. Working in small groups is a big advantage of Title I. The kids have the quiet they need for studying, and someone's always available to help when they need it.

SUMMER SUGGESTIONS

Summer is a time of sun, fun, and relaxation. But it's a shame to let all the hard work done in school, especially in the Title I program, go unused and be forgotten over the long summer months. Actually it's a perfect opportunity to begin developing daily reading habits by keeping up with the steady stream of newspapers, magazines, letters and advertisements that we're exposed to each day. Daily reading will improve comprehension, skills, awareness, and make it easier to understand other school subjects.

Some activities suggested by the teachers in the Title I program include: comparing a book to the television version, planning a meal by doing all the necessary research from cookbooks and other recipies, helping to plan a summer trip by reading and comparing travel guides and brochures available free at travel agencies, keeping a daily journal of the summer activities or a scrapbook to look back and remember all the summer fun, learning a new craft or reading up on a favorite sport or hero is an interesting and enjoyable activity, as well as a project such as planting a garden or planning a party.

The list could go on forever! Use some imagination. Most any activity involves some reading or following directions. A good positive attitude toward reading is the first step toward the development of lifelong reading habits. Enjoy yourself!!

Teacher Jane McGuinnes [left] and her Aide Mrs. Carroll, talk with a parent at a recent meeting at Sterling Jr. High. Parent involvement and encouragement is a crucial part of the Title I program. Good attitudes toward reading, writing, or just about anything are started in the home, and the best way a parent can help is to become involved and set good examples for their children to observe.

Council Passes Record Budget

a $40 tax rate increase. The people in my ward wouldn't take that."

The bond issue passed, 7-2, with McCauley and Councillor Paul D. Harold dissenting. The budget itself sailed by in a matter of minutes by unanimous vote.

Both Tobin and John J. Lydon Jr., chairman of the Council's Finance Committee, expressed their pleasure over both the budget and its handling by the Council.

"The Council has been extremely kind and understanding," beamed Tobin. "I have no complaints whatsoever. I used to be a councillor and I know what a tough job they have to do out there.

"But it's different this year than in the past. This is the first time we're going to have a fully funded budget. Normally, the cuts would have been much greater.

"On the whole, I must say the Council has acted very rationally and I have to thank them for it."

"The Council and the Mayor, in a cooperative effort, have addressed the tax rate and at the same time have come up with a long range plan to stabilize the city finances," said Lydon.

"The Council's approach to the budget has been very realistic. It looks toward both the home owners and getting the city on its feet. We had to do it this year and I think we've done it."

Both Tobin and Lydon noted a couple of flaws in budget perfection, however.

"I would have liked to have seen a cut in the school budget," said Lydon, who attempted to do just that Saturday in the face of school fiscal autonomy. Other councillors didn't go along with it.

Tobin noted that "the only thing that threw us off was the hospital coming in at the last minute with a $700,000 deficit, which is not in the bond issue."

"It could have meant a $2.50 impact on the tax rate," he said, "but we have worked it out with bond counsel to have it included in the bond issue later, which will bring the issue to about $7.4 million."

nor did he consult the Harborview Tenants Committee, which represents the tenants of the city's public housing projects.

"The Screening Committee did not think it was their function to get involved with appointments to boards and commissions because they would get bogged down," explained Tobin.

"They were very pleased to help me put an administration together by screening department heads but they felt that when it came to the boards and commissions I would be able to handle that myself.

"If the City Council wishes to have input from the Tenants' Committee it is their perogative. Under law, the only tenant input is in the governor's appointment.

"All I'm required to do is submit names to the City Council and they are to either confirm or not confirm. If they do not like the names I submit they can vote them up or down."

Other members of the Housing Authority are Alphonse Papile, Edward S. Graham and Rosemary Wahlberg, the governor's appointee, whose term expires in 1979.

License Approved For N.Q. Chinese Restaurant

The Quincy Licensing Board Tuesday approved a common victualer all-alcoholic license for a proposed Chinese restaurant to be constructed at 11 Hancock St. and Newport Ave., at the entrance to State Street South complex in North Quincy.

The board complimented David Chu, the petitioner, and his attorney, Neil Kerstein, for the manner in which they discussed the proposal with residents of the North Quincy area.

City Councillor Joanne Condon told the board that 2,500 homes in the area were notified of the plans and invited to a discussion last week at the Atlantic Community Center. Most left the meeting expressing approval of the restaurant.

Atty. Kerstein testified that since the request was first submitted Chu and his partners, his father and godfather, have obtained an option on additional adjacent land to provide for a 100-car parking area.

The one-story hip-roofed building will seat 200 in the dining room and 75 in the lounge. A function room accommodating 100 will also be included.

The petitioners must now seek approval of the Flood Plain Zoning board.

This is the 32nd in a series of articles written

By Rep. MICHAEL W. MORRISSEY

The Massachusetts House is currently considering a bill that would re-impose the death penalty which was declared unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court. The United States Supreme Court made a ruling that it is up to the States to decide. This brings us to a deadlock. Even if the bill was to pass, a constitutional amendment would have to be passed.

The Legislature is scheduled to meet in a Joint Constitutional Convention on Wednesday, June 14th. The constitutional amendment to allow the death penalty could possibly be considered at this time.

The passage of Proposition 13 has swamped the Legislature with bills and amendments calling for tax cuts and tax limits. The Legislature will debate whether to admit a late file bill on a tax cut, some time this week. There is also an amendment to the Constitution which calls for a tax limit that could be considered at the Convention.

The Legislature is currently discussing the various ways to return our $150 Million Budget surplus to help ease the property tax burden. I will have more on tax relief in coming articles.

I hold office hours on Tuesdays and Thursdays 9:00 a.m. to 10:00 a.m. and Tuesday and Wednesdays 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. I can be reached by calling 328-0900 or 727-7035.

Tax Reform Not State Aid Key To Tax Relief, Says Harold

City Councillor Paul D. Harold says he feels that relief from the burden of the property tax will not come from increased state aid to local governments but by tax reform.

Harold, who is a candidate for the State Senate, told the Braintree Democratic Town Committee that the basic problem is an over-dependence on the property tax.

"In Massachusetts," he said, "we raise more than 50 per cent of all state and local tax revenues from the property tax while the national average is 35 per cent.

"This year the governor has proposed increases in local aid, but for the most part this new assistance will not reduce property taxes, only keep them from going much higher.

"Much of the money from the state will amount to catch-up money, to compensate for funding of state mandated programs which have not been properly funded by the state.

"Chapter 70 funding for education, for example, has dropped in three years from 83 per cent of entitlements to 49 per cent.

"It was the local government that had to put up this loss in revenue through the property tax, and yet the proposed figures for local aid this year will not even meet the new distribution formula for education costs.

"In order to provide genuine relief to the homeowner, the state legislature has to begin by lessening the dependence on the property tax by raising revenues from alternative sources.

"And there has to be a re-assessment of existing state mandated programs which are forced on cities and towns without proper funding."

Family Business Growing

S.S. Army & Navy Store Has Just About Everything

South Shore Army & Navy Store, 136 East Howard St., Quincy Point, opposite main gate of General Dynamics, is a family business established 25 years ago featuring new and used clothes.

The store is the only outlet in this area now carrying a full line of U.S. Army-Navy surplus goods. The demand for officer coats, flight jackets, fatigues and Army jackets has been so great that a separate department has been set up for this merchandise.

Navy deck jackets, flight jackets and a complete line of Army, Navy and Air Force slacks and chinos are but part of the large stock of merchandise available

Founder Toufic [John] Hajjar long specialized in "big men's" clothes at the firm's original store. He has now built a new unit at 513 Quincy Ave., to merchandise the big and tall men's line of clothing and accessories.

Farris Hanna is manager of the East Howard St. store and is also the principal buyer. John's son, Michael Hajjar, is office and financial manager.

In addition to clothes the store also carries Army blankets, canteens, shovels, foot lockers, gas masks, mosquito netting, duffle bags, combat and jungle boots, jump boots and the original Mickey Mouse boots.

South Shore Army & Navy Store carries a full line of Lee, Carhart, and Madewell clothes. Timberline, Dunham, Herman, Sorel, Frye and many other lines of shoes and boots are to be found among the stock.

A new service is the embroidering of high school names and sports logos on jackets.

The store carries a general line of clothing for casual wear, the working man, teens and women.

What Is An Appraisal?

True, A REALTOR can suggest a selling price for your home if you intend to list it with his office. This is common practice and part of the value of selling through a REALTOR. But this should not be construed as an official appraisal.

An Appraisal is the valuation of your property by a qualified Appraiser for a fee. This fee is based solely on the amount of work involved - not the market value of the property. His detailed written instrument will carry its full weight as documentation if used in any official capacity such as for tax or legal problems.

An Appraiser will provide you with a dated document which will cover in detail all the elements which go into the valuation such as: prices of comparable properties that have sold, value of location, construction, age and depreciation of the property, zoning, restrictions and reproduction cost. If it is income property he will capitalize the present and future income potential. Qualified Real Estate Appraisers will probably be members of the American Institute of Appraisers.

Wins 3 Straight

Morrisette Off To Fast Start

Morrisette's baseball team, seeking its 22nd Zone 6 championship, is off to a fast start with a 3-0 record, winning all three games by one run.

Morrisette, the defending champion, will host Hingham Friday at 8 under the lights at Adams Field. Monday it will play at Scituate at 6 and next Wednesday will meet Wollaston at 8 at Adams.

Wollaston will play at Scituate Friday at 6 and will play at Weymouth Monday at 6. Quincy will host Hingham Monday at 8 at Adams and will be home to Scituate Tuesday at 8 at Adams.

Monday Morrisette made its record 3-0 with a 1-0 squeaker over Quincy in one of the best played Legion games in years. Gary Earle pitched two-hit ball and struck out 14, while losing pitcher Kurt O'Sullivan, allowed only four hits.

Morrisette scored the only run in the third on Earle's triple and Fran Donovan's sacrifice fly.

In Quincy's third inning, Brian Jolley tripled. Dean Prescott struck out and Joe Waterhouse was hit by a pitch. Earle then struck out Bob Roberts and Rich Gilbody to halt the threat.

Last Friday Morrisette nipped Wollaston, 4-3, in 10 innings behind the combined one-hit pitching of John Wilkinson and Earle.

In the 10th, Wilkinson beat out an infield hit, was bunted along by Fran Donovan and Harry Donaghue and Bill Deitsch singled to drive in the winning run.

Wilkinson allowed only one hit and struck out eight. Donaghue and Deitsch had three hits apiece and Mike McCormack had two. Tom LaBlue pitched well for Wollaston and was tough with runners on base. Josh Alberti made two outstanding catches in center field for Wollaston.

Morrisette had opened with an 8-7 squeaker over Scituate, rallying after Scituate had scored four runs in the first inning.

In the seventh, Paul Lamphier tripled to open the inning for Scituate, but Ron Donovan struck out Paul Catanoso. Dennis Durkin hit a hard grounder to third and Paul King tagged out Lamphier and threw to first for a game-ending double play.

Donovan pitched well for Morrisette, giving up eight hits, striking out six and walking only one. McCormack was three for three and drove in four runs.

Quincy topped Scituate, 3-1, Sunday, behind the two-hit pitching of Artie Davis.

Davis allowed only one hit until the seventh when he surrendered a triple and the runner scored. Davis walked the bases loaded but Dave McLaughlin grabbed a hard liner by Mike McCarthy to end the game.

Quincy scored on a run-producing single by McLaughlin in the first and added two runs in the fourth. The winning run scored on a Pat Ennis single. Davis drove in the insurance run with a single.

Quincy dropped a 2-1 squeaker to Hingham in its opener as Rick Cox drove in the winning run in the last inning with an infield single.

O'Sullivan pitched outstanding ball for Quincy, yeilding eight hits, three in the first inning, when Hingham scored its first run. Ennis singled home the tying run in the fourth.

THE WINNER -- Marty Levenson, 19, of 47 Hilda St., Quincy, heads for the finish line in front of North Quincy High School during recent three-mile road race sponsored by the Quincy City Club. Levenson came in first with a time of 16 minutes and 18 seconds. The event was held to benefit the Leukemia Foundation.

Despite Vandalism

City Boating Season To Open On Schedule

The city boating season on Black's Creek will open as planned July 5 despite the uninsured loss of a dozen sailboats and the boat house to vandals.

The Recreation Department has ordered 10 Widgins to replace the 12 Turnabouts that were destroyed by fire and a borrowed trailer will replace the old boat house for the coming summer.

"The Turnabouts were 9½ footers," said Recreation Director Charles L. Alongi Jr. "The Widgins are 12½ footers with mainsail and jibsail.

"We will be able to accommodate as many participants in the 10 Widgins as we could in the 12 Turnabouts. They're ideal for children, adults and family sailing."

Alongi said the Rec Department has also ordered six rowboats to augment the five that escaped the fire and two Boston Whalers, 11-foot patrol boats.

"We'll have a full fleet ready to go when we open up July 5," he said. "Some of the boats will be delivered July 3 and some others may come slightly before that."

The boats are being purchased with a $17,500 appropriation by the City Council.

Alongi said the debris from the old boathouse has been cleaned up and a trailer, borrowed from the Public Works Department, will be used as an office and small maintenance shop for this summer.

"It'll be a little inconvenient but it will be effective," he said. "There will be no handicaps to the program this summer."

Alongi said he hopes that construction can begin late in the summer on a new concrete block boathouse and storage building. There is an $11,000 capital outlay item in the Park and Rec Department budget for that purpose.

The boathouse would be built on the site of the old one and the storage building would be constructed within the confines of the old Nike site in Merrymount Park, once it is taken over by the city.

"It's a better location for us to guard against vandals during the winter months," said Alongi. "It will be concrete block with a flat roof and metal doors, as vandal-proof as we can make it."

He said the $11,000 will go for materials only and the Park Department, with an assistant from students and staff of the Vo Tech School, will do the construction work.

And, oh, yes, this time the boats and the buildings will be insured, and the premiums paid on time.

Light Up The Target - You!

Of the many variables which combine to cause an accident on the highway, one is visibility of the "target". The less visible your car is, the higher its chances of being struck.

According to recent tests at the University of California, the colors blue and yellow were judged the safest if you want your car to be seen on the highway. Blue shows up best during daylight and fog, and yellow is best at night. The worst color from the visibility standpoint is gray. It seems to blend into the background and appears to be much farther away than it is.

Luminous tape is also a major visibility factor at night. Its reflective ability triples the distance that your car can be seen. And here's the visibility tip for the day. Why not paint the inside of your car's trunk with luminous paint? In case of a breakdown at night, your raised trunk lid will glow as a warning to other motorists.

WE NEVER MENTIONED OUR TUNNEL

Of the garden shops in Greater Boston we think we're the only one with a tunnel. They didn't build it for us. In fact, it was here long before we were. It's the pedestrian tunnel under the MBTA tracks in Wollaston. People walking from Veteran's Stadium down St. Ann's Road use it to get to Newport Avenue.

You can use it too going the other way. It leads right to our garden shop and we'd be pleased to have you come by.

We think we've seen just about 90% of our friends who bought at the old Newport Garden Shop. Being there ten years gave us the chance to have some built-in "old customers".

Vegetable plants are selling great right now. Anyone who didn't get their garden in over the long weekend should get going (or growing if you like). Sure, plenty of vegetables can be planted later but don't put it off any longer if you want maximum enjoyment.

There'll be no bragging from the O'Connells, but we think we're almost in a position to say "If it's sold at a garden shop you can get it here at O'Connell Gardens in Wollaston."

See you soon....?

MONEY TALKS

Here Are Savings Programs For Every Personal Or Firm Need

By Philip J. Lawrence, President

Colonial Federal Savings

and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham

8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Few people are aware of how well savings and loans can accommodate their special intentions with respect to the custodianship of their funds.

Most think of us solely in terms of individual savings accounts or certificates of deposit. We do offer a full range of opportunities, from a youngster's passbook to the funds of a corporation or public entity.

Let's say that you have a grandchild or grandchildren for whom you wish to set aside a sum of money, available after attaining adulthood. You may choose a single-grantor trust account for the designated beneficiary [or beneficiaries] on either a revocable or irrevocable basis, depending on whether or not you reserve the right to change the trust agreement at a later date.

Or suppose an inheritance leaves your family a considerable sum of money, whose income will be taxable annually in the years ahead, and which you eventually want to go to your heirs. Within IRS limitations, you may set up all or part of this money in savings accounts as custodian under the Gifts for Minors Act. You are authorized to administer this money for the minors, withdrawing funds as needed for their upkeep, with restrictions where the minor is a dependent whom you must support. Any money left in such an account becomes his or her property when the minor reaches 21. You are thus relieved of the income tax due on the earnings from such accounts since they are really the property of the minors involved.

If you are a guardian, custodian, conservator, or representative payee of a minor or a disabled or incompetent person, a fiduciary account may be authorized so that you can administer the account and add to or withdraw from it, generally by court order.

An individual account with power of attorney offers you the convenience of withdrawal by an authorized person without jeopardizing your personal ownership.

Multiple ownership accounts may be set up in various ways: 1. joint tenancy with right of survivorship, providing for ownership of the deceased's share by the surviving joint owner or owners; 2. tenancy in common, providing for the descent of the fund to each owner's heir or heirs in accordance with his or her will or the state laws of inheritance; 3. tenancy by the entirety, opened by husband and wife and preventing either spouse from terminating the account with one signature alone and from getting power of attorney to act for the other; 4. community property, opened by the husband and wife to provide for the descent of one-half of the funds to the surviving spouse and the other half to heirs of the deceased spouse; and 5. co-grantors, usually opened by two or more people who wish to set up a fund that will be paid to someone else at a later date. Co-grantor funds may be revocable or irrevocable.

Entity accounts may be set up by the fiduciary for the estate of a decedent, by a corporation, by an unincorporated group or association, by a partnership, or by a public unit performing local government functions or providing municipal services.

Like all other methods of saving, entity accounts enjoy the superior earnings on time and demand deposits which savings and loans are authorized to offer.

Increase your home's value with a Home Improvement Loan.

Fixing up your home this spring? You'll do a lot more than add to your family's pleasure. You'll add to the value of your home, probably your most important asset.

The way labor and material costs keep skyrocketing, changes you make now will cost less than if you wait. And will appreciate in value over the years. Just as an example, the replacement cost for a frame house over the last ten years has gone up 213%. More than triple!

Whether you want to borrow just enough with a Personal Loan for a small appliance, or if you want to make more extensive changes with a Home Improvement Loan, come talk to us. You'll find our rates attractive and, if you're a Multistatement customer, you'll get a preferred rate on any installment loan of $1,500 or more.

If you have a major project in mind, ask about our Home Equity Loan. You can borrow from $5,000 upwards and take from five to ten years to repay.

Whatever home improvements you have in mind, you know we'll do our best to help you now so you can be worth even more tomorrow. Because we're banking on your future.

Progress, Growth and COMMUNITY SERVICE

Annual Report to Shareholders of the Quincy Co-operative Bank by President John R. Herbert, May 24, 1978

In the face of a period of economic uncertainty, The Quincy Co-operative Bank management takes particular pride in this year's report to our Shareholders because we are able to talk about continued sound, stable growth for your Bank.

The operating figures stand for themselves - and tell pretty much the whole story:

- When we closed our books on April 29, 1978, at the end of our fiscal year, our assets were $121,113,991, which represents a three year growth of $27,294,371.
- During the past year, our asset growth was $9,596,814 as against a growth of $9,446,473 the previous year when we closed our books at $111,517,177.
- Share Capital, that is, money on deposit, exceeded $100,000,000 for the first time in the Bank's history, and the figure now stands at $105,064,914.33.
- On a percentage basis, our asset growth was 29.09% during the three year period, and our Share Capital increase stands at 31.37% for the same period.
- Our Surplus increased 15.22% in that time or translated into dollars, we put $1,473,268 into Surplus over 36 months.
- Last year we paid our Shareholders dividends in the amount of $5,402,319 and, this year paid $6,024,702, an increase of 11.52%.

While we were preparing this report, the Co-operative Central Bank, which insures all co-operative banks in the State, released its latest monthly statistical report as of December, 1977. For the purpose of demonstrating the strength of your Bank with regard to reserves, we present this data from the Co-operative Central Bank:

Of the eight major co-operative banks in the State, The Quincy Co-operative Bank not only has the highest actual reserve dollar total, but we have the highest percentage of reserves to assets. We have reserves of $11,129,000 or 9.6% of our assets.

So much for the raw data that speaks so eloquently for our growth. But let's look at the other items that provide equally eloquent testimony about the progress made by your Bank.

This year we opened 8,250 new accounts -- as against 6,200 last year. We think a total of 14,450 new customers in two years is a substantial tribute to the confidence people have in your Bank. Another figure we like to cite relates to our transactions in the past 12 months. This figure gives us an accurate picture of how busy we are at a given time.

TRANSACTIONS

During 12 months, our transactions amounted to $433,397,000, which is a sizable business in any commercial field. This compares with transaction business last year in the amount of $355,850,000.

Last year, under transactions, we cashed $87,500,000 worth of checks, and this year the figure soared to $99,000,000. The transactions involved savings deposits, savings withdrawals, mortgage payments, checks cashed, register checks sold, loans granted, investment purchases, and investment maturities and sales, all of which required considerable work on the part of the Bank staff.

In connection with our check cashing, the significant figure that deserves comment more than any other is the percentage of loss in relation to checks handled. This year we wrote off $331.52 in bad checks, but we recovered $208.00 of this amount so that our net loss was $123.52. Running this loss into a calculator, as against $99,000,000 worth of business, we come up with a loss of .00012 percent in check cashing.

This loss percentage is a remarkable tribute to our alert tellers who must bear the brunt of check cashing. They are the Bank's personnel members who meet the needs of our good customers while taking the complaints and abuses from flim flam artists whose phoney checks are not cashed. We believe we have an outstanding group of tellers, as our customers will testify to, and their check cashing record is superb.

Our NOW Account business has been surging ahead, partly because we do not charge for this service. We now have 5,204 NOW Accounts for a total balance of $4,135,613.

Uncertainty of the future -- what will the economy do -- or what pressures and/or controls will the government put on the economy -- make investment management a challenge today.

We have kept our Bank liquid -- or in laymen's terms -- we have a high reserve ratio that can be converted quickly to higher yield investments The law requires a liquidity of approximately seven percent -- and double that is considered good. Ours runs at 31 percent.

This, plus the fact that we have no debt -- we have done no borrowing -- puts your Bank in a very strong position to weather the uncertainties of the national economy.

We have spurned the advice of some that we should "debt leverage." This would simply be borrowing large amounts to invest at a rate higher than what we pay for the borrowed money. Doing this could very easily jump our place upward in bank asset size. But the risk is in a possible market downturn.

We have a conservative management approach -- and we believe this is what our Shareholders want. It is surely a way of life that avoids the crises faced by so many money managers seeking a fast, higher return on a dollar.

FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

During the past year we formed our own internal Financial Management Group, a committee to provide us with day to day overviews on the economy. For financial management planning, we buy the services of The First National Bank of Boston, and our auditing and tax work is by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. This gives us a strong group of talents for the handling of investments.

All banks today face the same challenges in trying to look at the year ahead. Our latest First National Bank financial guide includes these ominous words:

> "Our conclusion is that heavy short-term demands may well dictate higher interest rates than expected earlier. A prime lending rate between 9 and 9½ percent could well be in place by year-end, and, more likely than not, the prime could still be rising. If so, economic prospects for 1979, in our opinion, will deteriorate as high interest rates and greater inflation sap the strength of the economy."

Our rapid growth has brought one problem -- a good problem to have. We need now to move into a better use of electronic equipment for our bookkeeping and records keeping. Our use of the State Street Bank's computer service has some limitations for us. Thus, for the past year, we have made a careful study of computer equipment with the services of a top flight consultant. We have developed a three phase program, the first step being ready this August, and the final total system should be operational in 1981.

Last year at this time in our report to our Shareholders, we commented on our concern about our 4-5 year Certificates, which pay 7.50%. In view of the low investment interest rates then prevailing, we raised the question about the possibility of not offering this category of investment, a step that had been taken months and weeks before by other banks. Shortly after that we did suspend the sale of the 7.50% Certificates for several weeks, but as interest rates gradually rose, our Board voted to resume sales of these Certificates and allocated $3,000,000 for these accounts.

In view of current investment rates, we see no reason for concern about the ongoing sale of these very popular Certificates which if left to maturity yield 7.90%.

This has been a year of slow activity in the local mortgage market. Frankly, we have been shocked at the rapid rise in the price of houses, and some of our Shareholders may well ask what this Bank is doing to see the great American dream of home ownership come to fruition. We have only one philosophy in this regard: We will always be ready to assist in home ownership, not only with funds but with sound and helpful advice for prospective buyers. After all, it was the belief of Josiah Quincy, Jr., the founder of co-operative banking and the man for whom this Bank was named, that the co-operative banking movement had one basic purpose: to provide home ownership. We have the funds to finance homes for our customers, and we will always try to offer these funds at the best rate available.

WINTER'S CHALLENGE

It is not necessary to remind anyone about the severity of the past winter. We were presented with a double challenge -- not only the matter of how to get our employees to their jobs but more challenging, perhaps, the actual closing of the banks of this State for several days by order of Governor Dukakis. We understood why the Governor shut down the State's commerce for several days in order to get salvage, rescue, and plowing operations under way, but we don't think the Governor realized that starting up banks after the shut down of several days would be a quick and easy thing to accomplish. We were told by the State that we could open with employees who could walk to work, as though all Bank employees are capable of performing all bank jobs. We have employees who perform many functions, but for the start up procedure the primary need was for tellers, and this presented a problem of logistics that required some ingenuity to resolve. Because of our great sense of pride in the outstanding job our people did, we feel impelled at this time to include in our Annual Report the text of a statement we ran as an advertisement after the banks were opened:

> "Once again, under adverse conditions, the magnificent staff of The Quincy Co-operative Bank met the challenge of reopening on Friday. In their characteristic 'can do' way, our employees made it to our main office, to our Hanover branch, to our Braintree office, and to our 1000 Southern Artery branch. Our Cohasset branch could not be opened because it is located in a center that was unplowed Friday morning.
> "The Quincy main office opened at just before 7:00 a.m. on Friday, and we had a few customers and a large number of people seeking shelter from the cold while waiting for a bus. We were happy to provide both help to those who wanted bank service and those who needed shelter.
> "Those who looked at our Hanover branch sometime after 7:00 a.m. would see two Vice Presidents of the Bank: Frank Mitchell and Ronald McKee shoveling out the entrance. But we were able to open by 7:30 a.m. Our limited service operation for residents of 1000 Southern Artery opened on time with a CD truck delivering Manager Nance Stier; Teller Joanne Buckley walking to work; and Teller Violet Pace merely walking downstairs [she lives there].
> "And at Braintree, Assistant Treasurer Doris Morford and Leo Sheehan, our Internal Auditor, walked in from Weymouth to help open the Braintree operation. Many other employees walked to the main office or to our branches; in fact several walked over two miles to get to their jobs.
> "Some weeks ago when we were developing our storm contingency plans, we designated Director of Training Joan Ilacqua, who lives nearby in Quincy, to open the main office in case of a storm. We referred to her as our 'Storm Warden.' And at 6:45 a.m. Friday morning when we arrived at the Bank, there was Joan with Penny Fuller, both of whom had walked to work. The Bank was ready for a 7:00 a.m. opening.
> "Cranking up a bank, after being closed a record three days, is not an easy thing. We were concerned about having enough money for our customers, and there had been no word about deliveries by Brinks or Wells Fargo. But thanks to our local commercial banks: Hancock Bank & Trust Company, South Shore Bank, BayBank/Norfolk County Trust, and Rockland Trust Company, we received all the money we needed. We are indeed grateful to all of them for their cooperation.
> "We believe we have the finest staff of any bank on the South Shore. The enthusiasm and esprit de corps is contagious, and this blizzard crisis demonstrated the personal interest each of our staffers has in our Bank. And in passing our credits for good work, we do have to mention Vice President Bob Keddy who volunteered his services with his four-wheel drive car to the Civilian Defense organization on Wednesday, and he drove it for 12 hours taking people to hospitals and helping to rescue stranded families. That's the kind of personally concerned people we have here. That's why we are so proud of all of them."

PRAISE FROM MAYOR

Incidentally, Mr. Keddy's selfless dedication to the cause of humanity during that storm caused Mayor Arthur H. Tobin of Quincy to send personal thanks to Mr. Keddy, saying. "A mere thank you seems so inadequate at this time, but I assure you that it has a personal special meaning. No word in Webster's Dictionary could adequately express how grateful I am. You are to be commended for giving of your time and energy in a period of severe crisis."

When our Board met shortly after the devastating winter blizzard, it was unanimously agreed that our Bank should do everything legally possible to help people with severe storm damage to their homes. Our Mortgage Department had already formed a task force to inspect waterfront area homes on which this Bank had mortgages. Our task force diligently and quickly checked these buildings for damage. Then we suspended the normal procedure for processing insurance claims. Usually our Bank waits for insurance companies to issue drafts after which we inspect the property to approve the repairs and the settlement. But for storm victims, we did home inspections immediately so that when insurance drafts were issued, actual payment for home repairs could be made almost at once. A footnote to this procedure is worth citing. Our Co-operative League Chief Executive, with other bank and State people, was meeting with the Bank Commissioner to see what could be done to help owners of severely damaged homes. The League Director called us to find out what we were doing, and we explained the speedup plan for insurance settlements. He responded that he had called us because he knew we would have developed some sort of a significant program that he could present to the meeting he was attending.

In November of 1975, some weeks after the present management was developed for the Bank, the Board of Directors met to discuss the directions the Bank should follow. It was unanimously agreed that the Bank should pursue growth, backed by a strong organization. We believe on the basis of these three year figures presented above that the goals of the Board are being achieved.

OUTSTANDING STAFF

We have an outstanding staff, and it is being strengthened almost daily. We are happy to welcome aboard O Donald Gohl, who became our Director of Branch Operations after 32 years of service with the Quincy Savings Bank where he was a Vice President at the time of his resignation.

Other new employees are: Pat Jones, Marketing Manager; Susan Doyle, Teller - Quincy; Lynette Feeney, Teller - Quincy; Valarie Kaye, Teller - Quincy; Kathy Kershaw, Secretary - Quincy; Sonia Rodriguez, Teller - Quincy; Linda Tringale, NOW Clerk - Quincy; Jeanne Redmond, Secretary - Quincy; Deborah Zawalich, Manager of IRA/Keogh Accounts; Philip Almquist, Messenger - for all branches; Karen Kelly, Teller - Hanover; Jean Kennedy, Teller - Hanover; Marilyn Coose, Teller - Cohasset; and Grace Caso, Head Teller - Braintree.

We take special pride in the fact that our officer and supervisory force is now 50% women and 50% men. For instance, we have four branches, two managed by women and two by men. And our oldest employee in point of service is Miss Marjorie Caswell, a Vice President of the Bank. It gave all of us at the Bank real pleasure to honor Miss Caswell last December for her 45 years of continuous service with our Bank.

We feel our Bank has a fine record of community service, professionally and otherwise.

We were very happy to provide personnel for the branch of another bank, a strong competitor, when its staff was decimated by influenza during the winter.

Our part in the United Way this year when the fund raised a record $18,000,000, was a major one. Frank Mitchell, Administrative Vice President, served as Chairman of the South Regional Task Force which encompassed 21 cities and towns in the South Shore area. From this local region more than $380,000 was raised, a substantial increase over last year. Mr. Mitchell's part in the campaign allowed The Quincy Co-operative Bank to participate in a pilot campaign which brought statewide recognition to our Bank because we raised 82% more money within our Bank than the preceding year. Participating in the United Way activity with Mr. Mitchell was our Senior Vice President and Treasurer, Ronald A. McKee, who solicited area corporate gifts.

At Hanover a new Chamber of Commerce was developed with the blessing and encouragement of the South Shore Chamber. Your Bank, in the belief that strong neighborhood support is an essential part of good citizenship played a major role in the formation of the Hanover Chamber of Commerce. We should report, too, that our Hanover Branch Manager, Jack Sperry, was elected President of the new organization. He also serves as a Director of the Chamber.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

The spirit of community participation and awareness by employees of The Quincy Co-operative Bank was demonstrated on February 28, 1978 when a request was received from the Red Cross Blood Program for donors to alleviate the serious blood shortage that existed. Twelve employees immediately responded to the call, and a contingent led by one of our Vice Presidents proudly donated in the name of The Quincy Co-operative Bank. Our Bank donors were: Administrative Vice President, Francis J. Mitchell; Carl R. Abramson, Assistant Treasurer; Sandra A. McCabe, Administrative Assistant; Pat Jones, Marketing Manager; Ann Longhi, Purchasing Agent; Dottie Eaton, Receptionist; Veva Darrow, T.D.C. Clerk; Jean Moran, Head Teller; Joan Ilacqua, Supervisor; Lynette Feeney, Teller; Ken Barrett, Teller; and Neil Wilson, Teller.

Our community commitment has been manifest in our scholarship program. Once again we awarded the Josiah Quincy Scholarship to the 10 high schools and private schools in the areas of our main office and our four branches. We also made our $1,500 scholarship award to The Quincy Junior College. One of the basic rules for the scholarship awards is that the choice of winners is left entirely to the school administrators. Our only requirement is that of a demonstration by the winners of scholastic excellence and outstanding citizenship through school and community activity.

This year the Junior College choice ended in a tie, and we were happy to see the award split between two outstanding young women. We were especially pleased when we were informed about the winner of the award at the Woodward School for Girls. Earlier this year, Woodward asked us to participate in a trainee program, which we thought was a great idea, and the school assigned Brenda Johnston to us. She spends a day a week with us learning about banking. And, she was picked by Woodward School to be the winner of the Josiah Quincy scholarship award.

As part of our award procedure, we sponsor a luncheon for the recipients with their headmasters. It is always a source of pride for all of us to see the very fine group of winners and to discuss with them their future education and vocational plans.

In addition to these local scholarships, we also offer annually a scholarship for bank examiners through the National Association of State Savings & Loan Supervisors. We feel this is a very fine way to help professional bank examiners achieve greater skills in their work.

We also underwrite the tuition costs for our employees who take professional courses related to the banking field.

CAREER EDUCATION

Also in the area of education, we donated a complete Career Education Planning Program to Quincy High School, North Quincy High School, and the Quincy Vocational Technical School. The booklets will be used in the Guidance Department and in classrooms for education and guidance discussions.

And speaking of vocational guidance, we were among the more than 50 business firms participating in the extremely successful Job Fair '78 held at State Street South and sponsored by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, Quincy CETA, South Shore Job Center, and the Norfolk County Tourist and Development Council. Our booth was staffed by Assistant Treasurer Carl Abramson, Joan Ilacqua, Jean Moran, and Jean Kelleher.

We have many community conscious people in our Bank, and we feel this is one of the reasons that our Bank is so sensitive to community needs. Vice President McKee is a Director of the Pembroke Youth Hockey and the Quincy Kiwanis Club; and is Treasurer of the Pembroke Boys Baseball League; Vice President Mitchell is a Director of Quincy Rotary; your President is a Director of Boston Rotary, and three of our Directors are Directors of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. Two of our Directors serve on the Board at Thayer Academy. Director William A. O'Connell is President of The Quincy Historical Society.

Pat Jones, our Marketing Manager, is a member of the Marketing Committee for the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League, but in addition to her professional work in the League, she has lectured at Quincy Junior College, and she will be a judge of the 1978 Josiah Quincy Oratorical Competition in the Quincy Public Schools. Additionally, she has been named to run the Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant this year in connection with Quincy Bay Race Week. Pat Jones and Jerry Foley, Assistant to the Loan Officer, volunteer in the planning work for the Quincy Historical Society. [Pat succeeded Jerry as Marketing Manager when Jerry was promoted this past year.]

ANNUAL SEMINAR

Typical of our community volunteer work is that of Jean Kelleher, a Mortgage Department Supervisor, who conducted a workshop on women in business for the annual seminar of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women. The workshop was so well received it had to be run twice in one day. Jean also participated in Bankers' Night of the Quincy South Shore Board of Realtors, and she has been a speaker for Project W.A.G.E. for the Mayor's Commission, discussing problems women may encounter in their careers.

We continue to pioneer and innovate in many aspects of our Bank marketing program.

What we seek is the best possible way to serve our customers -- and to find new customers. The basis for such work is in service -- making existing services better and adding new services as our customers need them.

This year we offered free to our customers a desk calendar illustrated with drawings of local historic scenes by Ruth Weston, a local artist. The 5,000 calendars enjoyed unusual customer acceptance, being completely gone in two weeks. Savings Institutions Marketing Society of America awarded us a national certificate of excellence for the outstanding beauty and utility of the calendar.

Our branches have been busy with various promotions: Cohasset greeted Christmas with a big celebration for youngsters and Marine Historian Edward Rowe Snow served as Santa Claus with our own Walter Mason, Deputy Security Officer of the Bank, serving as Snow's alter ego at times; and, our 1000 Souther Artery branch entertained folks at the Senior Citizens Center, and the residents for a real old German Oktoberfest. In our last report, we announced that our Hanover branch had won not only the State's Environmental Business Award but a Hanover Garden Club certificate of appreciation. Since that announcement we have been given the Renaissance Award from the Plymouth County Development Council. All of the awards are based on the remodeling and beautification of our Hanover branch.

WORD OF APPRECIATION

This is, of course, a report from the Bank's Board to the Shareholders. But your President must take this opportunity to give his thanks and the thanks of our Officers and Supervisors to our Board for its constructive and enthusiastic backing of management's work this past year. Without this ongoing support, much of what we have done could not be accomplished. The varied business backgrounds represented among our Directors has given our Shareholders a strong and forward looking Board.

Paul Revere BOWL

Sons of Liberty

The original Bowl was made by Paul Revere, a great patriot and skilled silversmith, in the year 1768. Later, an exact replica was ordered by the Fifteen Sons of Liberty whose names were engraved around the original Bowl and it memorialized the vehement protest of the Massachusetts General Court to the Government in London against their oppressive and arbitrary acts. The Bowl was used at every meeting of the Sons of Liberty for many years.

Council Confirms Tobin QHA Appointments Without Screening

Fr. McCarthy, D'Olimpio Get Unanimous Approval

By TOM HENSHAW

The City Council has approved the appointments of Carmine D'Olimpio and the Rev. William R. McCarthy to the Quincy Housing Authority -- unanimously and enthusiastically.

But it was not without some foot-dragging by Councillor Paul D. Harold and not without a parting shot of dissent from James F. Miller Jr., chairman of the Harborview Residents Committee.

Both Harold and Miller objected to the fact that Mayor Tobin had not put the appointees through any form of screening process before submitting their names to the Council for confirmation.

"They are both fine appointees," said Harold. "Again it is a situation where we got the right result the wrong way. I hope in the future we can set up some kind of a screening process involving tenants."

Miller, in a letter to the Council, asked that the nominations be placed in committee so that "citizens knowledgeable in the area of public housing and those whose lives would be most directly affected may have at least minimal participation and input."

Prior to confirmation, the Council's Oversight Committee, chaired by Harold, held a last minute hearing on a resolve that had been kicking around the Council chamber since Feb. 21.

It suggested that the Council might send the two names to a screening committee of three members of the HRC and three representatives of senior citizens before acting on confirmation.

Harold's bid was shot down with Councillors Daniel G. Raymondi and Leo J. Kelly taking turns at the firing line.

They noted that the last time the committee met it had directed Harold to sit down with the Mayor "and go over whatever screening process the councillors had in mind." Harold hadn't done that.

"I talked to the people involved and there was not a consensus of what direction the tenants' association wanted," said Harold. "They had sat down with the Mayor and the Mayor informed them he was not interested in having a screening committee."

Councillor Francis X. McCauley, who on many issues has been Harold's sole support on the Council, said if the resolve came up for a vote he would vote

Committee To Study Hospital Finance Problems

Mayor Tobin is setting up a blue ribbon committee to study the financial problems of Quincy City Hospital.

The possibility of selling the Hospital to a private, non-profit organization, he said, "could be in the broad spectrum of the study."

At the same time, City Councillor Paul D. Harold asked the Council to set up a subcommittee to study the feasibility of selling the hospital.

Both proposals grew out of a hospital deficit of $789,000, which Tobin proposed be added to the $6.7 million bond issue that will cover other deficits.

The Council sent the loan order to its Finance Committee.

"What concerns us," said Tobin, "is that if we had not taken the financial approach that we did in order to hold the tax line we would have faced a

Badger's Quarry Taken, To Be Filled In

"I think," said City Council President John J. Quinn, "that in celebration of your victory, councillor, the councillors should make it a standing vote."

"My recommendation, Mr. President," said Councillor James A. Sheets, "is that they take a final swim."

The reason for the celebration was that, after some eight years of studies, hearings and debate, the city was taking over Badger's Quarry, the old swimming hole in West Quincy, that had become a danger.

The order passed by the Council provides for the taking of 5.71 acres of land "for public convenience and necessity" to be filled in under the 1975 Ward 4 bond issue.

"An historic moment," said Sheets.

Hannon Will Not Run For Congress

Register of Deeds Barry T. Hannon of Braintree, who was to have announced his candidacy for Congress this week, reversed his field at the last moment and announced that he has decided not to run after all.

"I found I could not enter to race with a free mind," he said. "I felt I would be letting my family down."

Hannon said his three children, Amy 15, Barry 12, and Kate 10, had agreed that he should run and a poll that he commissioned showed him to be a "probable winner in the field as it presently is formed."

But, he said, "to be an effective congressman requires 100 percent dedication of yourself to your duties and obligations. My kids are just entering their teen years in a very difficult world. To drop out of their lives I feel I would be doing them a serious disservice.

"The congressional seat is the Holy Grail of political life and I would normally welcome the opportunity to serve the people of the 11th District as their congressman but my personal priorities tell me that I cannot do it at this time."

He said he reached his final decision over the weekend.

Without Hannon, the field in contention for the Democratic nomination to succeed the retiring Cong. James A. Burke (D-Milton) is currently pegged at five.

They are State Reps. James A. Sheets (D-Quincy) and Brian J. Donnelly (D-Boston), Boston City Councillor Patrick F. McDonough, Randolph Atty. Patrick H. McCarthy, and Sabina Kavanagh, Quincy realtor and beautician.

Pub Liquor License Transfer Denied

Eleven Hundred Restaurant, formerly Eddie's Diner, 382 Quincy Ave., Quincy, has been denied permission to transfer the common victualer-all alcoholic license from County Line Pub, 569 Washington St., Quincy Point, to the restaurant.

The Quincy Licensing Board on Tuesday turned down the request after hearing objections from City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi and a representative of 1000 Southern Artery.

Atty. Thomas Williams, appearing for the petitioner, said his client needed the license to meet the competition of fast food chains in the area.

He told the board that the restaurant had outgrown its 'diner' image and sought to cater to families, senior citizens and young couples seeking an inexpensive dinner. These customers, he maintained, usually want a cocktail with their meal.

He told the board that Denis Donoghue, formerly with Sherry's, would be manager of the restaurant. Williams said Peter Saxonis, who also owns the Knotty Pine Restaurant, on Washington St., was offering $13,000 for the license. The suspended license is now owned by Harry D. Hogan, who is reputed to have paid $65,000 for it.

"I oppose the transfer," Councillor Raymondi told the board. "I am opposed to any transfer of this license within Ward 2. I don't think the diner is conducive to attracting diners from 1000 Southern Artery. The transfer is not in the best interest of the people, nor does the need exist."

Elise Beaulieu, a social worker at 1000 Southern Artery, a housing complex for the elderly, said she had been asked to notify the board residents of the complex wanted to be recorded as opposed to the transfer.

Board chairman John Gillis said he wanted to hear from the Ward 2 Civic Association. Councillor Raymondi informed the board that the association had discussed the matter and he felt "the sense" of the meeting was one of opposition.

Board member McDonald made a motion to deny the transfer and Gillis and Dr. Samuel Solomon concurred. Fire Chief Edward Barry and Police Chief Francis X. Finn were not present at the hearing.

Beer, Wine License Rejected At Presidents Golf Course

By PETER BARNICLE

The Quincy Licensing Board Tuesday reaffirmed its opposition to the serving of liquor at Presidents Golf Course, Wollaston, by denying a request of the lessors for a common victualer-wine and malt beverage license.

Several months ago the board denied an all alcoholic license to the petitioners, James E. Barry, and Richard J. Mulvee, both of Marshfield.

Barry formerly owned the Presidential Pub in Quincy Sq. Mulvee has had several years restaurant experience managing the Bridgeway Inn, Marshfield.

Building Inspector Allan McDonald said he was opposed to the license because the Wollaston Recreational Facility, site of the golf course, "was intended for youths and is in violation of the zoning ordinance."

City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., appearing for residents of the area, had pointed out that the facility is in a residential zone A area. He contended that the first step to be taken by the petitioners should be a request to the board of appeals for a zoning variance.

Atty. Neil Kerstein, counsel for Barry and Mulvee, said his clients had re-designed the restaurant to eliminate the bar and that alcoholic beverages would be served only with food. He said there would be no draught beer and no pitchers.

He also told the board that the Norfolk County Commissioners, owners of the property, had spoken of putting in food vending machines if the license was denied.

Kerstein said the vending machines would attract many more youngsters who would hang around the premises.

James Kelly, 63 Vershire St., adjacent to the golf course, said that the MDC golf course at Ponkapoag is operated without having alcoholic beverages and appears to be quite successful. He compared it with the George Robert White course club house in Hyde Park which, he said, has "a barroom atmosphere".

The license was denied with board members, McDonald and Dr. Samuel Solomon, health commissioner, voting against the request. City Clerk John Gillis, board chairman, voted in favor. Fire Chief Edward Barry and Police Chief Francis X. Finn were absent.

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

Katherine Furbish, from all appearances, was the typical Victorian proper lady. But she had one obsession - botany. She was a single woman but left behind her over 5,000 heirs in the form of collections of wildflowers, mushrooms, ferns, and other flora from her home state of Maine, all collected, pressed and painted, and catalogued. She donated her collections to various colleges, especially Harvard and Bowdoin, and the Portland Society of Natural History. The gifts were accepted graciously but with little excitement. It was only in 1976 that the true value of these collections became evident, when it was discovered that many of the flora in her collections are now extinct.

If you are presently single but soon to join the ranks of the married women keep in mind that NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 has available a bridal consulting service. We invite the prospective bride to come in and chat with us where we will be happy to give her guidance in selecting the flowers to suit her personal taste and budget requirements. "For the Creative in Floral Designing". Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. Open: Mon. - Sat. 8 - 6, evenings by appointment.

Presenting the award at the fourth annual Awards Banquet, Mrs. Jane Ford, outgoing chairman, cited the untiring efforts of Sheriff Clifford Marshall, Dist. Atty. Kim Becomes A Celebrity

Kim Dzung Vo, the Vietnamese girl who gave a touching tribute to America as class speaker at the Quincy High School commencement has become a nation-wide celebrity.

A story written by Quincy Sun staffer Tom Henshaw for the Associated Press was sent around the country.

Since then, copies of the article with an AP photo showing Kim standing in front of an American flag as she gave her address have been clipped from various newspapers and sent to her.

The newspaper articles have come from as far away as Honolulu and Eugene, Ore. Someone else sent her a commemorative scarf from Wisconsin. And there was also a sweatshirt--much too big for her--with a message urging people to jog.

There was also an invitation for her to go on Mutual Radio but that was politely turned down.

Her family is accepting her new found fame rather cautiously.

Because, naturally, there's always some nutcakes out there like the one who sent a hate letter full of racist invective. A form hate letter, yet.

Kim is working this summer and will attend Eastern Nazarene College in the fall.

She's quite a girl. Her family came to Quincy only two and a half years ago, sponsored by Bethany Congregational Church. She was unable to speak a word of English. Two weeks ago, she graduated with high honors, a member of the National Honor Society. And addressed her classmates in English, stumbling over only a word or two.

Her "adopted" American "grandmother", Miss Muriel Goudey, former head of the English department at QHS, no doubt helped her master English in that short time.

Sometimes we all blow off steam at Uncle Sam especially when things go wrong and taxes go up. Maybe at those times we should think of Kim and her words: "I go to sleep at night with no fear from bombs, no fear from communist invasion, no need to escape."

HERE'S ONE: One of the highlights of the recent St. Anthony's Fiesta at St. John's Church was the drawing for a 1978 Chevette. There were some 9,000 chance tickets in the barrel.

Mrs. Shirley Tobin, wife of the Mayor, was asked by Fr. William McCarthy, pastor, to draw the name of the lucky winner. She reached in and pulled out the ticket. She looked at the name--stared at it--and quickly discarded it.

The name on the ticket: Brian Tobin, her 14-year-old son!

She then drew another ticket and the car went to Arlene Noonan, whose husband John, is the editor of the St. John's church newspaper.

"I just had to disqualify Brian," said Shirley. "Can you believe I could pick his name out of 9,000!

The odds were --- 9,000 to 1.

LT. FRANK MULLEN, director of the Quincy Police Academy for the past six years will move to the post of police prosecutor July 1. He will be succeeded by Sgt. Donald Riley who has been at Quincy District Court for the past two and a half years.

Mullen has been associated with the academy since it was founded 11 years ago. Married and the father of three children, he is a graduate of Northeastern University and is now a candidate at NU for a master's degree in criminal justice.

Riley attended Stonehill College and graduated from Suffolk University and Suffolk Law School. He passed the bar in 1969. He is married and the father of five children.

SPEAKING of the Congressional race, candidate Rep. 2,500 March In Koch Club Flag Day Parade

Cool evening breezes failed to curtail the enthusiasm of hundreds of boys and girls participating in the 27th annual Flag Day parade in Quincy, sponsored by the Koch Club.

An estimated 2,500 -- including musical units -- participated in the parade.

Each of the young marchers carried an American flag in the parade, momento of the occasion for them to keep.

The parade and observance also climaxed a series of events commemorating the 30th anniversary of the Koch Club as a community service organization in Quincy.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Koch, escorted by four flag-decorated police motorcycles, led the line of march from the Vocational Technical School on Coddington St. to Veterans Memorial stadium.

The Kochs were accompanied by three representatives of the girls' softball league, each carrying a wreath. The parade paused at United First Parish Church where the crypts of the second and sixth presidents, John and John Quincy Adams, were decorated with the floral pieces.

At the John F. Kennedy Health Center, the leadoff unit stopped to place a wreath at the commemorative plaque honoring the 35th president, who is the only honorary member of the Koch Club.

Music for the hundreds of marching boys and girls was provided by the Quincy High School band, the Renagades Senior Drum and Bugle Corps, the Renegade Drifters and the Braintree Braves Drum and Bugle Corps.

To commemorate the 203rd birthday of the military, a U.S. Navy color guard and vehicle was provided followed by a U.S. Air Force vehicle and equipment of the Massachusetts National Guard 126th Signal Battalion.

The Koch Club boys' baseball and girls' softball leagues were joined in the line of march by St. Ann's baseball leagues, the Camp Fire Girls, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Brownies and the Twin Twirlers Baton Team.

One of the eye-catching units was the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office marching contingent of deputy sheriffs led by Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall while a second group was the Quincy High School Aerospace R.O.T.C. color guard and team led off by the Koch Club's North Quincy District.

At the stadium flag-raising excercises, Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue, gave the opening prayer and the George F. Bryan VFW Post color guard and marching unit raised the flag for the evening program.

The Bryan Post has participated in the program for the past 25 years and the flag they raised was presented to the Koch Club by Cong. James A. Burke in the bicentennial year of 1976, the 25th anniversary of the Koch Club Flag Day parade. The flag was flown over the nation's capital on June 4, 1976.

Mayor and State Sen. Arthur H. Tobin addressed the gathering while other city officials were introduced by Richard J. Koch Jr., master of ceremonies.

Rev. John D. Banks, pastor of Bethany Congregational Church, and Rev. Robert J. Sullivan, associate of Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, also delivered prayers during the evening's program.

The Koch Club 1978 scholarship winners were present and received their awards and the six essay and poster contest winners of the Quincy City Club Blizzard of '78 theme were recognized and presented with U.S. savings bonds.

READER SPEAKS OUT

A Tribute To Robert Faxon

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In the passing of Robert M. Faxon, Quincy has lost a distinguished son of a distinguished family whose many benefactions to the city will long be remembered.

Grandson of the late Henry H. Faxon and son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Faxon "Bob" as he was known by his many friends carried on the honor, respect, and high ideals of the family quietly and unobtrusively in his busy life within the community. Born in Quincy, although a resident of Milton during the past several years, he never lost interest in the growth and progress of his native city nor in its citizens whom he held in high esteem. Never have I ever heard other than the kindest and most respectful words spoken about Robert M. Faxon by those with whom he came in contact.

His seriousness of purpose, combined with a keen sense of humor, reflected a unique personality it would indeed be difficult to duplicate. Modest and unassuming, Bob Faxon earned and deserved the respect and admiration of his business, personal, and civic associates.

The example he set should, and I am sure will, serve as an inspiration to the younger generation as well as to those of us who were privileged to know him. A fine Christian Gentleman has passed into eternal rest.

To Mrs. Faxon and the members of his family I extend my sincere and deep sympathy in the great loss they have sustained. May they be comforted by the loving thoughts of their many friends.

Do We Have To Wait Until Someone Else Drowns Or Is Killed?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In your recent issue on the front page you described the problems that Badgers Quarry causes to business men and residents of West Quincy.

Year after year we are faced with extreme degrees of vandalism, thefts, and illegal parking. Beer cans and other assorted litter make our streets look like an extension of the city dump.

From my observation I would say that 99% of the youths using the quarry are under age eighteen.

For years no positive action is ever taken. There have been some meetings, some promises, some referals to the mayor.

Do we have to wait til someone else drowns or is killed? Or do we have to wait till several people drown or are killed?

Our hands are tied. We are taxpayers, we pay our toll and receive nothing in return.

Please give us some help!

A 'Thank You' From Council Of Churches

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Just a short note to say "Thank You" for your help in "spreading the news" about our Annual Men's Prayer Breakfast. The publicity that you give our breakfast each year helps in no small manner to make it the success that it is.

Fr. McCarthy, D'Olimpio Get QHA Appointments

against it.

"It puts some restraints on the Mayor's right to make an appointment as he sees fit," said McCauley. "How the Mayor does it is his business."

Besides, he added, "once the Mayor makes an appointment and submits it to the Council the resolve before us becomes meaningless. The time for a screening has gone by."

Harold failed to get a motion for action on his resolve.

Miller, who attended the committee hearing without speaking and left before the vote was taken, noted in his letter the problems the Council had last year with screened appointments to the Housing Authority.

The Council, after several months of debate, turned down two appointees of Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia -- Ellen Nieters and Frank Myett -- before settling on the Rev. William Sharkey.

When the furor was over, said Miller, "it appeared to all concerned parties that the City Council was sincerely committed to the concept of citizen involvement regarding appointments to the QHA."

It was with "a sense of betrayal," he said, that the tenants watched the Council "attempt to approve two appointments to the QHA within one hour of having learned the names of the candidates on June 13."

The Mayor, he said, "by ignoring the screening process and disallowing even minimum input by residents, has effectively alienated the latter from their inherent right to participate in a representative form of government."

Councillor Kelly said he made efforts over the weekend to get the tenants together with Fr. McCarthy to answer any questions they might have but "Mr. Miller felt it was not formal enough for him."

The votes for both D'Olimpio and Fr. McCarthy went through by 9-0 margins.

D'Olimpio, who is president of the Building and Construction Trades Council of Quincy, was reappointed to a second term as the labor representatives on the Housing Authority.

Fr. McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church, succeeds Fr. Sharkey, who resigned effective June 1 after notifying the Mayor that he was leaving as associate pastor of St. Ann's Church, Wollaston.

Fr. McCarthy, a native of Haverhill who was ordained to the priesthood by the late Richard Cardinal Cushing in 1952, was assigned to St. John's Church on Feb. 1, 1977.

He is also chaplain of the Quincy Fire Department.

He came to Quincy from St. Gregory's Parish in Dorchester, where he served for 14 years. One of his duties there was attending to the spiritual and physical needs of the elderly and low income housing tenants.

Prior to that, he was at St. Rose Church in Chelsea, where he founded the St. Rose PTA, organized the CYO, and served as chaplain of the Chelsea Fire and Police Departments.

Special Committee To Study Hospital's Financial Problems

$2.5 million revenue deficit and close to an $800,000 appropriation deficit at the hospital.

"That's a $3.3 million deficit and every $277,000 is a dollar on the tax rate.

"So we just can't sit back and have the hospital cause this type of deficit every year without addressing ourselves to the problem."

"If we can identify the problems," he added, "and put the hospital in good shape, there wouldn't be any need to sell it.

"The only time you talk about turning it over to a non-profit organization is if it is going to be a continued burden on the taxpayers."

Tobin said he had a Quincy businessman in mind, one with "financial expertise," to chair the blue ribbon committee. He declined to say who.

Harold's resolve asked establishment of a committee composed of the members of the Council's Health and Hospital Committee plus three members chosen by the Mayor and three by the hospital's board of managers.

"It seems every time the hospital comes down here it's for lack of money," he said. "It's reached the point where the city should consider if it should be in the hospital business.

"I'm not pleased to always have to be passing bond issues and trying to juggle the books of the hospital from year to year. We finally have to take some action."

Councillors James A. Sheets and John J. Lydon Jr. warned their fellow councillors of the dangers of loose talk about selling the hospital.

"It is important," said Sheets, "that the people of the city understand that we are not talking about selling the hospital and leaving our citizens, at least in their minds, without a place to go for care."

Council President John J. Quinn tabled Harold's resolve for furthur discussion.

S.S. Home Care Services Seeking Volunteers

South Shore Home Care Services, a non-profit agency providing services to older people on the South Shore, is seeking volunteers for its Title VII Nutrition Project in Quincy.

The program provides hot lunches for senior citizens five days a week at two Quincy locations: the Sawyer Towers Elderly Housing Project, 95 Martensen St. and Atlantic United Methodist Church, East Squantum St.

Ron Joseph, project director, said volunteers are needed to help out with set-up, serving, clean-up and transportation.

"We also need people to help out in our home-delivered meals program," he said. "We feel that serving as a volunteer in our program can be a very rewarding experience. It provides the personal satisfaction of helping older people maximize their independence in the community. Working with the elderly also helps to break down stereotypes and to stimulate a positive view of the aging process."

$72,000 And Some Confusion

June 22-28
1938
40 Years Ago This Week

An announcement by State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley that the federal government had allotted $72,000 to Quincy for construction of a Central Fire Station caused some confusion in the city.

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin said he had submitted the project for a federal grant months ago but was informed that it had no chance of being approved by the Public Works Administration [PWA].

As a result, he said, the city appropriated $160,000 to build the station, which was already under construction on Quincy Ave. near Elm St.

Burgin said he hoped the "pump-priming" money could be used for another project, like a much-needed new nurses home near the City Hospital.

COURT FINDINGS PROTESTED

Quincy Police Chief John J. Avery was named by Registrar Frank A. Goodwin as one of the law enforcement officials who were protesting findings by Judge Gertrude R. Halloran in motor vehicle cases.

"Complaints have been coming to my office to the effect that it is impossible to get a conviction before Mrs. Justice Halloran, no matter how convincing the evidence is," said Goodwin.

The registrar suspended the licenses of eight drivers who had been acquitted by the Quincy District Court judge of several improper driving charges.

"I call them as I see them," was Justice Halloran's response.

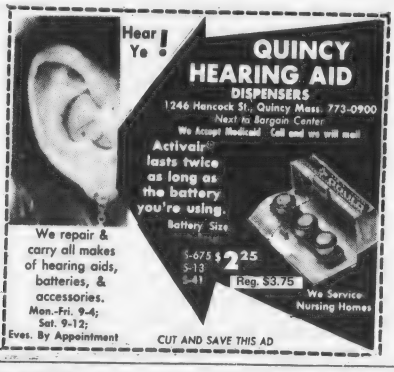
Boys Find Tiny Skull In Hancock Cemetery

At City Hall they marked it "Exhibit A" and on the stationery of the City Solicitor duly noted that it had been found in the Hancock St. Cemetery at 4:29 p.m., June 14.

The find is described as a "small skull" with several holes in it.

James Johnson, 11, 200 Taffrail Rd., and Mark J. Cohen, 12, 212 Taffrail Rd., Germantown, brought their discovery to the city fathers, perhaps because it was found on city property.



The two boys were playing hide-and-go-seek among the tombstones when Mark got tired and decided to sit down on one of the stone benches. Under his feet he discovered the skull.

The boys are going to seek the aid of the Trailside Museum to further identify the skull, which still has two teeth protruding the jaw bone.

Creamery Liquor License Suspended For A Week

By PETER BARNICLE

The liquor license of South Shore Creamery, 657-659 Southern Artery, Quincy, was suspended for one week by the Quincy Licensing board Tuesday following a hearing on charges that two six-packs of beer had been sold to a minor.

Police Sgt. Daniel Lyons told the board he had visited the store June 8 with Det. John Salamone to return some evidence (three bottle of liquor) which had been held as part of a larceny from the store.

He said that on leaving the store he and Salamone noticed four youths in a car, three boys and a girl. One of the youths, described as red-haired and with his arm in a cast, went to the store and returned to the car with a package of cookies.

Lyons said the police moved away from the store, but returned to find the same youth coming out with a package which turned out to be the two six-packs.

Barry Freeman, the clerk on duty, admitted to Lyons and his partner, that he had sold the beer to the boy. He said that the previous week the boy had shown him a Massachusetts automobile license with his photograph on it. He said he was on the telephone when the sale was made and he did not question the boy.

Police said the boy admitted he was 15 and had no identification when he was questioned. According to police the boy denied he had been in the store the week before or that he had the motor vehicle license.

Building Inspector Allan McDonald said it was strange to him that the boy bought only cookies the first time he went into the store and then bought beer when he thought the police had left.

"I'd also like to see that license. I'd like to know where he got it," McDonald said, but the question went unanswered.

Board chairman John Gillis told Daniel P. Clifford, manager of the store, and Freeman: "I can't buy this. I think you made a big mistake. You shouldn't have made the sale. You didn't show any discretion whatsoever."

The board took into consideration that it was a first offense for the creamery in imposing the week suspension. It also told the manager the store would be on probation for six months.

The board did inform Clifford that the food portion of the store could remain open during the suspension.

Youth Pinned In Elevator Rescued By Firefighters

An 18-year-old Everett youth was pinned for more than half an hour between a freight elevator and a fork lift Monday at Universal Fixture Manufacturing Co., 2 Weston Ave., Wollaston.

David Waldman of 34 Union St., Everett, was extricated by the Quincy Fire Department rescue squad which was able to pull up cables at the top of the shaft in the three-story building to free the youth.

Waldman was taken to Quincy City Hospital suffering multiple fractures of the right foot and ankle. The hospital reported he was in good condition after undergoing surgery.

Fire Lt. Edward O'Toole, head of the rescue squad, said Waldman was in shock and intense pain during his ordeal. A medical unit from Quincy City Hospital administered oxygen and morphine while firefighters struggled to free him.

According to police Waldman was using a hand-drawn fork lift which apparently overturned in a rear elevator as he was moving a pallet of boxes from the basement to the first floor.

Quincy Deputy Fire Chief William J. Barron said the elevator had been inspected and was working properly, but was "very old." There was no explanation as to how the fork-lift fell over.

Cancer Crusade Reaches $19,286 Mark

Richard J. Koch, general chairman of the Quincy Cancer Crusade, announces a total of $19,286.27 has been received toward the $25,953 goal established, or approximately 75 per cent.

The various categories include: $2,832.57 in special gifts, $7,083.70 in memorials, $390 from independent business and $25 from clubs and organizations.

The residential house to house crusade under the direction of City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi has been the most successful of the drive with the amount reaching the goal of $8,955.

The drive is scheduled for completion by June 30, and all volunteers who have not made returns are urged to send or mail kits to the main branch of the Hancock Bank, 1495 Hancock St., Quincy.

Although the residential drive has reached the goal established, 40 per cent of the kits mailed to the volunteers have not been returned, said Koch.

Thirty-six per cent of the totals received from the Cancer Crusade are used for research while 18 per cent is for public education, 17 per cent for patient services, 10 per cent for professional education and 7 per cent community service.

Only 4 per cent of the total received is used for management and 8 per cent for fund raising.

The American Cancer Society does not receive money from the United Fund nor is it government funded. The society depends upon voluntary gifts to support the cancer control program.

Sabina Kavanagh Candidate For Congress

Miss Kavanagh, who twice lost bids for the Quincy City Council as Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, is chairwoman of the Quincy Council on Aging and a director of Survival of Quincy and Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore. She is running for Congress under her maiden name.

New Drains To Ease Problems In Strand Area

The city is about to take the first step in the long process of solving drainage problems in the Strand area of Wollaston Beach.

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath said the DPW has agreed to spend some $15,000 out of a bond issue to replace two 24-inch drains with one 36-inch drain in the Strand, Watkins St. and Cleaves St. section.

"The city engineer suspects that the 24 inch drains are not working properly," said McGrath. "They have been there since 1928 and perhaps they have collapsed or filled with silt.

"It's not going to solve everyone's problems down there but if we don't do this we aren't going to be able to see where else we have drainage problems."

Hopefully, said McGrath, the work will be completed in two months.

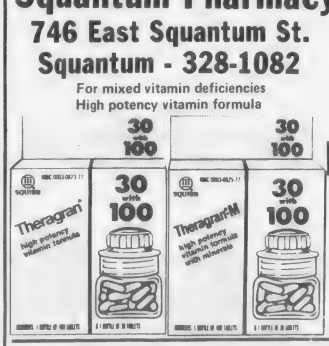
Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin



Often, fashion and social trends go together. For instance, in the 1920's, American women got the vote and the first birth control clinics were opened. The result was a sense of glitter and high spirits among women that extended to the fashion world. Crystal headbands and necklaces abounded to match crystal shoulder straps on evening gowns. The other major fashion influence of the time was the discovery of King Tutankhamun's tomb which brought the Egyptian influence into fashion and jewelry.

With the current visit of Tutankhamun's treasures to the United States the Egyptian influence is again being seen in jewelry and other fashions. Whether you like this or other styles you're sure to find exactly what you want by coming to us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490. We have a fine clock repairing service handled by our expert craftsman, who considers every job a "labor of love". Hours: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Preventing Accidental Blindness

About 5 percent of all blindness is due to accidents. Injuries from B-B guns, slingshots and bows and arrows cause 17 percent of those. Sharp objects alone account for 20 percent; blows, almost 40 percent; and falls, 20 percent. Foreign objects, such as cinders, metal and wood cause about 7 percent.

When buying eyeglasses, I strongly suggest safety lenses. They protect against virtually all kinds of eye injuries and cost only slightly more than ordinary lenses.

Some advice concerning eye injuries ... In case of a blow to the eye, apply cold packs, using clean cloths and tap water.

If a chemical is spilled into the eye, douse it immediately with water - and only water.

Consider the need for medical attention in all cases of eye injury, especially if an object, however tiny, has penetrated the cornea.

Quincy Tennis Club In 91st Season

The Quincy Tennis Club has begun its 91st. season and many events are planned for the summer.

Harold Fain was recently elected president. Philip Maloney, vice president; Shirley Laing, secretary, and Rachel White, treasurer.

The Board of Governors is made up of Fain, Maloney, Laing, White, Ann Braverman, Barbara Maher, Daniel McElaney, Charles Peix and Mildred Rickson. Andrew Nelson, a long-time club member, is serving as club manager, assisted by his son, Andy.

Men's play has already started in the three spring leagues in which the club participates. Peix is captain of the Quincy team which will play in the Bay State League this summer.

Ruth Lenehan is scheduling dates for the ladies' home and away social-competitive matches. The ladies will host Weymouth today (Thursday) and next Wednesday will play at Hingham.

Informal round robins will continue on Tuesdays at 9:30 when match conflicts do not occur.

Barbara Mahar is teaching and directing junior beginners who meet each Monday through the end of August from 3:15 to 4:15 until school closes and from 1 to 3 for the remainder of the summer.

Juniors who are looking for more advanced and tournament play will meet Wednesday, July 3, at 1 o'clock with Andy Nelson and Peix. Rain date is July 6. There will be a $5 registration fee for this program.

Maloney is in charge of club tournaments this summer, with the usual events being held.

Men's and women's lobster tournaments were drawn last week and the schedule will be posted.

QHS Girls Tennis Team Completes Best Season

The Quincy High girls' tennis team enjoyed its best season this spring, winning six league matches and two pre-season scrimmages, the greatest number of wins ever posted.

"Two of our league wins were over our arch-rival, North Quincy," Coach Shirley Laing said. "Twenty-five girls played, which shows a growing interest in a sport which until very recently at Quincy High was offered 'in name only'."

The First Ladies' co-captains were Susan Coleman, a senior playing for her third year, and Frances Maloney, a junior, playing for her second year.

"Special praise should go to Frances, who played in every one of the three scrimmages and 16 league contests, winning 14 times," Mrs. Laing said. "This was the finest record of attendance and accomplishment on the team and she represented Quincy in the state tournament."

The other seniors were Theresa Anderson, Elizabeth Campbell, Susan Chiocchio, Maryann Cagiano, Ann Fitzpatrick, Susan Kerman, Carol Kirshnit, Beth Rice and Mary Ritchie.

With so many girls graduating, next year's team will rely on Co-Capt. Maloney; the only other junior, Linda Gale, and an eager, interested group of sophomores led by Janet Simes, an excellent singles player who saw action in all but two varsity contests this season.

S.S. Board Honor

Stedman Beckwith 'Realtor Of Year'

Stedman C. Beckwith, owner-operator of Beckwith Realtors, 24 Adams St., Quincy Center, has been named "Realtor of the Year" by the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors.

The award was presented by Edward Flavin, president of the board, at the annual dinner held recently at the Viking Club, Braintree. Beckwith was honored for his contribution and outstanding service to the local, state and national association of real estate brokers.

The recipient is a past president of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors, and has served as regional vice president of the Massachusetts Association of Real Estate Brokers.

In making the presentation Flavin noted Beckwith "has served in every elective office and, at one time or another, on every committee of the board."

"In our community he has taken active part in several charitable fund raising activities and blood drives," Flavin said. "He has participated in sailing programs for area young people and in health programs for the elderly.

"Beckwith Realtors, which 'Sted' founded, is one of the first offices in the area to specialize exclusively in commercial and industrial real estate. In commercial brokerage he has put together shopping centers, housing for the elderly, and luxury apartments," Flavin said.

The board president also noted that Beckwith is the first realtor in the board's history to receive the "Realtor of the Year" award twice.

Conway Sees Proposition 13 Clearcut Taxpayers Victory

Realtor Jack Conway views California's Proposition 13 as "the first resounding gunshot in a battle still to be waged by taxpayers in Massachusetts this year to roll back taxes and limit government spending."

Conway, who operates 23 real estate offices in the Bay State, is chairman of the Committee for Guaranteed Property Tax Relief which is pushing a referendum to cap state and local taxes at 18 per cent of total personal income.

"This clearcut victory by the taxpayers of California against an unresponsive state government has given added impetus to our own efforts to put a lid on property taxes and government spending," he said.

Conway's committee started a five-week drive June 14 aimed at getting 64,000 signatures -- 1,600 in each of the state's 40 senatorial districts -- by July 19 to get the non-binding referendum on the November ballot.

Motivations For Buying

Strong forces are keeping the single home market very much alive despite the increasing price trend over the past several years. A probe of the motivations behind current sales has found that buyers are convinced that home ownership is worth the financial sacrifice for environmental reasons. A better place for their children to live and the farther from the city the better.

A second powerful influence is inflation. Buyers are convinced that the housing inventory is too short to see any significant over supply or reduction in value in their lifetime.

Another influence, not to be ignored, is retirement. In many cases, home ownership offers the only hope to enter retirement in a condition other than poverty. Since Social Security was designed as a supplement and not sufficient to live on, a free and clear home, or the investment potential of home equity, provides a solid base for retirement.

Howard Johnson Passes $500 Million Mark

For the first time in the company's history sales and revenues of the Howard Johnson Company passed the $500 million mark in 1977. Howard Johnson, chairman of the board and president, told the Boston stockholders in their annual meeting held recently at the Howard Johnson motor lodge, Braintree.

During 1977, sales and revenue were $501 million, an increase of 10 percent over 1976 sales of $457 million. Net income exceeded $30 million, an increase of five percent over the 1976 figure of $28.7 million. Net income per share was $1.37 compared with $1.31 in the previous year.

Johnson recalled that the company was started by his father (in Quincy) 52 years ago with $500 in borrowed capital. He said the company had reached $100 million in sales before going public in 1961.

Petition Drive Launched At Airplane Noise

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy is planning to attack airplane noise on a new front starting this weekend.

Petitions will be circulated at the Fourth of July field days and barbeques protesting the ear-shattering new flight patterns at Logan International Airport.

Reps Michael W. Morrissey and James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] and City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi will be seeking at least 20,000 signatures of protestors to drop on Massport.

"We seem to be getting frustrated as far as avenues of pursuit are concerned," said Morrissey.

"The Mayor has initiated legal action but we can't do anything until they come up with a definition of temporary.

"Sen. Tobin has a resolve in the Senate for a legislative investigation.

"We have met with the Massport people on two occasions with nothing really to show for it."

Morrissey suggested that if the petitions do not work perhaps a more active protest, like picketing the air carriers at Logan Airport, may be in the works.

Meanwhile, Mayor-Senator Tobin said that Gov. Dukakis has arranged a meeting between Tobin and Massport Director

Beautification Plans For Quincy Sq.

Plans are afoot to beautify Hancock St. in the heart of downtown Quincy between the Quincy Cooperative Bank and the South Shore Bank.

Mayor Tobin said he has asked Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti and Planning Director Walter J. Hannon to come up with several beautification plans.

"I'm trying to prepare for the opening of the City Hall addition next May or June," he said.

Tobin said no changes in the traffic pattern are being planned "but we may be discussing pushing the traffic over a little."

"We have to assure ourselves of adequate parking when the scattered departments move into the addition," he said. "Maybe we'll go back to angle parking on Hancock St."

Tobin said he has asked Ricciuti and Hannon to consult with the Quincy Historical Society to tie the beautification project in with City Hall and First Parish Church.

They are also to study the feasibility of an overhead traffic

State Treasurer Robert Crane announced this week Quincy's share in lottery revenues for the first six months of 1978 will be $375,852.62.

That's an increase of $15,246.78 over the last six months of 1977 and a boost of $94,451.07 over the first six months of last year.

Statewide, Crane said his department divvied up $24,049,062 among the state's 351 cities and towns.

The largest amount, $4,225,493.52, went to Boston and the smallest went to the little Franklin County town of Rowe – $30.04, which hardly pays the postage to mail the check.

$1.8 Million Federal Grant

Quincy has been awarded a $1,877,000 federal grant to fund public works, rehabilitation, elderly services and weatherization programs, announces Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton].

Such community development block grants are part of a Department of Housing and Urban Development [HUD] program to help cities provide decent housing, living environment and economic opportunities.

CITATIONS ARE PRESENTED to Quincy Public School personnel retiring from service this year. The presentations were made at luncheon in Heritage Room, at the support services center, Brooks Ave., South Quincy, attended by members of the School Committee, administrators and faculties from throughout the city. School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon and School Committeeman Christopher F. Kennedy presented the citations. From left are Rena MacBride, North Quincy High School; Frieda Dirks, coordinator of special education; Helen Morse, Pollard School; Dr. Creedon, Committeeman Kennedy; Alice McLaughlin, North Quincy High; Marion O'Leary, Quincy School, and Col. In Wake Of New Ordinance

Cumberland Farms Withdraws Gas-Food License Requests

By PETER BARNICLE

Cumberland Farms Tuesday withdrew its requests for licenses to operate combined gasoline stations and retail food outlets at 470 Sea St., Adams Shore and 604-614 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Atty. Neil Kerstein, appearing for the food chain, asked the License Board for leave to withdraw the request "without prejudice."

Board Chairman John Gillis noted the City Council has recently passed an ordinance prohibiting the sale of dairy or other food products where gasoline or petroleum products are sold.

Cumberland Farms has the option of appealing to the courts for a ruling as to the constitutionality of the ordinance. Atty. Kerstein gave no indication of the company's plans.

Despite the withdrawal of the request several neighbors near the Sea St. property told the board that conditions at the service station warrant an investigation. They complained of harassment.

Building Inspector Allan McDonald, a member of the board, called for an investigation of conditions and said that if the probe discloses harassment or violations of licensing regulations the board could revoke the gasoline storage license.

City Councillor Stephen McGrath asked the board to look into the status of the service station at Hancock and Willet Sts., which is owned by Cumberland Farms, but has been closed for some time. He said the law requires the pumps to be dismantled within six months and the time limit has passed.

The matter was referred to Fire Chief Edward Barry.

GYM FLOOR -- Workmen grade wet cement that will form the floor of the gymnasium in the North Quincy High School addition.

INSPECTION -- Members of the Parents' Advisory Committee examine the ceiling of the social studies area in the North Quincy High School addition under escort by Frank Leporini of the School Department. Left to right, Mrs. Mary Dyer, Mrs. Helen Carroll, Mrs. Marion King, Leporini, Mrs. Mary Ann Mahony and Mrs. Ginny McAvoy.

A Big Improvement

Parents Advisory Committee Likes Progress At NQHS Project

Members of the Parents' Advisory Committee toured the unfinished North Quincy High School addition last week and said that they were pleased with what they saw.

"It's a big improvement," said Mrs. Ginny McAvoy, who has visited the project a dozen times since it was started more than a year ago.

"We never used to see this many men on the job before."

"It's great to see them doing what they should be doing," said Mrs. Mary Ann Mahony, the chairman of the committee.

"The parents can be reassured when the students come back from the summer.

"I guess all the ups and downs and meetings we went through were worth it."

Others in the party, escorted by Frank Leporini, the School Department's watch dog on the project, included Mrs. Marion King, Mrs. Mary Dyer, and Mrs. Helen Carroll.

Leporini said work is on schedule, according to the revised timetable.

Students will remain in the old building until December, he said, and be ready to move into the addition about Feb. 12.

Some delay has been caused by a strike of lathers that began a couple of weeks ago and has held up plaster work on the foyer and lobby, he said.

As the members of the committee toured the building, the final coating was being applied to the roof.

"It should make it 100 per cent tight," said Leporini.

Last Thursday, wreckers began dismantling the chimney, long a landmark behind the old building.

Some of the features of the addition that were noted by the committee members included:

- Built in hairdryers in the boys' locker room.
- A closed circuit radio station that is wired to broadcast through the rooms in the Social Studies area.
- Walk in freezers in the first floor kitchen.
- A "radial server", much like a baggage dispenser in an airport, to pass food between the kitchen and the cafeteria.

And, as Mrs. Mahony carefully noted for the benefit of one concerned mother, there will be doors installed on the girls' lavatories.

Report Cards To Be Mailed

The fourth quarter report cards for students in Quincy Junior and Senior high schools are to be mailed to the homes, announces Arthur Woodward, Director of Secondary Education.

The report cards should arrive by the last of June or first of July, he said.

Today's Women

Carol Mahoney Elected Chairman

Mayor's Commission Elects Officers, Cites Accomplishments

Election of officers highlighted the final meeting of the season for the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women.

Carol Mahoney was elected chairman, Deborah Ormon, co-chairman, Mary Vallier, correspondent, and Susan Buckley, recorder.

A report outlining the year's activities and accomplishments of the Commission, which works to further the role of women in the community, was given by Christine Morrison, chairman, and will be presented to Mayor Arthur Tobin and the City Council.

Programs cited in the report were:

- Project WAGE, which is designed to identify employment opportunities for women, facilitate placement of women in non-traditional jobs, and expand job possibilities for women.
- Talent Bank, which works to increase the role of women in the life of the City.
- D.O.V.E. [Domestic Violence Ended], a group consisting of representatives from the District Attorney's Office, Quincy Police Department, Quincy Community Action Agency, clergy and citizens as well as Commission members, which provides support and services, such as a hot line, for victims of domestic violence.
- Woman-to-Woman-Day, held in April, featured eight workshops on health, life styles, the ERA, battered women, employment, business, education and alcohol.

Mrs. Morrison also noted that the booklet, "Where Do I Turn?", which provides a directory to social services available to women on the South Shore, has been updated and is presently being printed.

Activities planned for the coming year include continued efforts to establish a shelter and supportive services for battered women; a symposium on women's issues; continuation of efforts to expand employment opportunities for women and greater use of the Talent Bank.

Project WAGE Recruiting Women For Welding Jobs

Project WAGE is recruiting women for a training program in welding.

Applicants should be in good health, be capable of hard work [often outdoors], have no fear of heights or small spaces, and be available to work any of three shifts.

The training is on-the-job, full-time, paid and runs for approximately eight weeks.

Welding is the most commonly used method of permanently joining two pieces of metal by fusing or bonding together. It is generally cheaper than other methods of joining parts and thus it is being used increasingly in the manufacturing and construction industries.

According to the Occupational Outlook Handbook, employment in this field is expected to increase faster than the average for all other occupations through the 1980's. Although now considered somewhat of a non-traditional job for women, many may remember stories of "Rosie-the-Riveter" and her counterparts who were the mainstay of the war effort during World War II. Women demonstrated then, as they are now, that they are fully capable of, and interested in, working in the skilled trades.

"This is a particularly good opportunity for women to get training in a skilled trade," said Patricia McSweeney, vocational counselor for Project WAGE who has been working closely with a local employer to develop the program.

Women who believe they are qualified and are interested in participating in a training program in welding, are asked to contact Project WAGE at 479-0734.

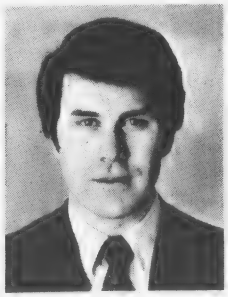
PAT McCARTHY WANTS TO KEEP THE AMERICAN DREAM WITHIN REACH



A home. A family. Decent education for your children, and a chance to retire with dignity and security.

At today's prices, these necessities are out of the reach of many middle income Americans.

Tomorrow the American Dream may become an impossible dream for all but the very rich.

Pat McCarthy wants Congress to stand up for, and protect, the interests of the average family. Pat wants tax breaks for first-time home buyers, and tax credits for money spent on tuition. He wants guarantees that when social security benefits increase, other senior citizen benefits won't decrease.

"The challenge of the 1980's is to keep alive the American Dream of bettering ourselves, and providing a better life for our children."

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

Humidity is the measure of the amount of moisture in the air. The higher the humidity, the less water will be lost by a plant. You can raise the humidity level of a room in your house by using a humidifier or by making a humidifier yourself. To do the latter, fill a deep pan with rock, aquarium gravel, or any non-organic large granulated material and cover it with water. Set your plants on the rocks. The rocks surface area allows for greater evaporation of water and thus raises the humidity around the plant.

All of our flowers at NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 are maintained in humidity and temperature controlled cases so we can assure you of the finest quality. We invite you to come in and browse around through our lovely shop displays whether or not you plan on becoming a customer immediately. BankAmericard and Master Charge honored. "For the Creative and Unusual in Floral Designing" Hours: Mon. - Sat. 8-6, evenings by appointment.

HELPFUL HINT

With homemade humidifiers, make sure the plant rests on the rocks not in the water or you could drown your plant from seepage through the clay or drainage hole.

38 Others Win Sox Tickets In QCBPA Promotion

David Lubarsky Wins $400 Shopping Spree, Pair Red Sox Tickets

David Lubarsky of 363 Water St., South Quincy, was a double-winner in the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association "Shopping Spree" promotion.

Lubarsky's coupon, deposited at Jason's Luggage and Music, 1514 Hancock St., was drawn for a pair of tickets to the Red Sox-Minnesota double-header, July 16. Thirty-eight other downtown Quincy shoppers also received a pair of tickets each for the game.

When the drawing for the grand prize was held Lubarsky's luck held and his coupon was drawn. The top prize is a shopping spree at Capitol Market, Parkingway. The ticket holder will be given three minutes to pick up as much food as possible - up to $400 - in a three minute period.

The baseball tickets for the red-hot Red Sox were more than welcome by Lubarsky, a lifelong resident of Quincy and a life-long baseball fan.

"That should keep me going for a few days," he exclaimed when informed he had won the shopping spree prize.

Lubarsky, who retired last year after 40 years with the advertising department of L. Grossman and Sons, Braintree, has always been interested in sports. He played baseball in his younger days and coached basketball on the Sunday school level.

Friends know him as a "walking encyclopedia of sports" with his ready recall of sports events and scores over the years.

Thirty-nine Quincy Center merchants, businesses and banks participated in the three day sales promotion June 15-16-17. Special sales were held to attract customers to the area.

The chief's remarks came during a hearing on a complaint concerning loud talk and other noise in the vicinity of the 536 Bar and Grille, 532-536 Washington St.

Paul G. Ricciarelli, manager of the bar, said he could not be held accountable for conditions outside the premises. Members of the board were told there have been no complaints concerning the conduct of the bar, but residents were disturbed by noise, including motorcycles late at night.

Guest At Reception

Fr. William Walsh Welcomed As Hospital Catholic Chaplain

Rev. William D. Walsh was guest of honor recently at a welcoming reception at Quincy City Hospital where he will succeed Rev. David F. Delaney, who is now on team ministry at St. Denis Parish, Islington, as Catholic chaplain.

Among those in attendance at the reception were Quincy City Hospital chaplain Rabbi Jacob Mann, of Beth Israel Synagogue, Ernest Aristide, Quincy City Hospital community relations officer, and Rev. William R. McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church.

Fr. Walsh said his aim is to "help patients feel valued, important and loved...in a situation where it is easy to feel less than a person in an illness that strips him of strength, body control, privacy, and places him in a dependent situation. I would think myself in being a sign of God's caring concern to help a patient retain pride, hope and self-respect."

Fr. Walsh is assigned to St. John's Parish. He was previously assigned to St. Margaret's Parish, Dorchester, as an associate pastor, and to St. John's, Bridgewater.

He was ordained in 1966 after finishing his studies at St. John's Seminary.

The Mel-Tones will provide music for dancing until 10 p.m. There will be stands where hamburgers, hot dogs, pastry, coffee, beer and wine may be purchased.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

For many centuries, men wore their watches on chains. So, there were different fashions in the kinds of watch chains men wear. Gradually, the wrist watch took over in popularity and pocket watches became items of another age. But, lately there has been a resurgence in the popularity of pocket watches for men, whether worn with vested suits or hanging from belt loops. So, again, watch chains and fobs are in fashion.

We know you'll be pleased with the fine choice of jewelry, for both men and women, available from us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490. Davis In Unique Commissioner Bid

Quincy Atty. Harold Davis is running for Norfolk County Commissioner.

And before you say he can't, he can.

Davis will be making his run out of Braintee--not Quincy. He and his family are moving to Braintree this week.

And that's how he can run for Norfolk County Commissioner. As a resident of Quincy he could have run, but it wouldn't have done any good. Even if he were elected he could not have served because Quincy already has a county commissioner in George McDonald. No community can have two commissioners as residents. McDonald's seat is not involved in this year's election.

Davis is seeking the post that was held by the late Thomas McManus of Norwood. David Ahearn, also of Norwood was appointed to fill the unexpired term that ends this December.

Ahearn is a candidate for election. Other candidates for the seat are former Dedham Selectman Francis O'Brien and Paul Hartnett, Jr., of Norwood.

Davis isn't moving to Braintree to run for the Norfolk County Commission. He had planned to buy a house there months ago.

But he obviously figures political opportunity is knocking at his new Braintree door.

So far he is the only Braintree candidate in the picture and his Braintree address will make him the "local" candidate there. And, of course, he has been a strong vote-getter in Quincy.

A former Quincy school committeeman, he topped the ballot on his first try in 1971. In 1975 he lost a bid for a City Council at-large seat to Paul Harold by 300 votes.

Quincy and Braintree are two of the biggest communities in the county. Davis it appears, may have the advantage of running as the "local" candidate in both.

It should be interesting to watch.

INSIDERS SAY the Quincy Republican City Committee had hoped to get Senator Edward Brooke and Avi Nelson in a debate during tonight's [Thursday] reception for GOP candidates at the Neighborhood Club.

But the plans fell through. Nelson reportedly was willing but Brooke was not. Or, so they say.

Actually, it would have been an awkward situation because other candidates are going to be there. How could you let Brooke and Nelson debate and not gubernatorial contenders Edward King and Francis Hatch?

Also expected to be present are John Sears, running for Secretary of State; Arthur Casey, state auditor, Lew Crampton, candidate for state treasurer and William Weld, running for attorney general.

NICE GESTURE DEPT: Jack Kerrigan of Baskin Robbins, Quincy Sq. is giving an ice cream cone to each of the 100 youngsters who took part in the recent Quincy Walkathon for Muscular Dystrophy.

BY THE WAY, School Committeewoman Mary Collins who was chairman of the event, not only made all the arrangements but walked herself and raised $80 in pledges. Total pledges ran to $2,500.

SOCIAL NOTE: City Councillor Joanne Condon has two young house guests from Ireland. Patricia Beattie, 20, of County Monahan will be here about six weeks and Sean O'Reilly, 19, for the summer. They are students at St. Patrick's College, Maynooth, County Kildare which Joanne's son, Michael, 18, attended the past year. Patricia, incidentally, is a fan of The Quincy Sun since she has been reading the subscription issues sent to Michael in Ireland the past year.

WELCOME HOME: Mrs. Marion Morrissey, mother of Rep. Michael Morrissey, is recuperating at home following surgery at Carney Hospital. And she's bouncing back fast. Felt good enough the other morning to find the telephone number of Massport's Noise Abatement [567-3333] and let them know what she thought of the aircraft to and from Logan Airport flying noisely over North Quincy.

Wants 4 More Years As AG

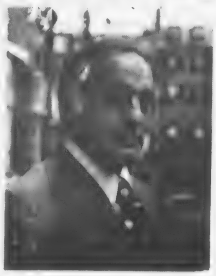
Bellotti Not Running For Senate Or Governor

By TOM HENSHAW

Frank Bellotti is not running for the U.S. Senate.

"There has to be one person in the state who's not going to Washington," cracked Quincy's only statewide officeholder.

Bellotti, relaxed, almost casual, a far cry from the intense, upward-bound politician of a dozen or 20 years ago, is running for re-election as attorney general. He will officially announce shortly.



"There's a tremendous ability to affect people here," he said on a visit this week to The Sun.

"If the governor wanted to make an even switch with me right now I'd be governor and he'd be AG, I wouldn't take it. Same thing with the Senate.

"This is the way I feel at the moment. In this business you run for things that you feel, not because they are there. Twelve or 14 years ago my head was different. Right now, I don't run for something just because it's open and I have a chance of winning it."

It was just 14 years ago that Bellotti alienated a large faction of the Democratic party when, as lieutenanct governor, he ran against his governor, Endicott Peabody, beat him in the primary, then lost to Republican John A. Volpe. But that's buried in the past now.

"I've outlived most of the people who were involved in that," said Bellotti, a trim but graying 55 now. "Most of the rest of them are with me now. Oh, there are still a couple left but they would hate me anyway for some other reason."

FRANCIS BELLOTTI

Bellotti has been a rather low keyed attorney general for the past three and a half years.

"I don't look for publicity like I used to do," he said.

"When you start out in this business you look every day to find ways of getting your name in the paper. When you've been around as long as I have you just hope you don't see your name in the paper.

"I avoid maybe two thirds of the interviews and personal appearances during the week. When you do something it should have impact or some meaning.

"I have tried to do as good a job as possible and hope that it comes through to the people. You don't get the sensational publicity but you get the steady, solid recitation of what has happened."

Bellotti hopes that is what will carry him through to re-election. He has no opposition within the Democratic party. One Republican, William Weld of Cambridge, has announced for the job.

In the interview with The Sun, Bellotti also made these points:

- Yes, he recommended embattled Chief Justice Robert Bonin for the superior court bench but "I did not convince the governor. The governor made up his own mind.

"Bonin was in my office. I made a judgement on the evidence before me. He was very capable. I recommended him. Who could predict all those things? Other than that, I can't comment on a pending case."

- Proposition 13 represents a legitimate tax revolt, "probably the crystalization of the frustration of an awful lot of people throughout the country.

"There is a lot of fraud and waste in government. The people have just had it. You can't let these things keep happening. The people just rebelled and that's it.

"I've said this once, I've said it 15 times, out of $2 billion in human services in this state in a year, a conservative estimate is that $300 million is stolen or goes to waste."

- His biggest accomplishment in three and a half years "is to make the office of the attorney general professional and not political. We've got all kinds of new young people in there who are very, very good and very committed.

"We've been able to do a lot of things because I'm not worried about the political impact of the decisions I might make. I'd like to spend the next four years targeting the things to do that have some impact."

Robert Faxon: A Front Page In Quincy's History

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Paeans of praise often seem misdirected, inaccurate, or questionable. But there is a measure of a man ... his sense of community. The late Robert M. Faxon, a member of one of Quincy's first families, had a deep sense of community, and his many activities - business, civic, church, cultural - reflected this.

He was an important contributor to one of Quincy's greatest growth periods, and this alone would entitle him to a front page in Quincy's history.

His attitude of encouragement and genuine interest spurred to successful fruition many of the city's special projects. We at the Quincy Historical Society are mindful of this gentleman's many good deeds and gentle heart.

Action Against Dog Packs Long Overdue

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I, as a private citizen, would like to address the article on "ACTION against dog packs."

It certainly is long overdue that people are addressing this very important issue. If, in fact, the City does have a leash law, why is it not enforced? Picking up a dog after it has attacked or bitten someone seems to be action taken after the fact. The Fact being that dogs should be picked up for not being on a leash; the owner contacted and an immediate fine imposed.

There are many other problems created by unleashed dogs, as I'm sure many of you have experienced...such as rubbish being turned over or torn apart while waiting for pickup; lawns and gardens trampled over and dug up after tedious hours of work as well as dog excrement over you property - all of these left for cleanup by those who do not own a dog or who obeys the law and keeps their pet on a leash.

It certainly is never done by the dog owner. These people should be fined for their total lack of responsibility and consideration to their community and neighbors.

Granted, a new facility is badly needed. It is hard to understand why, in a city this size, that a new pound has been so long in limbo. But, will this solve the problem or is it a question of understaffing at the dog pound that makes it impossible to do an adequate job of picking up and notifying owners of unleashed dogs? Will there still be a problem after a new pound is built?

Summer is fast approaching, escalating this already urgent matter, with many young children playing in our streets, playgrounds and beaches. It is my suggestion that each and every person who is bothered in someway by dogs belonging to others to contact [not the dog officer] but their councilman who should speak out as Leo J. Kelly and John Lydon did and demand that something be done immediately. Must we wait one or two years for the building of a pound in order to get action?

Education of dog owners as to their responsibilities to their neighbors and communities is badly needed in this City. To say "nobody else's dog is on a leash - why mine?" is a cop-out, an unleashed dog is a nuisance, not a pet.

Petition Drive Launched At Airplane Noise

[Cont'd from Page 1]

David Davis for today [Thursday] at 10 a.m. "to see if we can resolve this problem."

Tobin met with Dukakis Monday and gave him a petition containing 72 names protesting the airplane noise.

The Morrissey-Sheets-Raymondi petition reads:

"We the undersigned Quincy residents object to the noise and inconvenience of the current pattern of air traffic over Quincy and we vehemently object to any continuance of this air traffic plan."

Morrissey said they were having 1,000 copies of the petition printed, hopefully by the weekend so they can be distributed at the various Fourt of July celebrations, both public and private.

"We hope to end it by July 10 and turn the petitions over to Director Davis or to Donna Berman, the head of noise abatement," said Morrissey.

"If nothing else it will show the real interest on the part of the people of Quincy that they are willing to go out and collect 20,000 signatures."

He urged people antagonized by airplane noise to continue calling 567-3333 to register their protests.

"They are swamped with calls," he said. "They've had more calls in the past month than they've had in the previous two years. Don't let them off the hook now."

The noise problem in Quincy began when Logan takeoffs were switched "temporarily" to a 195-degree heading, which takes the planes over Squantum.

There they turn west to get on a 270-degree heading where they are handed over by New England Flight Control in Nashua, N.H.

Morrissey said that Massport promised to experiment with a 180-degree heading, taking the planes farther out to sea before making the turn.

"I was out in a boat this weekend," said Morrissey. "We counted 20 planes in a half hour. Only one plane out of the 20 did the correct thing.

"The others were taking off and making their turns right over Squantum. They weren't holding the 180-degree heading long enough to gain altitude before making the turn."

Morrissey urged that Quincy officials get together behind the petitions for a more unified approach to the problem.

"The Mayor has a legal suit," he said. "The Senate has an investigation. We've been pushing meetings with the noise abatement people.

"We're going off on different tangents. We should get together behind a unified effort like these petitions, even to the extent of picketing some of the carriers out at the airport.

"Right now we're just getting our feet wet with the petitions."

Public Transit Relief Bill Would Save Quincy $4.83 On Tax Rate

A bill to provide local tax relief for public transit operations is due for early debate in the U.S. Senate and, if approved, will cut the Quincy property tax rate by $4.83 and save the city a total of $1,343,811 in MBTA assessments.

The bill would cut assessments to property taxpayers in the 79 MBTA District cities and towns by 60 percent, a solid $50 million of property tax relief. Gov. Michael S. Dukakis has made a commitment that the increased aid would be used totally for property tax relief.

Frederick P. Salvucci, state secretary of transportation and construction, and Robert R. Kiley, MBTA board chairman, were in Washington during the past week to discuss strategy with Congressional leaders.

According to Salvucci the bill would rectify an inequity in alloting federal aid for operation of public transit systems. Federal aid to subsidize public transportation has been allocated on the basis of population, regardless of the effort to an urban area and its taxpayers to provide a public transportation network.

"This means that some cities which have lots of private automobiles wasting energy and fouling the air in massive urban sprawl, have federal aid to pay for half of relatively small public transportation systems," Salvucci said.

"But cities like Boston, which made a commitment to an extensive public transportation network 81 years ago, receives federal aid for only one-tenth of its operating expenses," he added.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke [R-Mass.] is backing the bill and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy [D-Mass.] is planning to play a major role in rallying senators to support the move for local tax relief as part of the entire transit bill.

Kiley said: "The Senate bill is probably the most tangible measure of property tax relief that we will see coming out of Congress this year."

Beautification For Quincy Sq.

light in the street between City Hall and the Church.

"The one that's there now keeps getting knocked down," said the Mayor. "We would also pretty up that island." [Once known as Deegan Park].

The divider that runs down the center of Hancock St. from the South Shore Bank to Quincy Savings Bank branch, The Quincy Sun to the church would remain.

"But," said Tobin, "the fence might be taken down and replaced with posts and chains and different types of flowers and shrubbery."

The city is negotiating now with the MBTA to have the bus exit next to City Hall moved farther up the street toward the entrance to aid in the beautification.

Tobin said Ricciuti and Hannon will also study the costs of the project as well as the design.

City Awarded $1.8 Million Grant

Quincy has been awarded a grant totalling $1,877,000 by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, announces Congressman James A. Burke.

The grant, authorized under the Housing and Community Development Act, will fund public works, rehabilitation, elderly services and weatherization programs.

Community Development block grants are designed to help cities provide decent housing and improved living environments and economical opportunities.

It Rained On Their Parade

The heaviest rainfall of the year [1.31 inches in 24 hours] fell on Quincy during Fourth of July celebrations, cancelling fireworks displays but otherwise failing to dampen holiday enthusiasm.

June 29-July 5
28 Years Ago
This Week

Chairman Paul Benzaquin, dressed as "Bushman the Gorilla", led the parade in Merrymount, which featured a 1923 Stanley steamer driven by John Simmons.

The single men defeated the married men, 10 to 9, at the Adams Shore Community Club festivities and John Reardon, Barbara DelMonica, Jerry Spink and Gordon Faust were judged the four best horribles.

Commander Harold Mason of the Nickerson Legion Post led the parade in the 41st Independence Day observance in Squantum and Danny Shea's barber shop quartet entertained in the evening.

The Montclair Men's Club played host to some 1,200 youngsters during the day and threw a dance and concert for adults in the clubhouse in the evening and everyone went outside to Bishop Field when the rain stopped.

QUARRIES TO CLOSE

City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. announced a tentative plan to close all the Quincy quarries except one and use that one as a sanitary landfill with a "cover as you dump" policy.

"That is like a pretty girl covering up a dirty neck with powder," snorted Health Commissioner Dr. Richard M. Ash, who advocated an incinerator for the city.

"An incinerator would cost between $750,000 and $1 million to build plus $50,000 to $60,000 to operate," retorted Deegan. "The sanitary landfill has the additional benefit of creating new land."

WOLLASTON TOPS BRAINTREE

The Wollaston Junior League baseball team spotted Braintree four runs in the first inning on two hits, four walks and a wild pitch, then came back to win 5-4 behind Gus Cuneo.

After the rocky first, Cuneo settled down to allow only one hit while striking out 19.

The Wollaston lineup included: Girvin ss, Nelson lf, Abbott 2b, Young rf, Burns 3b, Cuneo p, Rose c, Coulacos cf, Carroll 1b.

Mortgage rates a tiny factor in spiraling home costs

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Mortgage rates are an insignificant factor in the spiraling cost of homes, a study conducted by the Congressional Budget Office reveals.

Published earlier this year, the study noted that in the six-year period from 1970 through 1975, sales prices of U.S. homes rose 67.9% whereas interest rates increased only 6%. [Declines in interest rates in 1976 and 1977 would show a wider disparity over an eight-year period.]

Far more significant factors in the increased costs of home ownership, according to the Congressional report, were maintenance and repairs [up 117.7% in 1970-1975], property taxes [104.6%], insurance [89%], and heat and utilities [72.8%].

A surprising discovery was that for home owners who did not move in this period, the increase in home costs [22.8%] was lower than the gain in median family income [39.0%] and the rise in the Consumer Price Index [38.5%]. So also, those who repurchased a home in this period found increased housing costs [27.3%] to be below income and CPI gains.

First-time buyers were most hurt by the rise in home prices and costs. For those who purchased existing homes, the rise in costs was 63.0% for the 1970-75 period, and for those buying new housing, it amounted to 82.4%.

The United States League of Savings Associations draws two principal conclusions from the CBO study: 1] Efforts to control home ownership costs should include an examination of such components as maintenance, property taxes, and insurance; 2] steps should be taken to help the home buyer.

The association comments favorably upon proposed Congressional legislation such as the "Young Families Housing Act of 1977" which would overcome the principal barriers to home ownership for the young family -- the high monthly payment and high first-time down payment.

The proposed bill would authorize graduated monthly payments which would be lowest in the first years but would rise gradually from year to year. It would also allow for individual housing savings accounts which could be accumulated over 120 months to a maximum of $10,000. A family could save up to $2,500 per year in such an account, with the principal deducted from taxable income and the compounded interest tax-free -- on the proviso that the account would be used for home purchase.

A similar principle is already in force in the provisions Congress has made for retirement through the Individual Retirement Account and the Keogh plan.

Since home ownership is a highly desired and worthwhile objective, something should be done to keep it within range of young families.

PENCIL CAN BE DANGEROUS

Pencil punctures frequently occur at schools. Recently, a Wisconsin boy lost the sight of an eye when he bent down to pick up a coin and his face struck a pencil sticking out of a companion's pocket.

Children who fall while they have a pencil in their mouth often require emergency treatment. Usually, these mouth punctures are not too serious. Far more serious, but fortunately rare, are oral injuries involving the soft palate in the region of the tonsils.

According to an AMA report of a study into 25 such cases, resulting in a blood clot in the major throat artery, 25 percent of the patients died and most of the others were left paralyzed on one side.

Parents, remind your children that pencils should not be carried in the mouth or protrude from pockets. When not in use, they should be capped with a plastic shield or carried in a box.

Morrisette Seeks Revenge, Quincy's Sullivan Still Jinxed

Morrisette Legion's baseball team, rolling along with a 7-1 record, will try to avenge its lone defeat Friday when it hosts unbeaten Weymouth at 8 p.m. at Adams Field.

Morrisette played at Hingham last night [Wednesday].

Wednesday, Wollaston will host Braintree at 8 at Adams and Quincy will play at Randolph at 6.

Quincy pitcher Kurt O'Sullivan is probably wondering what he has to do to win. Last Friday he dropped his second 1-0 decision to Morrisette's Gary Earle.

Earle pitched three-hit ball and struck out 10, while O'Sullivan gave up six hits. The winning run scored in the sixth when Steve Cook singled and scored on Mike McCormack's double. McCormack had two as did Quincy's McLaughlin.

Earlier Morrisette had defeated Wollaston, 4-1, as Dave Austin and John Wilkinson combined for a two-hitter. The game was called after five innings because of the fog.

Austin, starting his first game, allowed two hits, struck out five and walked two.

Morrisette scored all four runs in the second. McCormack and Dave King singled, moved up on Don Perdios' bunt and when the third baseman erred, McCormack scored, King went to third and Perdios to second. Pete Niosi doubled scoring King and Perdios, Niosi advanced to third and scored on Fran Donovan's sacrifice fly.

Wollaston scored in the fifth when Flaherty singled, was forced by Bob Stevens, who scored on two errors. With two runners on, Wilkinson relieved and struck out Bob McCabe to end the game. Tom LaBlue pitched well for Wollaston, allowing six hits.

Wollaston gained its first win in seven games, topping Hingham, 3-2, behind the excellent pitching of Bob Lindenfelzer, who allowed eight hits and struck out nine.

Tom McFarland drove in the winning runs with a two-run double. Fine defensive plays were turned in by McInnis, McFarland, Tom O'Connor and Chuck Marshall of the winners.

Hancock Bank upset the Police Club, 5-1, behind the two-hit pitching of Jamie Walsh, who struck out 10. Police had the bases loaded with no outs in the first inning but Walsh struck out the next three batters. Hancock clinched it with four runs in the third. Mike Venna walked, Pat King singled and Steve Spencer walked to fill the bases. Steve Belcastro singled to tie the game at one and Craig DiBona walked to force in the winning run. John Kavanaugh singled to drive in the other two runs. Walsh and Rick Barry had back to back doubles for the final run in the sixth. Boussey had both Police hits, a triple and a single.

Golden tied it in the third as Bob Ready walked, stole second and scored on a single by John Balzano. In the fourth Golden scored another as Scott Lowell walked, Joe Toomey singled and Lowell scored on an error. After Barry's added a run in the fifth to tie it on singles by Bob Barter and Bob Baker, a walk and a fielder's choice, Golden clinched it with three in the sixth. Jim Kelly, Dan Molloy and Todd singled for the winning run and Ready's single following a double steal accounted for the other runs.

VFW defeated Sons of Italy, 10-7, with Eric Swanson the winning pitcher. Jack Brown, who saved the game for Swanson, hit a home run. Paul McConville and Brown had two hits apiece and Swanson, Tom Canavan, Rich Reinhardt, Mike Jaehnig and Ed Ryan one each. Dan Boyle and Jim DePietro had two apiece for SOI and Bob Beniers and Steve Howley one each.

Golden edged Hancock Bank, 2-0, with Sean Martin, with a three-hitter, outpitching Sal Lorenzano. Martin had a no-hitter for 5 2/3 innings when Lorenzano got his team's first hit. Both runs scored in the second inning when Martin walked, Balzano singled but was thrown out at second trying to stretch it, Brian Reale doubled home the winning run and Lowell's long fly brought Reale home.

Hancock defeated Elks, 5-3, with Walsh throwing a three-hitter. Hancock scored four runs in the first inning when Kavanaugh tripled with the bases loaded and scored on Barry's single. Elks scored twice in the first and added one in the sixth. Hancock also scored a run in the sixth. Barry had two hits and Kavanaugh, Belcastro, Jamie Doyle and Joe Phelan one each for Hancock. Steve Pecavich had a triple and Dave Stohlberg and John Coleman a single each for Elks.

For Golden, Molloy, Todd, Ready, Mike Hussey and Reale had the hits. Reale pitched the first seven innings for Golden with Balzano pitching the eighth and getting the win. Paul Dwyer went all the way for Firemen.

Sons of Italy defeated Local 1139, 8-3, with Tom Mullen pitching fine ball for five innings and getting the win and Brian Donovan earning a save with fine relief pitching. DePietro had two hits and played well defensively. Boyle hit a bases loaded triple to key the SOI attack. Mike Cristiani had an RBI triple and played well on defense.

Houghs Neck toppled Police Club, 6-2, with Tom O'Connor pitching a three-hitter and striking out eight. Mark Baker had all three Police hits. Chuck Marshall and O'Connor had two hits each and McFarland had three for HN. Dale Adams played a good defensive game for HN and Marty McLoughlin made an outstanding catch in right field to save a run.

In the fifth Segalla picked up a ground ball to his right, ran and slid into first to beat the runner by inches with two outs and the score tied. Chamber Opposes Classification, Circuit Breakers As Property Tax Relief

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce, calling on former Rep. John Adams [Federalist-Braintree] for support, has come out against classification and circuit breaker proposals as a means of property tax relief.

The Chamber also announced its support of 100 per cent valuation "as the only fair and reasonable way of taxing property for all," and endorsed the Committee for Property Tax Relief's proposal for a tax cap at 18 per cent of total income.

Tax Atty. Ralph J. Rivkind, chairman of the Chamber's State Spending and Taxation Committee, explained the Chamber's position on taxes like this:

"Classification of property for tax purposes essentially means that various types of property will be able to be assessed at different rates of tax.

"Circuit breaker essentially means that once a person's property taxes exceed a percentage of his income, a tax rebate will be made.

"The classification proposal does not solve the real estate tax problem as it merely shifts the burden among taxpayer groups. That burden would be on the business sector which presently pays the highest real estate taxes in the country. The negative impact is presently under study, however, there is no question many jobs would be lost.

"The circuit breaker proposal does not solve the real estate tax problem either; in fact it will encourage communities to spend more money because the state will be picking up the tab in the form of rebates to residential property taxpayers [no business]. It also will encourage people to spend beyond their means by choice, rather than necessity due to hardship.

"Since many people who would legitimately qualify have a zero tax status, they would not file tax returns and the segment a circuit breaker is designed most to help would, in fact, not be helped.

"These property tax modification proposals do not address the real problems: the control of municipal spending and unfunded state-mandated programs imposed on municipalities."

Rivkind noted that John Adams, then a State Rep. from Braintree, in 1780 suggested that property in the state be revalued every 10 years at least "in order that such assessments may be made with equality."

"This simple statement that taxes shall be based on equal assessments of property has been consistently upheld by the courts and remains and should continue to remain the official policy of Massachusetts." said Rivkind.

"We should not lose sight of the simple truths of our forefathers. Equal taxation of equal worth [consistently determined] is as valued a truth today as it was in 1780."

Meanwhile, the Chamber's board of directors endorsed the Committee for Property Tax Relief proposal, which Chamber President Gerald T. Reilly called "a sensible approach to correcting a tax situation which has become burdensome."

The committee is headed by Realtor Jack Conway, who is a former president of the Chamber.

FINANCING INCOME-PROPERTY

If you are contemplating the purchase of income property, the question of how large a mortgage loan you should have will undoubtedly arise. Those who specialize in this type of real estate, almost to a man, go on the philosophy that income property should be purchased with as large a mortgage as possible – provided the property yields enough net income to meet mortgage payments.

From the standpoint of investment analysis, it can be shown that this policy usually gives the greatest capital gain, the largest amount of tax-free income, and the largest percentage of investment return.

In no other investment do you have the opportunity to use leverage [a small percentage of your money to a great percentage of another's] like you do in real estate. So, the larger the mortgage loan, the further your own money will go.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

Brownell Candidate For Re-election In 2nd Norfolk District

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] announces his candidacy for re-election to the office of state representative in the Second Norfolk District.

"With the reduction in the size of the House, the people of Quincy need and deserve strong and effective representation in the House of Representatives," he said. "In the next coming two years I hope to fill that need."

Brownell feels of critical importance is finding means, legislative or otherwise, to relieve beleaguered homeowners of the tremendous financial burdens of maintaining their homes.

Brownell is a strong supporter of income tax reform and believes that it should begin with the repeal of the 7½% state income tax surcharge repeal of which he has called for since 1975.

Brownell cited as a partial list of his accomplishments:

Sponsored legislation and constitutional amendments placing limits on state spending and taxation.

Secured passage of legislation prohibiting the filling in of 26 acres of Quincy Bay at Nut Island for a sewerage treatment plant.

Fought for the reduction of the meals tax from 8 to 6 %.

Secured construction of a comfort station at Wollaston Beach.

Improvements at Caddy Park, and Wollaston Beach in general.

Co-sponsored no-fault divorce legislation.

Secured passage of legislation reforming and reducing the county tax assessment on the City of Quincy.

Co-sponsored legislation reforming the elderly tax exemption law.

Supported an ethical and financial disclosure legislation.

A law eliminating nuisance medical malpractice claims.

Secured state funding for modernization of Sea St., and reform of the MDC.

Brownell is also a member of a reform coalition to modify the rules of the House of Representatives to reduce the absolute power of the office of Speaker.

Brownell cites as legislative experience, service on the Local Affairs, Insurance, Public Safety, Judiciary, Education, and Taxation Committees. He also has been an Assistant Attorney General for Massachusetts.

He also was a member of the legislative panel which removed Judge Jerome Troy for judicial misconduct.

Brownell is married to the former Margaret Donovan of Peabody and they live with their two children Karyn, 6, and David, 4, at 15 Moreland Rd, Merrymount.

McCarthy Discusses Area Problems At Houghs Neck Gathering

Democratic Congressional Candidate Pat McCarthy was the guest of honor at an evening coffee gathering held by Mary Alice Ahern, 105 Sea Ave., Houghs Neck.

McCarthy, former chief of staff to Congressman Joseph Moakley spoke to over 65 area residents stressing some of the problems of the Quincy area and the 11th District in general. He said:

"Put yourselves in the shoes of a young couple from Quincy that really wanted to establish roots in a community, and get that nest egg going. But could not scrape together enough downpayment money for a first home. Increasingly, childless young couples are being forced to choose between starting a family or buying that first home. I ask you what about the dreams of both?"

McCarthy, an attorney, and former Legal Counsel and Management Consultant to a number of South Shore businesses, tallied 43 per cent of the Democratic Congressional primary vote in the 1976 election. Incumbent Congressman James Burke will not seek re-election.

Nourse Hopes To Interest MassPort In Edgar Station

Dolores E. Nourse of Weymouth, a condidate for state representative from the Quincy-Weymouth district, is seeking to interest MassPort in the site of the Boston Edison Edgar Station in North Weymouth as a containerized facility and possible free port.

Mrs. Nourse, who is in the photography business, is a candidate for the new seat created by legislative redistricting that places her in the same district as Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli (D-Quincy).

"Edison's abandonment of the Weymouth power plant will have a staggering effect on the taxpayers of Weymouth and the economy of the Quincy-Weymouth area," she said in a letter to David W. Davis, executive director of the Massachusetts Port Authority.

Mrs. Nourse noted that the Edgar Station land abuts the main Fore River channel; it has direct vehicular access to Route 3A; it has a 600-foot pier with clearance beyond the end to allow most large vessels access with no extreme turns.

She offered to meet with Davis, officials of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and other interested local officials to tour the site and discuss possibilities.

Decision Due Friday

May Change Flight Pattern To Check Noise

By TOM HENSHAW

Harassed Quincy residents will learn tomorrow [Friday] whether they will have to put up with noise of departing aircraft from Logan Airport for the rest of the summer.

Mayor Tobin said Massport Director David Davis told city officials last week that Massport was awaiting some final figures on experimental takeoff patterns before giving them a definite answer.

"It's quite possible," said Tobin, "that they will go back to the status quo if it is going to take them any length of time to reach a final decision."

The status quo, said Tobin, would mean takeoffs over the Mattapan section of Boston, instead of Quincy.

"In the meantime," said Tobin, "they told us they are going to spread it out more to cut down noise.

"In other words, they're trying to take each plane to an altitude of 3,000 feet before making its turn and spreading them out to different intervals so they won't get the constant frequency of takeoffs over a particular area."

The problem is, said Tobin, "that in order to accomplish what they want to accomplish, they've got to interfere with holding patterns.

"When you come off runway 22R, you can take planes to the left out over the water. But that's a holding pattern for planes that are arriving.

"So they've got to take that holding pattern and move it farther south. This is going to take time to reach a final solution."

Also at the meeting with Tobin and Davis were Reps. Michael W. Morrissey and Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy], and M. Joseph Manning [D-Milton].

"The delegation," said Tobin, "was a little perturbed that Massport had never informed anyone of the experimental change in takeoffs. If they had informed the elected officials and people of Quincy maybe this wouldn't have happened."

Council To Remove 'Cloud' Over Grant

The City Council will meet today [Thursday] at 5 p.m. to clear away a "cloud" that is hanging over a $1.8 million federal grant.

Mayor Tobin said he was notified by the Department of Housing and Urban Development last week that the city has not established an adequate accounting system for the home rehabilitation program.

"If immediate action is not taken to correct this matter we may be required to suspend the operation of your program until the appropriate action is taken," said Robert L. Patquin of HUD.

The problem was that the City Council in June 1977, had resolved to take control of the program out of the hands of the Names Of 300 Students Drawn For City Summer Jobs

In a lottery reminiscent of the draft the names of 300 Quincy residents were chosen from a drum at Quincy City Council Chamber last week - only this time the drawing was for jobs.

Those whose names were drawn have been notified to report to work Monday, July 10 at the municipal department to which they are assigned. The jobs are in the highway, water, sewer, forestry and park departments. Others are with the department of public works and Quincy City Hospital.

The jobs are intended mainly for high school and college students, according to George Riley, Mayor Tobin's executive secretary. Those hired will be paid $2.65 an hour, during the five week duration of the program.

Quincy Receives
$1.3 Million In State Aid Funds

Quincy has received state aid funds totalling $1,328,483.70 for use in the 1979 fiscal year.

Included in the distribution, announced this week, are school aid, which amounts to $839,366.70; urban redevelopment corporation tax, $58,817.29; highway fund, $147,492.10; additional assistance through the local aid fund, $223,201.61; tuition for state wards, $57,069; school aid special needs, $2,537.

According to State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane a total of $113,266,147.55 was distributed to the 351 cities and towns of the state for this quarter.

NQHS Business Manager Approved

The Quincy School Committee has approved a request from School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, for permission to hire a person through CETA to function as business manager of North Quincy High School.

Dr. Creedon told the committee the salary would range between $12,500 and $13,500. He said that if the person chosen fulfills all the CETA requirements he or she would be retained.

The superintendent said the position will ultimately require civil service status.

The request was approved on a voice vote.

Creedon Tells Taxpayers Association

City Falling Behind On Public School Maintenance

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy is falling behind in maintenance of its public school buildings, says Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon.

"We spend $1 million a year in order to maintain a plant that is conservatively valued at $175 to $200 million," Dr. Creedon told the Quincy Taxpayers' Association recently.

"That's not enough to maintain a plant the way it should be maintained in relation to the capital investment. Our buildings are in adequate shape but there are many things that could be done."

Dr. Creedon said some of the errors made in constructing school buildings in the recent past are now causing problems for the school administration.

"Quincy built an awful lot of little schoolhouses in the 1950s," he said. "It was supposed to be a wise economy measure. But it was a mistake for several reasons.

"They were just too small.

"They had too many multi-purpose rooms. We have since learned that multi-purpose rooms do not serve any real purpose. There's always one thing or another in the way.

"Some of them were built on marshland. We're constantly having trouble with the heating plant and the pipes underneath them are rotting out.

Design of some of the schools, he said, inhibits needed expansion.

"For example," he said, "at the Beechwood Knoll school there is no provision to store such things as the fluid for the duplicating machine or the 15 or 20 gallons of gasoline for the snow blower and the lawn mower.

"It's against the fire safety laws so we have to build a little hut outside the building.

"There was no provision made for a library. We had to take the stage of the auditorium, which also serves as a gym, to use as a library.

"These are some of the little economies of the 50s."

Dr. Creedon said the small schools were built because Quincy has always been dedicated "to the notion of the neighborhood school to which the young people could walk."

He estimated that 100 percent of the elementary school population lived within walking distance of school and about 95 percent of the junior high school people.

Tobin Cited At Legion State Convention

Mayor-Senator Arthur Tobin was cited by the American Legion at its recent State Convention in Northampton.

Tobin, a Marine veteran of the Korean conflict, was commended for his support of many pieces of veterans legislation and his leadership in supporting veterans matters.

One piece of legislation cited was a bill to increase the real property tax exemption of post homes from $100,000 to $200,000 which saved many of the larger posts from financial ruin under 100 per cent valuation.

The resolution, submitted by John P. Swift, department adjutant, was unanimously passed.

16 Residents Among 38 Seized In Hard Drug Raids

By PETER BARNICLE

Despite the success of last week's massive drug raids in Quincy and other South Shore communities, Quincy police still hold 11 warrants for persons who escaped the net when local police and federal agents swooped down on nearly 50 persons suspected of drug trafficking.

Authorities said the raids were the biggest staged in this area in recent years.

Lawyers representing several of the suspects have contacted police to say their clients are prepared to surrender. One suspect is known to be out of the country.

In the lightning-like dawn raids police struck in Quincy, Hingham, Weymouth, Braintree, Stoughton and Plymouth, apprehending 38 suspects. The arrests came as the culmination of more than six months of investigation into drug traffic in the area.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn said large quantities of heroin, cocaine, amphetamines and other illicit drugs were channeled along routes stretching from Stoughton to North Andover. A Quincy police officer working undercover and federal "narcs" were able to penetrate the supply lines. The "North Andover connection," police said, is believed to have distributed $850,000 to a million dollars a month in cocaine.

Lt. Walter Lynch, head of the Quincy police drug enforcement unit, said that although the arrests had struck a significant blow to drug traffic in the area it has not ended it.

He said the work will continue and that the ongoing investigation will continue unabated.

At one point it was indicated that the raids might be connected with the murder of five men in a Boston restaurant the day before police struck. However, Quincy police noted that the raids had been in the planning stage for several weeks.

One of the men slain at the Blackfriars Restaurant in Boston was Vincente Solomonte, 35, of 175 Quincy Shore Dr., Quincy, owner of the restaurant.

Sixteen of those taken into custody in the raids were Quincy residents, including four women. They were all arraigned in Quincy District Court on a variety of drug connected charges, pleaded innocent and were released on personal recognizance for trials early in August.

They included: Carl Lamphere, 21, of Smith St.; Corey DiBona, 21, of Norman St.; Bradley DiBona, 26, of Alton Rd.; Joseph W. Grasselli, 32, of Center St.; Mary Ann Keddy, 32, of Vassell St.; Stanley Krafton, 31, of Goddard St.; William Grogan, 29, of Goddard St.; Rita Hartman, 29, of Willard St.; Barry Killion, 29, of Jenness St.; Lawrence Dreyfus, 29, of Franklin St.; Gerard Callahan, 27, of Beebe Rd.; Laurie Shea, 20, of Grossman St.; Jane Reardon, 26, of Beebe Rd.; James Colletti, 23, of Burns Ave. and Robert O'Leary, 31 of Hilltop St.

Robert S. Connor, 24, was taken into custody at 505 Hancock St. by Quincy detectives and federal agents. In addition to the drug charges, police said he is also wanted on federal firearms violations. He was arraigned before a U.S. Magistrate and ordered held on $2,500 bond with surety.

Morrissey Scores Vandalism Increase At MBTA Lots

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] has scored the increase in vandalism in the parking lots of the three Quincy MBTA stations.

He said he has asked Walter Henneberry of the MBTA treasurer's office to see if there may be some violations of the contracts for the parking lots.

"The MBTA recently raised the price of parking in the lots by 25 cents to cover the costs of security and maintenance," said Morrissey in a letter to MBTA director Robert Kiley.

This, he said "is a rip-off of the patrons of the lots since there is no security and minimal maintenance."

"I have received a number of complaints from constituents who use the MBTA facilities expressing their concern over the increase in thefts in the lots.

"A number of complainants cars have been damaged and some stolen by vandals from the lots."

Project WAGE Establishing Women's 'Skills Bank'

Project WAGE, a task force of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women of Quincy and the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College, is in the process of establishing a "Skills Bank" of area women seeking employment in all fields.

Project WAGE, established last December with a grant from CETA, has been researching training and employment opportunities for South Shore women and found many employers eager to hire qualified women to fill job openings in several fields.

However, many of the employers say they have difficulty finding women with the necessary skills and background.

Project WAGE feels there are many women on the South Shore with education and experience in a variety of trades and professions who are either seeking to enter the job market, or to change careers. One goal of Project WAGE is to locate these women and match them with existing employment opportunities. To help do this, a "Skills Bank" of resumes of women seeking employment is being established. The "bank" will be referred to when employers report job openings.

Project WAGE is also working with area employers to set up training programs in various fields. A questionnaire is being distributed to women asking for feedback on the types of jobs and training they would like. This will provide a better view of their needs and will help in discussing jobs and training programs with employers.

Any woman interested in participating in the survey or the "Skills Bank", or who would like to learn more about the services of Project WAGE, is asked to call 479-0734 or write to: Project WAGE, 55 Sea St., Quincy, 02169.

Women are also invited to visit the office any weekday between 8:30 and 4:30. The office is in the Public Works Building next to the Quincy Police Department.

BARBITUATE ABUSE DANGER

Barbituates are used medically as tranquilizers or sedatives to induce sleep or reduce daytime tension and anxiety. They should be considered highly dangerous when taken without medical advice and prescription. In higher doses, the effects resemble alcoholic drunkenness: confusion, slurred speech and staggering. The body's intolerance level for these drugs increased rapidly, so that constantly increasing doses are necessary to maintain their effect.

Users may become confused about how many pills they have taken and die on an accidental overdose. In fact barbituates are a leading cause of accidental poison deaths and also one of the main methods people choose to commit suicide. When taken with alcohol, their effects are greatly increased. In such a situation, a normal dose could become a lethal dose. It's something to think about.

The American National Red Cross

505 Families Here

Over $87,000 In Aid From Quincy Red Cross Chapter For Blizzard Victims

The Greater Quincy Chapter, American Red Cross, has spent in excess of $87,000 in aiding Quincy residents affected by the February blizzard, Peter F. Macdonald, chapter chairman, reported at the recent annual meeting at Fasano's Restaurant, North Weymouth.

He reported that 505 families in Quincy alone have been helped by the Red Cross, and that in a number of cases the aid is continuing.

Macdonald said the volunteers are being called on to increase their fund raising efforts to eliminate a $14,000 deficit. He pointed out that United Way of Mass Bay, an organization supported by Red Cross, just can't raise enough money to meet all the needs of the 165 agencies. They fund 60 percent of the Quincy chapter's requirements.

Macdonald said an effort will be made to reorganize the seven existing South Shore Chapters into an area unit to better service the needs of South Shore residents.

Newly elected to the board of directors were: Peter Benelli of Thayer Academy, Braintree; William J. Disher of Disher Associates, Braintree; Dr. Luleen S. Anderson, coordinator of elementary guidance staff, Quincy public schools, and Robert J. Quinn, vice president, South Shore Bank, Quincy.

Wilfred A. Nolan, coordinator of elementary education, Quincy public schools, was elected vice chairman. Re-elected were Peter F. Macdonald, chairman; John Allegrini, vice chairman; Ethel Carlson, secretary and Susan Murdock, assistant treasurer.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin commended the Red Cross on its aid to the city during the storm and throughout the year. He presented citations to William J. Disher, who coordinated the Blizzard Relief Operation in Quincy, Peter F. Macdonald, chapter chairman, and Daniel C. Pritchard, executive director.

Tobin also donated $200. to the Red Cross, to help with its work. He stated the money was part of the mayoral salary to be declined.

Macdonald thanked the Quincy Auxiliary Police, Civil Defense, Quincy Police Department, Quincy Fire Department, Quincy Public Schools, radio station WJDA, The Patriot Ledger, The Quincy Sun, Dunkin Donuts in Quincy, North Weymouth McDonald's and McDonalds on Quincy Avenue for their help to the Red Cross during the February blizzard.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to 25 of the 135 volunteers who helped the Red Cross in February. The rest will be distributed to those unable to attend the annual meeting.

A special citation was presented by Mcdonald to Boston Gear Works, Division of Incom International. The award was for the company's assistance to the Red Cross in making their TWX machine available for incoming disaster welfare inquiry bulletins from disaster struck parts of the United States and around the world. Because of their availability, Red Cross locally will be able to get accurate information to relatives living locally at a much faster rate.

Macdonald said that in addition, Boston Gear has been a Good Neighbor in Quincy through their long time support of Red Cross Blood Services through two to three bloodmobiles a year.

Honored for dedication and continued service to the Red Cross for over 40 years was Arthur Gillis of Weymouth, past chapter chairman and active in the organization since World War II.

Thirty year service awards were presented to John Allegrini and Irving J. Boyes.

A 25 year service award was presented to Stephen T. Keefe, Jr., immediate past chapter chairman.

Honored for 15 years of service was Edmea Settimelli, for 10 years of service, William Y. Walker Jr., George Bennett and for 5 years of volunteer service, Mildred Ambrosia, Mary McCue, Wilfred Nolan, Muriel Oakman and Gretha Ruark.

Safety Service awards were presented to these individuals for outstanding service in Red Cross course instruction in first aid, water safety and cardiopulmonary resuscitation [CPR].

They were Nancy Ellis and William Y. Walker Jr., who received Service Medals for donating more than 500 volunteer hours in five consecutive years.

Nancy Joyce received a safety certificate of appreciation for donating more than 500 hours to the Red Cross.

The finale of the evening was an inspirational and motivational address given by Rabbi Jacob Mann, Spiritual Leader of Beth Israel Synagogue in Quincy.

Good Shepherd Lutheran Plans Summer Vacation Church School

The Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, West Squantum St., North Quincy will hold a summer vacation Church School, Aug. 21-25.

Theme for the week will be "Hosanna" - "God's People Praise Him", and will be open for young people pre-school [ages 4-5] through grade 6.

Rev. Darrell Urban, pastor and director for the program said:

"It promises to be a fun filled and interesting experience with crafts, singing, parades, movements of praise, and a variety of other activities all aimed at helping young people understand God as Creator and Redeemer and to respond in joyful expressions of praise. It has been many years since Good Shepherd has had a summer vacation church school. We felt after exploring the idea with several people in the community that there was sufficient need and interest to begin in 1978."

The school is intended for all children in the community, regardless of denomination.

The sessions will be held each morning 9 to 11:30 a.m. Registration will be held on the first day. Interested persons can write for a pre-registration form which will better insure an opening for the child when the sessions begin.

5 QHS Students Represent Italy At Model UN Conference

Five students in the Quincy High School Advanced Placement World Cultures class represented Italy during a recent Model United Nations Conference, at Assumption College in Worcester.

Carolyn Donovan, Elan Erickson, Mark Hamel, Patricia Lenahan, and David Masidlover were Italian delegates seated on committees dealing with international, economic, political, military, social and humanitarian, and legal problems, respectively. Forty countries were represented at the conference by student delegates from high schools throughout New England.

Preparatory research by the students included the investigation of global and Italian affairs at their school and local libraries, and the gathering of pertinent documents and materials from Italian consular and United Nations agencies. The five Quincy students also received instructional assistance from George Smith, teacher of history and economics, and support from Miss Mary Clark, media specialist at the William Bradford Library.

Recently, the students, accompanied by their teacher and faculty advisor, Daniel George, met in Boston with Franco DiBruno, Consular General of Italy. They discussed at length both the Italian perspective on various global problems and issues, and Italy's proper role in seeking their solutions.

DiBruno commended the students on their interest and scholarship, and wished them well in their conference assignments. In appreciation for his assistance, the students presented to the Consul, a complimentary copy of "Quincy, 350 Years."

By Henry Bosworth

There's This Psycho And . . .

There's a psychotic killer living in a waterfront cottage on Sea St. in Houghs Neck.

He gets his kicks picking up girl hitch-hikers and doing them in. Seven victims.

But don't get excited. The murders are committed only on paper through the imagination of Mrs. Madelene Bryson of Dorchester, a retired Boston school teacher.

She's the author of a new mystery novel, "The Hitch-Hike Murders", printed in paperback and being sold at local book shops.

The seven young women victims are picked up by the "Quincy" psycho as they hitch hike rides in the general Boston area.

The fiend is finally caught and brought to justice by the Quincy Police but only after the novel's central character--a private investigator named Carrie Joyce--shows the way.

Besides Quincy, the setting includes Greater Boston, the Back Bay, Boston University and even the Boston Globe. But, says the author, the story is pure fiction [That's a relief!]

"If it has any message," she notes, "it is to warn young women against hitch-hiking."

Mrs. Bryson says she not only wrote the paperback, but she also had it published herself and is now handling the distribution. The press run was 2,000.

The distribution has been a slow process with 10 copies placed here, and 20 or 30 copies there. In some cases the book dealers have reordered after selling out.

In addition to bookshops, she has been placing copies in shopping malls and in other stores throughout the Greater Boston area.

Despite the slowness, the distribution campaign has been successful enough she is now ready for a second printing.

And, Mrs. Bryson is already working on her second book to be called "Murder At Gull Point". This one will have a Cape Cod setting.

She hopes with the sale of the two books she will be able to attract the attention of a literary agent to handle the details of publishing.

"I sent the first manuscript to more than a dozen publishers," she said. "They would keep it for about four months and then send it back. I guess they didn't want to take a chance because I was unknown."

She also has hopes an agent might interest television in making a mini-series out of "The Hitch Hike Murders"--one murder to each episode.

Can't you visualize someone like Racquel Welch playing the private female gumshoe and using herself as the bait to capture the nutcake [maybe Mickey Rooney] in the final episode.

Better than most of the re-runs they keep feeding us.

INSIDERS report things are a little frosty between Rep.-City Councillor James Sheets and Rep. Robert Cerasoli. Over the fact that Cerasoli turned up as emcee at Brian Donnelly's Quincy campaign kickoff for Congress at Montello's. Donnelly, of course is the enemy camp to Sheets who is also running for the 11th Congressional seat.

SPEAKING OF THE Congressional race, here is an intriguing move: Quincy Atty. Joseph McDonough who has run for a number of political offices as a Quincy resident, has taken out nomination papers for the 11th Distric seat listing a Boston address, 800 Hyde Park Ave. Boston City Councillor Patrick F. McDonough, also a candidate, isn't exactly going to jump with joy over that.

Baharian Criticizes Law

Tobin's Name Removed From Open Meeting Law Complaint

If it was a secret meeting Mayor Tobin had nothing to do with it.

So ruled Superior Court Judge Henry Chmielinski last week in removing Tobin's name from a complaint charging the open meeting law was violated by a meeting between the Mayor and the City Council Feb. 21.

"The Mayor is no longer a defendant in the suit," said City Solicitor Richard W. Barry. "I didn't feel that the Mayor was a proper defendant in the first place.

"He didn't call the City Council meeting. That has to be done according to certain Council rules.

"Our position from the beginning has been that he called a staff meeting and the councillors were invited to it. We hold staff meetings all the time and we don't invite The Sun and The Ledger."

The meeting was held to discuss costs of the Feb. 6 snowstorm and the city's financial position and, when a Patriot Ledger reporter was banned, the then-editor Donald C. Wilder initiated the suit.

Although Tobin's name has been removed from the suit, members of the City Council who attended the meeting remain as defendants.

"We have informed the district attorney that there will be no more of this type of meeting," said Tobin. "It just wasn't worth the hassle."

Meanwhile, another member of the Tobin administration expressed his unhappiness with the state's open meeting law.

"I regret that we have not been able to fill in the City Council on what's going on, except in a preliminary way," said Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development director, at a party welcoming the National Fire Protection Association to Quincy.

"The open meeting law under which we suffer -- I use that word personally, not to reflect on the administration -- I think is a problem to us in trying to communicate as we would like to communicate."

"No," said Tobin, "he was not speaking for me. He was just expressing his own opinion.

"Some of the councillors, and the president of the Quincy Business and Professional Association, Richard Barker, have complained that they were not being informed on developments.

"This is one of the things Rev. Baharian was talking about. He said he would like to keep people informed but his hands are tied by the open meeting law.

"We don't feel like going through that hassle every time we sit down in a room with anybody and there is a group of councillors present."

'Most Important Day'

City Officials Hail NFPA Decision To Move Here

Official Quincy had a chance to examine its newest acquisition last week.

It's the National Fire Protection Association, which plans to build a new $10 million headquarters on Pine Hill off Willard St., in West Quincy.

A model of the building was put on display at a wine and hors d'oeuvres get together at the Neighborhood Club.

"The most important day in the history of this city since Jordan Marsh and State Street South and Kemper decided to come into our city," said Rev. Bedros Baharian, director of citywide development.

Also on display were the association's officers, Dr. John L. Bryan, board chairman; Charles S. Morgan, president; Robert W. Grant, vice president, who had charge of selecting the site.

The NFPA, founded in Boston in 1896, now occupies office space in both the Sheraton Building and the State Street Bank Building in downtown Boston.

Grant said site work will start on the Quincy location in March, 1979, building construction will begin in July, 1979, and the building will be ready for occupancy in April, 1981.

The model shows the building to be L-shaped, five stories in height and blended into a natural landscape that will include two artificial ponds.

The NFPA signed an option in January to purchase the 42.5 acres of land from Old Colony Trust for $1 million.

Grant said about 13 per cent of the site will be occupied by the building and parking area with as much of the remainder as possible preserved as natural terrain.

It may even include jogging paths for employees on their lunch hours, he said.

Grant said the Quincy location was chosen after two years of examining such places as Phoenix, Ariz., San Jose, Calif., Washington, D.C., and 70 places along Routes 128 and 495 in the Boston suburbs.

Quincy was selected, he said, for these reasons:

- It's 15 minutes from downtown Boston and access to the big city's services. The quality of life is good -- "clean, historic, an intrinsic beauty all its own."

- There is access to public transportation, both the Southeast Expressway and the South Quincy MBTA station, and it is close to the airport since NFPA people travel a lot.

- The local labor pool is of high calibre. Fourteen employees now live in Quincy and "with a turnover of 25-35 people a year we will concentrate our recruiting in Quincy in the near future."

President Morgan said he is "thrilled by the natural beauty of the hilltop site we're planning to occupy and we are determined to protect and enhance that natural beauty.

"We want to be an asset to the city of Quincy and I can assure you we mean to be the very best of neighbors."

He described the NFPA, which has 220 people on its staff, as greatly resembling a publishing house.

Most of its income comes from publications and films, he said. The TV "learn not to burn" sports, featuring actor Dick Van Dyek, are produced by NFPA.

It has more than 32,000 members in 72 countries and operates on a budget of close to $11 million.

Charles Hilgenhurst, the site architect who has done studies on Quincy's potential in the past, called it "an opportunity of a decade, a rare combination of the right client, the right city and the right consultant team."

And best of all for the city, said Rev. Baharian, "there was no tax agreement made nor has the National Fire Protection Association sought one."

READER SPEAKS OUT

Airplane Noise Just Too Much!

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am sitting less than six feet away from a TV set - but everytime a plane flies over [every few minutes] I cannot hear the voices. These planes have consistently flown over each evening and early in the morning. Sometimes they start early on Sunday afternoon. Is there anything we can do to eliminate this nuisance? I see by your article in today's "Sun" that in spite of many calls -- nothing has been accomplished.

No. Quincy is backward in so many ways -- no room on the morning trains -- no supermarket -- no buses after 6:15 in the evening -- practically none on Sunday or holidays. Why should anyone want to live in this forgotten part of Quincy?' -- and now planes overhead every few minutes. Please help!

Ann E. Hagerty
240 Quincy Shore Dr.

P.S. I just called 567-3333 and voiced my distress -- 5 min. later a plane flies almost on the roof -- no wonder our walls and ceilings are cracked.

Sunbeams Item Reminds Him Of Similar Incident

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Your article, "HERE'S ONE" in the 6-22-78 issue on Mrs. Tobin's drawing of her son's name at the Fiesta of St. John's Church, reminds me of a similar Quincy incident of some years ago.

St. Ann's Parish, when the late Father Donnelly was pastor, had a drive for some thing or other, which included chances in the raffle of a new automobile.

A fair was held at the Oval on Hancock Street, climaxed by the drawing of the name of the winner of the car. The tickets were all placed in a large drum and after much twirling, Father Donnelly was requested to draw the ticket of the winner and out came the name of his brother and chauffer!

The difference in the story was that this winner's ticket was not discarded as Mrs. Tobin did to her son's!.

Lydon Asks Lighting Survey At MBTA Stations

City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. has asked Mass Electric Co. to conduct a survey of lighting in the areas of the North Quincy and Wollaston MBTA stations.

The specific areas are in the vicinity of Newport Ave. and Brook St., Wollaston, and West Squantum St. and Holmes St., North Quincy.

Lydon said many resident commuters cross these intersections when they come home from work in the evening and they have found the lighting conditions to be extremely poor.

A small German timepiece, dating from the mid-14th century and designed to hang on the wall, is said to be the earliest known alarm clock.

Carnivals Banned At Merrymount Park

Rev. William B. Ayers, chairman of the Board of Park Commissioners, cited state laws against setting up and promoting a lottery in defense of his controversial action revoking permits for Fourth of July carnivals in Merrymount Park.

"Law enforcement was partially abandoned during the war," he said. "This condition of relaxation has been taken advantage of by groups and classes who conceive themselves above the law."

Rev. Ayers' edict also cancelled the permit given to the War Veterans of Quincy to hold a fireworks display in Merrymount Park, which was postponed by inclement weather until July 8.

The Vets moved their field day to Fore River Field, where the fireworks were shot off and the wheels of chance were spun without interference from Rev. Ayers or the Park Board.

CHIEF FOILS STICKUP

A man named Chapman, under arrest in New York state, disclosed, how Quincy Police Chief Alfred Goodhue unwittingly foiled a robbery at the Quincy Savings Bank back in November, 1919.

The Chief, coming out of City Hall, fell in behind two would-be robbers who were crossing the street after leaving three companions in a car parked in front of the Hancock Cemetery.

When Goodhue stopped to talk with a traffic patrolman, the gang thought the jig was up so they hopped in the car and fled, stopping to hold up a bank in Randolph instead.

LIZ IS 'REG'LAR FELLER'

Liz Murphy, the famed lady baseball player, played first base for the Providence Independents and singled in one trip to the plate in a 1-0 loss to the Fore River team at Fore River Field.

"When you watch her play," wrote a sportswriter for the Patriot Ledger, "one forgets that she belongs to the so-called weaker sex. She is a reg'lar feller."

The Fore River lineup in that game included: Cain 3b, Markham ss, Francis cf, Greer lf, Hurrell 1b, Rouillard 2b, Proverb c, O'Rourke rf, Johnson p.

CARRIER CONVERSION STARTS

The Navy Department in Washington sent a telegram to the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Fore River Shipyard authorizing work to begin on converting the battle cruiser Lexington into an airplane carrier.

The keel of the Lexington was laid in January, 1921, but work was suspended when it was 35 per cent completed because of restrictions placed on the American Navy by a disarmament conference in February, 1922.

The conversion work was estimated to mean an additional 2,000 workers to augment the 2,800 currently employed at the Yard.

Council To Remove Cloud Over $1.8 Million HUD Grant

[Cont'd from Page 1]

Mayor and place it with the program director.

The Council is expected to take action today to rescind the old resolve and, said Tobin, "let me act in the manner which I should act reasonably and responsibly."

Meanwhile, he said, he plans to sit down with Auditor Charles L. Shea and correct the present accounting system.

Tobin said the HUD officials "are not alleging anything wrong" in their demand for more adequate accounting procedures, although Patquin called the situation "serious".

"They are just saying that in order for them to go in and perform the type of audit that has to be done they will need records that they don't have now," said the Mayor.

"They gave me five days either to take action or indicate that action would be taken.

"I have notified them that I have Xeroxed their letter and sent it to the City Council and I have contacted the City Auditor so I am acting in good faith."

The Council passed the old resolve giving Program Director William F. Huber the authority to approve individual grants for housing rehabilitation in order to speed up the process.

Since a Council resolve simply expresses the wishes of the Council and has no legal standing, it is not really necessary to rescind the particular resolve.

But Tobin called it a "cloud hanging over me" and asked the Council to remove it.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Diamonds are one of the best friends of a man named Harry F. Oppenheimer. Mr. Oppenheimer controls the deBeers Company of South Africa, which produces 80% of the world's diamonds. His father headed the company in the 1920's when deBeers gained supremacy in the diamond market by setting up a plan to stabilize prices and eliminate cut throat competition. With this system still in effect, the diamond industry has managed to keep the value of diamonds fairly stable, until the last few years with prices slowly rising at a controlled rate. Diamonds, an investment more than ever before.

National Leaguers Win 2 All-Star Games

The National League won both Junior Farm League All-Star games at Faxon Field.

In the 10-year-old division, the Nationals rode the combined three-hit pitching of Scott Mosher and Mark MacDonald to a 6-1 triumph, while the 8-9 year-olds overwhelmed the Americans, 23-8.

After winning pitcher Mosher hurled hitless ball through the first three innings, MacDonald finished up. Voted the game's most valuable player, MacDonald surrendered just three hits over the last two innings, while contributing a double and triple (good for two RBI) at the plate. Tony Souza had a triple.

Tim Betts, Tommy Donovan and Mark Simonelly all had doubles for the American League Stars. Pitchers were Matt Norton and Paul O'Grady for the Americans.

Managers for the game were Ralph Mosher, Don Murphy, Joe Ring, Jim Fitzpatrick, Chuck Woidman, and Jim Perdios.

In the 8-9 year-old game, the Nationals put across 12 runs in the fourth inning to crush the Americans. Robbie Fitzgerald, Dennis Doherty, Billy Burkhead, Rich Dunham, Larry Taglieri and Timmy Hall each went two-for-three, and Kevin Segalla chipped in with a triple for the winners. Steve Pappas clouted a bases-loaded triple for the American League All Stars, while Mark Bilton contributed two doubles.

Billy Burkhead, who performed admirably on the mound as well as at the plate, was named the game's most valuable player.

Managers for the game were Glenn Munn, Braves; Dave Grier, Mets; Bill LaForest, Pirates; Bob Fitzpatrick, Orioles; Jim Rooney, Angels, and Bill Heeney, Red Sox.

4 Coaches Appointed

Four coaching positions in the Quincy public schools were approved by the school committee at its regular meeting last week.

Eugene Macomber, prominently mentioned last spring for the post of head football coach at Quincy High School, has been appointed head football coach at Broad Meadows Junior High School for one year. Macomber, presently a dean at QHS, will receive a salary of $1,025 for the coaching job.

Henry Conroy, retired head football coach of QHS, was named coach of the boys cross country track team at QHS for one year at a salary of $850. He is a teacher at QHS.

Stephen Fishman, a teacher at Sterling Junior High School, was appointed assistant football coach at that school for one year at a salary of $605, and Deborah DeChristofaro, also a teacher at Sterling, was named head volleyball coach for one year at a salary of $470.

Naborhood Bombs Maffeo

Naborhood Pharmacy defeated the Maffeo Club, 14-8, in the Over-the-Hill Softball League to even its record at 4-4.

Trailing, 7-1, Naborhood scored a run in the second and exploded for seven in the third for an 8-7 lead, highlighted by Bob Conley's grand slam home run. Four runs in the fourth clinched the win. Jack Callahan's running shoestring catch of a sinking liner was the defensive gem of the game. At the time Maffeo had two men on and two outs.

For Naborhood, Jim Green had three hits and an RBI, Doug MacLean had two hits, Jim Cocce two hits and two RBI, Dr. Allan Yacubian two hits and an RBI, Conley three hits and four RBI, John Volante two hits and Paul Erler three hits and an RBI.

At North Track Banquet

Gallagher, Barrett, Saville Receive Valuable Performer Honors

Mike Gallagher, who holds the school records in outdoor and indoor shot put and outdoor discus, received the Most Valuable Performer trophy for spring track Monday night at the fifth annual North Quincy track banquet at the Hilltop Steak House in Saugus.

Other Most Valuable Performer trophies went to Mike Barrett for winter track and John Saville for cross country.

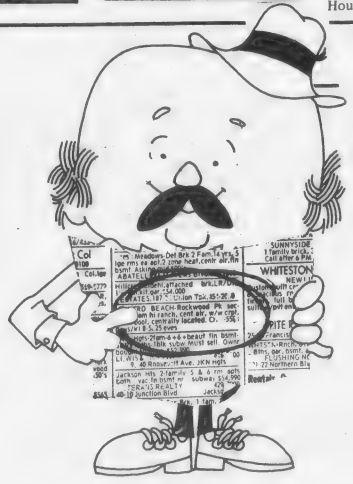
Seated at the head table were Coach Lou Tozzi, Assistant George Liset, Principal and Mrs. Peter Chrisom, Asst. Principal Lloyd Hill, Athletic Director and Mrs. Carl Leone, Girls Coach Jeff Strurgis and Tom Sullivan of The Quincy Sun.

The annual Coaches Trophies went to Mark Robinson for spring track, Russ Chisholm for winter track and Barrett for cross country.

Unsung Hero awards went to Jim Conboy for spring track and Mike Larson for winter track.

John McGuiggan was named Junior of the Year and Bill Daily was announced as Sophomore of the Year.

Also receiving awards were the teams' Suburban League all-stars and record breakers, Barrett, Dan McIntyre, Saville and Gallagher.



Tom Pound won the door prize, a pair of track shoes.

Tozzi presented gifts to his captains, Barrett, Gallagher and Chisholm of spring and winter track and Barrett and John Ricciuti of cross country.

The captains, in return, presented gifts to Tozzi, Liset and the other assistant coach, Ken McPhee, who was in Cleveland.

North Quincy has had an impressive record in cross country, winter and spring track since Tozzi took over as coach five years ago. This year the cross country team was 7-2, placing ninth in the state meet, the winter track team was 8-3 and missed its third straight state championship by two points, and the spring team was 6-3. Due to an unfortunate incident it did not compete in the state meet.

More than 100 trackmen, parents and friends attended the banquet.

Twin Cinema Planned

A Brand New Look For Strand Theater

By PETER BARNICLE

The Strand Theater, a landmark on Chestnut St., just off Quincy Sq., since 1934, is undergoing a complete renovation and completing plans to introduce the twin-cinema concept.

With customer comfort in mind the seating capacity has been reduced from 1,600 to 1,200. The elimination of 400 seats will provide more leg room for theatergoers.

Joseph F. O'Connor manager and co-owner of the theater, is also installing new carpeting, a new candy counter in the lobby, new air conditioning and heating systems. A refurbished marquee is in place at the entrance.

A new feature will be a soft ice cream stand which will take the place of the outside box-office. The stand will be open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. to attract non-theatergoers as well as patrons of the Strand.

O'Connor and his two partners Anthony and Charles Delpidio became co-owners last March and immediately started the renovations. They have been able to continue the work without closing the theater.

"There is a renewed interest in films," O'Connor says. "A lot of people are becoming disenchanted with television, particularly since most of the TV programs now are re-runs."

He has also found that many patrons attend the 7 p.m. screening and then go to one of the restaurants around the square for a bite to eat.

"Our location makes it very convenient. They don't have to get into the car and then look for another parking place," he says. "They just leave the car and walk from the theater to the restaurant."

The theater has two showings, one at 7 p.m. and a second at 9 p.m.

During the summer he will have several special matinees for children. He plans to have a drawing for a bicycle at these shows as an inducement for the youngsters.

"Just before school opens in September we have a special matinee and each kid gets a pencil box."

Plans for the twin-cinemas have been completed and are now awaiting submission to the building inspector. The plans call for two theaters, each seating about 500. One will be located on the main floor, the other will replace the balcony.

"As it is now when two top-notch films are available we have to make a choice," O'Connor explains, "with the twin-cinemas we will be able to show two major attractions at the same time period."

THE OFFER TO BUY

You are selling your home. A prospect inspects it, likes it, and decides to make an offer. You can depend on human nature. He will try to have you accept an offer lower than your asking price.

Now what? First of all, if you are going to even consider an offer, it must be in writing and signed. It must have a definite time limit, and it should be accompanied by a respectable amount of the buyer's money as an indication of his sincerity. The specific amount will depend on the value of your home, the mortgage market and the buyer's financial condition. Respect your Realtor's advice on this subject.

Once these elements are fulfilled, it's up to you to either accept his lower offer, reject it outright, or make a counter offer to sell somewhere between the two. Just remember, if it's not in writing and accompanied by a reasonable amount of money - taking your house off the market would be poor judgement.

Along The Campaign Trail . . .

Patrick McDonough Sees Self Philosophical Successor To Burke

Boston City Councillor Patrick F. McDonough, picturing himself as the philosophical successor to the retiring Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton], has announced his candidacy for Congress in the 11th District.

"While all three other major candidates were busy trying to force Jimmy Burke out of office, Pat McDonough was working with him on problems affecting our district," he said in his announcement speech.

The speech was delivered at the first of three announcements, this one at the main gate of the General Dynamics Quincy shipyard where his father, Michael, worked for most of his life.

McDonough noted that he did not consider running for Congress until after Burke had announced his retirement. Until then, he said, he had palnned to work for Burke's re-election.

"I believe," he said, "that none of the present candidates represent the thinking or the needs of the majority of Democrats in the 11th District.

"In my tours throughout the district I have found that these Democrats are concerned that their party's nomination may fall into the hands of a candidate who does not reflect their will.

"Members of my party and the people in general are fearful that their next congressman may not reflect the moderation, wisdom and common sense so ably delivered by Cong. Burke during his tenure.

"They are also concerned that their new congressman may be more interested in making a name for himself than with providing the basic services so vital to the district which Jimmy Burke provided so well.

He said people are upset that the government is spending billions of dollars on welfare and crime "while at the same time we hestitate to give parents a tax credit for educating their children," which goes to the heart of the problem.

Working men and women "are groaning under mounting property tax burdens ... yet some candidates who advocate costlier programs are apparently unaware that the people are taxed to the hilt."

Morrissey Seeks 3rd District Re-election

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] announces his candidacy for a second term in the State Legislature, this time from the First [not Third] Norfolk District.

Morrissey's Third District was enlarged [from 22,000 to 38,000 people] and renumbered following the 1972 referendum that cut the size of the House from 240 to 160 members.

In his announcement, Morrissey called himself "a full time legislator," citing a 99.9 per cent roll call record.

He said he has attempted to meet the needs of his constituents by holding weekly office hours at his district office, 69 Billings Rd, Atlantic, by delivering flyers and an annual report and a column in The Quincy Sun.

"I have tried to be available and open to the needs of the people," said Morrissey.

Morrissey said he will "support and vote for a constitutional amendment that will place a ceiling on state spending, allowing spending to increase at the same rate as the cost of living adjustments of salaries."

He pointed to his votes to return state surplus to cities and towns, his vote to divert all lottery monies to cities and towns and his support of the Collins Amendment to equalize the distribution of state aid to education.

"We, in the Legislature," he said, "should have no other priority than tax relief for our homeowners and taxpayers. I have tried to reflect the people's concerns in important issues that would help bring increased local aid to our cities and towns."

Morrissey cited a number of bills he filed that were signed into law.

One of them helped to collect delinquent excise taxes. Quincy has about $2 million in outstanding excise taxes. The bill will require people to sign under the penalty of perjury that they have no outstanding excise taxes. It also allows the City Treasurer to forward a list of tax delinquents to the Registry of Motor Vehicles, which will then prohibit that person from registering an automobile until the taxes are paid.

Morrissey also was a co-sponsor of the so-called "Son of Sam" law. This law prohibits a criminal from profiting from his violent crime. It calls for an escrow account to be set up so that victims or their families can sue for damages.

"This bill would prohibit people like the Boston Strangler from making large sums of money by selling their book or movie rights," said Morrissey.

Morrissey is a member of the Committee on Urban Affairs, which oversees all MDC, tenant-landlord, and housing legislation for the Commonwealth.

"The committee is responsible for the $100 million Elderly Housing Bond issue," he said. "It also has set up a water study commission to study the commonwealth's dwindling water supply. The committee worked on the $5 million bond issue that was passed to help ease and finish a flood control project in the South-West Quincy area, the Town Brook Project."

Morrissey said he will be going door to door in his district. He pledged to continue open and available approach to government. His main thrust, he said, will be property tax relief in the up-coming legislative session.

Paul Hartnett Candidate For County Commissioner

Paul J. Hartnett Jr. of Norwood announces his candidacy for Norfolk County commissioner with the warning that, unless county government is made more visible to the people, it is on its way out.

"In passing Proposition 13," he said, "the voters of California have sent a message to public officials throughout the country expressing their anger and frustration with the burdens of local property taxes."

The message, he said, creates special problems for the county system, which relies heavily on property taxes.

"We are going to have to decide whether or not we want to abandon county government entirely or seek alternative methods of financing county government," he said.

"Few people seem to know what services county government provides or how much those services cost because no one has taken the time or trouble to inform the public.

"As a result, the county system has become hidden from and forgotten by most people. It has become an invisible system. The key to an accountable county system is an informed public."

Hartnett said he favors legislation to give cities and towns sole authority to review county budgets. He proposed a billing system that makes the cost of county government a separate item on property tax bills.

He is running for the commissioner's seat currently held by David C. Ahearn of Norwood, who was appointed to succeed the late Thomas K. McManus, also of Norwood.

Under law, a candidate from Quincy cannot be elected to that post since the city already has a resident commissioner, George B. McDonald.

Hartnett is a graduate of Harvard with a degree in government who is starting his second year of study at Boston College Law School. He is to be married Saturday, June 24, to Liane Callahan of Braintree.

Multi-Million Dollar Package

O'Neill Sees Big Push To Land Destroyer Contracts For GD

By TOM HENSHAW

Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill, III predicts a big Congressional push will be made to land multi-million dollar Navy destroyer contracts for the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard.

O'Neill, in a visit to the city Tuesday, said the all-out effort will be launched by the Massachusetts Congressional delegation starting next month.

O'Neill said that, starting in August, a big congressional push will be made to obtain multi-million dollar Navy destroyer contracts for the General Dynamics Co.

The contracts are of major concern to Massachusetts and South Carolina since General Dynamics has major facilities in Quincy and Charleston, S.C.

"We are bringing pressure to bear on the delegations from Massachusetts and South Carolina," said O'Neill. "We want to make sure the contracts wind up here.

"All of them have been made keenly aware of what the contracts are all about and who is competing for them."

O'Neill, making several stops in Quincy including City Hall left behind other promises and commitments before he departed.

He promised an early answer to a bid by Planning Director Walter J. Hannon for state money to build a bridge between the two main shopping areas of downtown Quincy, separated by the depression of the MBTA tracks.

The connection is due to be

Dukakis Sympathetic

Massport Delays Decision On Aircraft Noise

Massport has postponed a decision, promised for last Friday, on how long Quincy residents will have to put up with the noise of departing aircraft from Logan Airport.

"They claim they had to make one more test before they could give us any information," said Mayor Tobin. "They are still going to get back to us when they get a reading."

Tobin said he spoke to Gov. Dukakis Monday night about the air noise problem of aircraft noise in Quincy and "he was quite sympathetic."

"He promised he would discuss the problem with Fred Salvucci, the secretary of transportation, and get back to me on it," said the Mayor.

After Victory For Mayor

Barry Vows To Defend Councillors With 'Same Vigor' In Meeting Violation Case

"How come," thundered City Councillor Francis X. McCauley, "the Mayor is getting off the hook here and we're left holding the bag?"

And, for the next 45 minutes, City Solicitor Richard W. Barry explained to the City Council how he did get Mayor Tobin off the hook and how he plans to do the same for the councillors.

"I think it's one of the more ludicrous actions that I've seen brought," said Barry. "It's a frivolous-type thing. But I feel it should be defended."

The action is the suit brought against the Mayor and the City Council for violating the state's open meeting law by conferring privately on city business over sandwiches and coffee last Feb. 21.

Last week, Solicitor Barry had Tobin's name removed from the complaint on grounds the law applies to governmental bodies, like the Council, and not individual office holders, like the Mayor.

Under prodding from Councillors McCauley, Leo J. Kelly and Daniel G. Raymondi, Barry promised:

"You can rest assured that I will approach the defense of the Council with the same vigor that I did the defense of the Mayor."

He indicated that the case will not be tried on its merits until sometime in the Fall.

The controversy began when Tobin invited the councillors to munch on sandwiches and sip coffee in the City Hall law department while he briefed department heads on the city's financial picture.

When Patriot Ledger Reporter Adele Trisler attempted to cover the meeting, she was barred by Tobin. Ledger Editor Donald C. Wilder complained to Dist. Atty.

Is Your Name Listed Here?

$67,954 Waiting For 3,320 Quincy Residents

The State Treasurer's office announces the names of 880 Quincy residents who have money due them from forgotten checking or savings accounts or uncashed dividend or wage checks.

A total of 2,440 more names will be announced at intervals of two or three weeks, making a total of 3,320 Quincy people who are owed $67,954.61 in unclaimed money.

Treasurer Robert Q. Crane called the unclaimed money report "one of the largest lump sum money finds made anywhere in the country and the most extensive attempt to get it to its rightful owners."

Around the state, more than $7.9 million is due to 293,000 people.

Anyone whose name is on the list should call 727-5192 or write to Treasurer Robert Q. Crane, McCormack Building, Boston 02108.

"Unclaimed money owners do not need any intermediaries," Crane stressed. "They don't have to pay anything to claim what is rightfully theirs. All they need are claim forms and we'll gladly supply them on request."

The simple procedure, he said, is designed "to thwart self-appointed bounty hunters who see a name on a list and contact the party offering to help obtain the money -- for a fee, of course."

The 880 Quincy names on the first list include:

Boston Legal Aid Begins New Help Program For Seniors

The Greater Boston Legal Aid Services, 1 Cliveden St., Quincy Center, has inaugurated a new program designed to bring legal aid to senior citizens of Quincy and other South Shore communities.

One of the goals of the program is to inform senior citizens of their legal rights and help them participate more fully in developing community and government programs of concern to those persons 60 years or older.

The program is funded through South Shore Home Care Services, Inc. Atty. Ann Gosline is in charge of the facility and is assisted by two senior paralegals, Anne Feldman and Margaret Lampert.

As a first step the three staff members will develop and conduct training sessions for persons who work in programs serving senior citizens.

The staff will also provide free legal representation to individuals. In accordance with provisions of the law priority must be given to low income and minority senior citizens.

Priority will also be given to senior citizens who have legal problems involving social security, disability claims and medical bills. In these cases the staff will try to solve the individual problems and at the same time improve or change the way agencies and institutions treat all senior citizens.

Atty. Gosline says that in the near future the staff will visit South Shore communities involved to speak to the senior citizens with legal problems.

Senior citizens may obtain more information by calling 472-3177 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Transportation or home visits are available for homebound persons.

Tax Rate Help

$1.2 To $2.4 Million Extra State Aid For Quincy

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy will receive at least $2.1 million more in state aid than last year under provisions of the $5 billion state budget signed Monday by Gov. Dukakis.

Mayor-Sen. Arthur Tobin placed the figure at either $2.1 or $2.4 million depending on whose notations you see but he declined to speculate what it would do to the tax rate.

City Councillor-Rep. James A. Sheets, however, estimating that the city will receive more than $2 million, said "this could mean about $6 on the tax rate."

Sheets said most of the additional money will come from three budget sources: $442,383 from school finance reform; $733,000 from the state takeover of court costs; and $800,000 through the lottery formula.

"Right now," said Tobin, "it could hang in there between $2.1 million and $2.4 million, depending on which sheet you look at.

"The sheet the committee chairman showed me had us down for $2.1 million. The sheet the governor showed me had Quincy receiving $2.4 million. We're trying to straighten out the discrepancy."

Tobin refused to speculate on the effect of the additional state aid on the tax rate, saying only, "We won't know until we know what our offsets [MBTA, MDC and other costs] are."

The Mayor also held out the possibility that the city might receive an additional $500,000 through a mistake he didn't want to talk about right now.

He said he and Auditor Charles L. Shea "found a mistake on one of the assessments against us and we're talking to the individuals now to see if we can work it out. If we can it will give us an additional $500,000."

WAITING PATIENTLY these youngsters sit on the curb anticipating the Fourth of July parade sponsored by the Squantum Fourth of July Committee. Because of heavy rains on the big day the parade was postponed to Sunday. From left are, Michelle Anderson, Patricia Vacca, Elizabeth Vacca, Michelle Vacca and Deborah Vacca.

Burke Seeks To Expedite Culvert Work

Congressman James A. Burke has requested the Army Corps of Engineers to expedite the environmental impact statement for the proposed culverts on the Thomas S. Burgin Parkway [formerly Upland Rd] extension.

Burke said he was pleased by the action of the MDC to speed up the final design work on the system of culverts, a decision that could cut the Town Brook Flood Control Project timetable by two years.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Think of jewelry as a gift for any occasion. People of all ages and sexes often wear, and prefer to wear, some kind of jewelry. Men are increasingly wearing neckchains and bracelets, as well as continuing to wear tie clips, watches and the like. And of course, what woman doesn't love wearing jewelry of any kind? Check the styles worn by your intended gift recipient. What kinds of jewelry do they presently wear? Perhaps a matching or supplementary piece would be most appropriate.

Never feel you are stuck for a gift as long as you can make your selections from the complete choice of jewelry and other items we handle at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. There is always a complete selection of watches, rings, pendants, earrings and bracelets available. You can also make your selection from our antique and estate jewelry department. Open: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon. thru Sat..

HELPFUL HINT:

When buying a diamond and you desire a larger gem for the same amount of money, yield a little on color or clarity rather than cutting.

Aircraft Noise

Tobin said the total solution to the problem is going to be time-consuming.

"We're trying to get the flights out over the water," he said. "But that's the holding pattern for the flights coming in. We have to move the holding pattern farther south.

"That's no problem except that you need new charts and specifications and that takes time.

"We know what the long range solution is. What we are looking for is a short range solution to hold down the noise while we're working out the long range one."

Historical Society Tea At Adams Birthplaces Sunday

The Quincy Historical Society will hold its annual tea Sunday, July 16, from 3 to 5 p.m. at the Adams Birthplaces, Independence Ave., South Quincy.

The tea is held on the Sunday closest to John Quincy Adams' birthday. This marks the 211th anniversary of Adams birth.

Chairman is Miss Kathleen O'Donnell. The event is open to the public. Mrs. Margaret O'Connell, chairman of the House Committee, has arranged for tours of the birthplaces to be conducted for guests attending the tea. A report on the current status of the houses will also be presented.

This year the birthplaces of the Presidents received much attention when the Historical Society and a group of citizens headed by Councillor Paul Harold voiced organized concern about problems of inadequate maintenance and preservation.

Harold proposed that the federal government enlarge the National Park service authority from the Adams Mansion to include the Adams Birthplaces. Harold's proposal is now before Congress. In support of the proposal, Congressman Morris K. Udall [D-Arizona], chairman of the House Interior Committee, visited the historic sites in January.

The Quincy City Council is unanimously in favor of turning them over to the federal government. Governor Dukakis recently signed into law special legislation which will allow federal take over of the houses.

$515,000 Granted For Special Vehicle Funding

A program to provide special vehicles for the transportation of elderly and handicapped persons has been granted third-year state funding totalling $515,000.

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli [D-Quincy] announced that the Executive Office of Transportation and Construction is accepting applications from qualified organizations now with review on Oct. 15.

"This program provides financial assistance to private non-profit organizations that transport elderly and handicapped persons where mass transportation is unavailable, inappropriate or insufficient.

"These organizations received 80 per cent funding from the state and must provide the additional 20 per cent funding in cash from non-federal sources."

Cerasoli said eligibility is limited to non-profit organizations incorporated under state law and chapters of the American Red Cross.

Toland Takes Part In Wayland Chapter 622 Audit

Patricia Toland, vice chairwoman of the Quincy School Committee, recently was invited by the State Department of Education to participate in a Chapter 622 audit of the Wayland public school system.

The audit was held to determine the degree of Wayland's compliance to the law that forbids school discrimination for reasons of race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

"It was a chance for me to see at first hand how Chapter 622 is being treated in another school system," she said.

"Proper implementation of this law should be a priority for all school systems throughout the state and I have proposed such implementation as one of the goals of the Quincy school system."

Harold Davis, Commission Candidate, Questions Need For County Government

Former Quincy School Committeeman Harold R. Davis, who now lives in Braintree, announces his candidacy for county commissioner, vowing to question the basic need for county government.

"I may be the first candidate for any office to question the very need for the governmental structure in which I wish to serve," he said in his announcement.

"However, I do believe that the taxpayer is not generally receiving his money's worth from county government."

Davis also pledged to examine the possibility of restructuring county government to include towns and cities which have similar concerns.

"It is difficult," he said, "to rationalize why a town such as Bellingham should be in the same county as Weymouth or Quincy.

"Instead, if county government does serve a legitimate need, it should be organized on a more rational basis than historical precedent."

An attorney, Davis has since 1972 served as legal counsel to the Weymouth-Braintree Regional Recreation Conservation District [Pond Meadows Park], which he cites as an example of a successful solution to problems affecting a region.

In 1971 he received the highest number of votes for the Quincy School Committee and served a full term. He also served two years on the Quincy Park and Recreation Board and the Quincy Industrial Development Financing Authority.

He won the Small Business Administration's Community Development Award for New England in 1975 for his work in creating new jobs for the South Shore.

He has served as chairman of the Quincy Cancer Crusade and director of the Blue Hills Regional Girl Scout Council.

A graduate of Quincy schools, Thayer Academy, Bowdoin and the Georgetown Law Center, he recently moved to Braintree with his wife, the former Kathleen Smith, and their two children, Erica and Jonathan.

Edmund Harrington County Commission Candidate

Edmund P. Harrington, who ran unsuccessfylly for the post in 1976 when he lived in Quincy and now lives in Weymouth, has announced his candidacy for another try for County Commissioner.

He lost out in the Democratic primary two years ago, finishing a strong third behind the winners, George B. McDonald of Quincy and James J. Collins of Milton.

"The main issue in this campaign is the lack of visibility of leadership in country government," said Harrington in his announcement.

"How many people know who their county commissioners are? The anonymous nature of the position has made it possible for many inefficiencies and inadequacies to go unnoticed by the general public."

Harrington said his campaign would emphasize economy, honesty and accessibility of county government.
